BUNNY'S BOUNTY

Ryan Young of Terra Linda accepts a jelly bean from a bearded bunny dispensing Easter treats on San Rafael's Fourth Street. The rabbit, complete with straw hat, vest and Western tie, was played yesterday by MacAdam Black, an employee of the Aquarium Beautiful shop, who thought the project a way to please young passersby.

Ex-Sausalito Officer Criticizes Leadership

Cites Injustices; Backs Grand Jury

By PAT ANGLE

A San Rafael police officer who formerly worked for the Sausalito Police Department today said that department is badly in need of a change in leadership because its top administrators "have done a tremendous injustice to every law enforcement officer in Marin County.

"I've got nothing to hide, no axes to grind, but I can't just stand by and see so many good cops hurt," said officer Richard C. Michaelsen of Mill Valley. "There have been so many conflicting stories and reports and I really believe that people have to know the truth about what is happening down there."

Michaelsen, who worked in Sausalito from November of 1967 to December of 1968 as a young rookie, told of falsified arrest reports, unwarranted arrests and policemen who had no time to help people because they were forced to spend almost all their time writing tickets and citations and hunting for individuals to arrest.

The 25-year-old policemen, who worked under Chief James D. Wright (police captain at the time), Captain R. David Malkin and Lt. Fraass (sergeants then) said he agreed wholeheartedly with the Marin County Grand Jury's recent recommendations that the three be fired.

The policeman has written a letter to the Sausalito City Council asking it to look deeper into the grand jury's report and recommendations and read the transcripts of the testimony the jury heard during its investigation. "I feel certain you will realize the need for a change in leadership and initiate first steps toward that goal," Michaelsen, who was not called to testify before the jury, told the council.

The jury's recommendations were angrily rejected Tuesday by Sausalito Mayor Imlay who said he spoke for the entire city council. Imlay also defended Chief Wright and declined to allow public discussion of the department or its policies at the council meeting at which he spoke.

Michaelsen also confirmed that he knew that many of the 11 charges —which the I-J reported on March 20 had not been dealt with by the grand jury — were true. (Jury Foreman Milen C. Demster said later that testimony on these charges, which included allegations of brutality, illegal practices and favors to individuals, had not been part of testimony given to the jury.)

The soft-spoken officer said he felt compelled to come forward and speak out publicly "as an individual citizen with inside information, even if it costs him his present job "which I love very much."

"I'm terribly concerned about what is happening in Sausalito because I've seen so many excellent officers who wanted very much to be good policemen start in Sausalito and become so disillusioned in a few short months that they quit and often leave police work completely," he said. "And these are the kind of men law enforcement badly needs."

Michaelsen had little practical experience when hired by

Harris Demands ITT-Chile Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., demanded today that the Justice Department investigate whether the activities of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. in Chile violated U.S. laws.

Harris raised the question after Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., said he had new evidence in another phase of the ITT case linking acting Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst to an alleged deal to cover up illegal Republican contributions in California.

Tunney said he would submit the evidence to the Senate Judiciary Committee when the ITT investigation resumes April 6. The California Democrat also predicted the committee would vote to continue the probe despite a move by Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., and other GOP members of the panel to end it.

In a letter to Kleindienst, Harris cited two provisions of federal law which may have been violated in the Chilean situation. Columnist Jack Anderson claimed that ITT sought to prevent the installation of Marxist Salvadore Allende as head of the Chilean government.

Chile President Allende will go on nationwide radio and television next week to tell the nation about the "ITT affair," government sources said Friday.

The government, meanwhile, announced that "official translations" were being prepared of documents released by Anderson, accusing the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. of seeking to prevent Allende's inauguration.

One section of the criminal code cited by Harris makes it a crime for any unauthorized U.S. citizen to intervene in foreign policy against the interest of the United States.

The second section of the criminal code cited by Harris makes it a crime to conspire to "injure or destroy" property in a foreign country with which the United States is at peace.

"That there might have been a conspiracy reaching all the way to the office of the ITT president is suggested in virtually every memorandum released by Anderson.

"In light of the foregoing, I wish urgently to request information on the precise steps which the Justice Department has taken to determine whether or not ITT has broken the law."

Big Red Push Into The DMZ

SAIGON (UPI)—North Vietnamese infantry with heavy artillery support broke through the western corner of South Vietnam's defense line below the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) today and pushed the defenders back towards Quang Tri, 16 miles below the DMZ.

Front dispatches said the North Vietnamese in the heaviest attacks in four years had overrun five and possibly six Vietnamese bases and that one Communist unit of unknown size knifed through to within a mile of Quang Tri and hit the big base with 200 rounds of mortar fire tonight.

The bases overrun by the Communists stretch along a 15-mile north-south line about 15 miles inland from the South China Sea. An east-west defense line stretching 15 miles inland from the sea was holding but was under heavy rocket, mortar and artillery attack.

Front dispatches said the attackers drove the South Vietnamese from three bases today and two Thursday and said a sixth base was under heavy attack and that its fate was not known.

The U.S. Command sent helicopters into the Quang Tri airbase Thursday to help the South Vietnamese withstand the onslaught. Field dispatches said the helicopters took off tonight and attacked the North Vietnamese mortar positions with unknown results.

The Communists also attacked six government bases in the Central Highlands 280 miles north of Saigon and 200 miles below the DMZ action, and a U.S. spokesman said the Communists had shot down four U.S. helicopters in the area

WHITE HOUSE BLAMED

U.S. Clamp On War News Hit

By DANIEL SOUTHERLAND
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

SAIGON, — The U.S. military command's latest clampdown on the flow of war news from Vietnam was a direct result of White House pressure to keep the war off the front pages in this election year, according to well-informed sources here.

The latest dispute between newsmen and the U.S. Command over the flow of information from the war zone erupted three weeks ago when the command announced that it would no longer reveal how many U.S. planes were striking North Vietnam on "protective reaction" missions.

The command's announcement came after news reports from Saigon revealed that the strikes against the North had been stepped up.

The command's chief information officer, Col. Phillip H. Stevens, insisted that he himself made the decision to stop giving information on the intensity of the raids over the North and tpat the decision was made on security grounds.

But informed sources said pressure to restrict information on sorties over the North came directly from the White House.

Newsmen here point out that ever since August 1964, the command has made available information — either officially or at least on a "background" basis — on the number of lanes involved. Why should this suddenly become a security consideration, newsmen ask.

Informed sources said the White House view is: "The less said about the war the better."

This policy means that, in some cases, news which military officers would like to see in print is being supressed. For example, when U.S. Air Force pilots recently reported destroying 15 North Vietnamese tanks and damaging 14 others in Southern Laos, the command failed to announce the news from the platform at the regular military briefing here.

In the old days, when American involvement was at its peak, this was the sort of mess which the military gloried in announcing.

In this case the Air Force was anxious to publicize its pilots' success against North Vietnamese tanks — the largest number of tank "kills" since the Laos invasion last year.

But at the last moment, a U.S. spokesman who was scheduled to announce the news from the briefing platform was told not to. Apparently it was felt that the story — even a "success story" — might only serve to remind the U.S. public that even though American troops are now being withdrawn, U.S. planes are still in the air.

The Air Force had to content itself with releasing photos of destroyed tanks that carried captions indicating the extent of the damage — a much less dramatic way of bringing its exploit to public attention.

In a statement issued three weeks ago, the Association of Foreign Correspondents in Vietnam, representing a majority of the newsmen covering the war, deplored what it called a "steady and purposeful reduction in the flow of news — a reduction which has never been justified to the American public and the world."

U.S. Jury Convicts Mineworkers' Boyle

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A federal jury today convicted United Mine Workers president W. A. "Tony" Boyle on charges of illegally funneling union money to political campaigns.

Boyle was the first national labor leader to be prosecuted by the government for such activity.

He faces a maximum of 32 years imprisonment and $120,000 in fines should he lose his expected appeal.

Boyle also would be barred from holding union office for five years unless specifically allowed to do so by the U.S. parole board.

The 67-year-old head of the coal miners was found guilty on all 13 counts of the indictment.

The jury, which reached its verdict after nine and a half hours of deliberation cleared two other UMWA officials, John Owens, 81, who is secretary-treasurer, and James Kmetz, 47, the union's chief lobbyist.

Federal law forbids the use of union funds for political contributions unless the money is voluntarily donated by union members to a union-sponsored committee set up specifically for political purposes.

Boyle and his two aides were accused of writing checks to "cash" on union funds and contributing the money to congressional candidates of both parties and to 1968 Democratic presidential candidate Hubert H. Humphrey. Humphrey received the largest donation — $30,000—according to the indictment.

Boyle stood solemn but impassive with his hands clasped as the clerk read the jury's verdict with District Judge

Two Hurt In San Pablo Bay Mishap

SAN PABLO (UPI)—A Fremont woman was seriously injured and her daughter also hurt today when a tugboat collided with their 18-foot outboard fishing boat in San Pablo Bay.

Mrs. Ann Gouthier, 49, (of 36215 Cabrillo Drive) suffered apparent back injuries and possible other injuries when the boat owned and operated by her husband Wilfred collided with the tug Kern about a mile north of Point San Pablo.

Her daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Silveira, 23, also of Fremont, was less seriously injured. Both were taken by Coast Guard helicopters to Brookside Hospital in San Pablo.

Gouthier, who was not hurt, was taken aboard the Kern and planned to take the boat into drydock later for repairs.

The Coast Guard said the collision occurred some time before 8:05 a.m.

Following the accident, the Gouthier boat was tied up to the Kern while a Coast Guard helicopter lowered a medical corpsman, who helped Mrs. Goutheir into a rescue basket. She was raised to the helicopter and taken to the hospital while another helicopter, on a routine run, stopped off to pick up Mrs. Silveira.

Hospital officials said the daughter was "not seriously injured, but her mother is." Neither was reported in critical condition, however.

32 Vaccines Labeled As Worthless Still Marketed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The federal agency responsible for regulating the nation's supply of vaccines, serums and similar agents has allowed 32 vaccines to remain on the market though they are worthless and even harmful, a government report said today.

Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., who asked the General Accounting Office (GAO) to make the report, called its findings "an appalling chronicle of omission and bureaucratic failure."

The GAO, which audits government spending for Congress, also said the agency — the Division of Biologics Standards (DBS) —released influenza vaccine between 1966 and 1968, half of which was too diluted to be effective. Some of the doses, it said, were only 1 per cent as strong as government standards mandated.

Some of the report's findings: 28 per cent of the 263 biological products licensed by DBS, according to its director, Roderick Murray, are "generally recognized" as ineffective by the medical community.

32 products now on the market with DBS blessings contain such ineffective agents, some of them known to cause "adverse reactions" ranging from high fever to severe cramps and diarrhea.

DBS has not required biological products to be proved effective as a condition for licensing them and has not acted to remove ineffective products from the market, even though it is empowered to do so.

McGovern Gets Proxmire Vote

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)— Sen. George S. McGovern today won the backing of Sen. William Proxmire, the most popular politician in the state, and said that a "steady, slow, but unmistakable surge" would give him a victory in Wisconsin's April 4 primary.

McGovern announced at a news conference that Proxmire had sent in his absentee ballot with a vote for the South Dakota senator and had given him permission to release the information.

Proxmire had earlier announced he would not endorse any of the candidates for the nomination.

7 Crewmen Killed As Bomber Crashes

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)—A mammoth B52 jet bomber making an emergency landing at McCoy Air Force Base crashed into a residential area today, killing the seven crewmen aboard and setting homes afire. There was no immediate report of civilian deaths.

Orlando Mayor Carl Langford confirmed reports that rescue workers at the scene of the crash north of the Strategic Air Command Base had found seven charred bodies of the crewmen aboard the eight-jet bomber, the workhorse of the Air Force's long-range bombing missions in Southeast Asia.

McCoy Air Base reported its hospital was filled to capacity with burn victims and that some injured were being sent to other area hospitals.

The main wreckage of the aircraft apparently fell near, but not directly on, the homes.

Parts of the plane fell over a quarter-mile area and fire from burning jet fuel sloshed over homes and yards, setting at least eight houses on fire.

Newsmen at the scene reported three homes in a row adjacent to each other gutted by the flames and three cars destroyed, one by a piece of falling aircraft which ripped out the side of the auto.

Reports from the air base were that the plane was making an emergency landing, apparently with an engine afire. Emergency fire vehicles and crash trucks were standing by on the runway, but the plane fell short of the base.

An eyewitness, a "Mr. Driscoll" at a car rental agency on the civilian side of the field opposite the air base, said he saw the swept-wing plane tipping to one side and then diving toward the ground.

All available fire units and police ucits were dispatched to the site, about a quarter-mile north of the base and some 15 miles south of downtown Orlando.

The crash site was in the Silver Beach residential area, one of a number of residential sections near the base.

The B52 is one of the Air Force's largest craft. Its eight engines are in four pods of two jets each.

McCoy also serves jointly as a civilian airport for jets, although the commercial jets use separate terminal facilities.

Plans For A $7 Million Novato Center Revealed

Plans for a $7 million shopping center on Pinheiro Ranch, north of downtown Novato, have been announced by a Mill Valley developer.

Alfred E. Burns of Burns Properties said today a department store, junior department store, bank, market and a variety of shops are envisioned.

Development of the ranch as a shopping center, possibly as a subregional shopping center, is a key aim of the city's downtown plan.

Burns said the shopping center, on 20 acres west of Highway 101, would be designed to "create a rural atmosphere."

Burns is purchasing 45 acres from Frank Pinheiro, with the shopping center to be on flat land and the other 25 acres for apartment development. The sale price reportedly is $1 million.

Novato has a need for a "one-stop shopping center," since people now go to Northgate or Santa Rosa to shop, Burns said. "There are no concentrated facilities."

The shopping center would have parking spaces for about 1,400 to 1,500 cars, he reported.

Burns expected groundbreaking would be next spring and hoped the center would open by Christmas 1973. The timing will depend a "great deal" on processing plans through city agencies, he said.

Burns said he didn't know how many apartment units would be constructed since he plans to sell the 25 residential acres.

The unincorporated ranchland is now zoned for agriculture. Burns has applied to the city for prezoning to both commercial and residential preparatory to planned annexation to the city.

Burns, who has planned, developed, constructed and managed other shopping centers, said he would manage the Novato center after it was constructed.

His firm, Burns Properties, has an office in Sausalito.

THE LITTLEST VOLCANO

Volcanoes, it can be seen, come in all sizes. This one, measuring about a ten-thousandth of an inch, is located on the surface of a soil particle from the Apollo 12 lunar exploration. Scientists think the structure was formed in a hot process — reaching temperatures of 500 to 600 degrees —perhaps during a meteorite impact on the moon's surface. The "volcanic eruption" occurred because metals inside the particle cooled more slowly than the glassy materials on the outside.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Halts Rail Strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The threat of a major railroad strike beginning at midnight tonight was averted when President Nixon decided to invoke the Railway Labor Act.

Nixon planned to sign two orders this afternoon putting off the threatened strike for 60 days. One order applied to a dispute between train crewmen and the Penn Central Railroad, the second to sheet metal workers and all the nation's railroads.

Invoking the Railway Labor Act automatically delays any strike action for 60 days while three-member panels are created to study the dispute and recommend a settlement.

Blasts Economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Disputing White House claims that economic stabilization measures are working, Sen. William Proxmire charged today that the program is a "shambles" and announced he will open intensive hearings into the situation April 14.

Proxmire, chairman of Congress' Joint Economic Committee, said he would hold the hearings "because of the deteriorating situation."

"Seven and one-half months after the price freeze, prices continue to go up and up and up," Proxmire said. "Because of the walk-off of four of the five labor members, the Pay Board has just had a radical reorganization."

Violent Weather

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Showers and thunderstorms prevailed over much of the eastern portion of the nation today in the wake of a violent storm system that brought tornadoes, high winds and hail to the Louisiana coast yesterday.

A tornado watch was in effect early today for northern and central Florida and portions of extreme southern Georgia as the frontal system moved out to sea.

In Louisiana, the storm left three persons injured.

Hotel Warring

DACCA (UPI) — Members of rival hotel unions fought with wooden staves and iron bars in the lobby, kitchen and coffee shop of the Dacca Intercontinental Hotel today. Police fired bursts from automatic weapons outside the building to disperse the demonstrators.

About 15 persons were hurt in the melee and four of them were hospitalized with serious injuries. The main floor of the hotel was left a shambles of blood, broken glass and crockery, and tomato ketchup.

Prime Minister Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, meanwhile, flew to the river port of Khulna 90 miles southwest of the capital, where 2,000 persons demonstrated what they charged were malpractices in the distribution of relief food and supplies.

Drugs And Suicide

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new study said today the suicide attempt rate among young heroin and cocaine addicts is at least 15 times higher than the nonaddicts rate in the same age group.

Building on earlier studies that found the actual suicide rate among addicts was five times that in general population, the National Institute of Mental Health team questioned 78 addicts on the heroin substitute methadone, 20 addicts sweating out their habits by abstaining and 170 persons from five nonaddict control groups including law breakers, non-churchgoers, Protestants, Jews and black federal workers.

Persons in the study were age 15 to 26.

Nailed To Cross

SAN FERNANDO, Philippines (UPI) — A bearded Filipini wearing what he described as a "Jesus Christ" wig topped with a crown of throns on his head had himself nailed to a wooden cross today to reenact the Crucifixion for the fourth year in a row.

Juanito Piring, 30, a father of four, siad he had made a lifetime vow to suffer the crucifixion of Christ every Good Friday. He hung for a few minutes on a cross in a dry ricefield in San Pedro village about 45 miles north of Manila.

Naked to the waist, he was tightly bound with ropes to the 10-foot-long cross held aloft by a jostling crowd. His outstretched palms were bleeding at the spots where two-and-a-half inch steel nails were driven through by an appointed torturer dressed as a Roman centurion.

Tunney: New Link To Kleindienst, Campaign

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., claiming he has new evidence linking acting Attorney General Richard Kleindienst to an alleged deal to cover up illegal Republican campaign contributions, says he believes the Senate will continue its investigation of Kleindienst, ITT and Justice Department activities.

Tunney said he would present the information to the Senate Judiciary Committee when it resumes its hearings April 6 on Kleindienst's nomination to be attorney general.

The resumption of the hearings also will see an attempt by Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., and other Republicans to end the month-long investigation that has prevented Kleindienst from formally taking over the post relinquished by former attorney general John N. Mitchell.

Tunney declined to detail what his documents were but he said he was confident the committee would vote to continue the investigation once it saw them.

Tunney said his information does not relate to antitrust activities concerning International Telephone & Telegraph as most of the hearing has; but rather to allegations made recently in Life magazine.

That report claimed that Kleindienst, when he wad deputy attorney general, absolved Harry Steward, U.S. Attorney for Southern California, of any wrongdoing in quashing a federal inquiry into contributions to President Nixon's 1968 election campaign. The article said C. Arnholt Smith, a big Nixon financial backer, had sponsored Steward for the U.S. attorney post.

The Justice Department has denied any wrongdoing on its part and said it "proceeded properly and vigorously and without favoritism."

Another reason for continuing the hearings, Tunney said, is that he and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., want to question for a fourth time ITT President Harold S. Geneen. Geneen has repeatedly denied any connection between his firm's offer to help subsidize this summer's Republican National Convention and the outof-court settlement of an antitrust suit which the government had brought against ITT.

(The New York Times, meanwhile, today published an interview with Susan Lichtman, former secretary to ITT's Washington lobbyist, Dita Beard. Mrs. Beard allegedly wrote the memorandum which columnist Jack Anderson published. The memorandum, denounced as a fraud by ITT, said ITT had pledged to donate up to $400,000 to the Republican convention in exchange for a favorable antitrust settlement.

(In the interview, Mrs. Lichtman was quoted as saying that congressmen frequently requested and received favors from ITT.

Cheetahs Now On Endangered List

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton has signed a final order putting cheetahs, leopards, tigers, snow leopards, jaguars, ocelots, margays and tiger cats on the list of endangered foreign wildlife.

The action means that is is now illegal to import the cats, their skins or other body parts, or products made from their bodies except where permits have been issued as in the case of zoos or research and educational groups. A proposal pending in Congress would permit sportsmen to bring back legally shot trophies from other countries, however.

Pollution Fighter Envisions Rewards

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The cost of the government's pollution-fighting campaign includes $105 billion in expenses in the next five years, the loss of up to 125,000 jobs and a drop in the gross national product, according to the official in charge of the effort.

But the rewards will be worth the price, said William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

Ruckelshaus spoke at a symposium during two days of hearings on environmental problems.

The pollution control price includes, he said:

"Just to control air pollution alone, the Council on Environmental Quality estimates it will cost around $42 billion in the period from 1973 to 1977."

It will cost the government and industry about $105 billion between 1970-75 to carry out programs dealing with air and water pollution and solid wastes.

The cleanup effort could cut the gross national product by .6 per cent between 1972-80.

In 11 major industries, from 200 to 300 plants will have to close down by the end of 1976, putting 50,000 to 125,000 persons out of jobs.

A report by the Council on Environmental Quality released at the same meeting estimated that price increases, needed by manufacturers to pay the cost of meeting pollution regulations, will cost the nation $2 billion between 1970 and 1980.

Car prices will increase by $245-$425 by 1977 to pay for pollution control devices, and maintenance costs will increase $65 a year to keep them working, the same report said.

PACIFIC DITCHING

Pilot's Decision Proves Right

By DAVID DIETZ

Off course and 1,200 miles from the Pacific Coast, it was decision time for pilot Howard (Rusty) Hanson.

Should he push on at the controls of the four-engine aircraft, hopeful of making radio contact with a Coast Guard ship stationed permanently at sea, or should he head back toward San Francisco with the aid of tail winds?

Hanson, a red-haired man with leathery features and 12,000 hours of experience as a pilot, made up his mind. He turned around.

Hamilton Air Force Base officials said yesterday the decision was the right one, probably saving the life of Hanson, 43, and that of his companion aboard the DeHavilland Heron, Frank H. Watson, 28. About five hours after turning back Wednesday night, the pair was plucked from a bobbing raft in a well-coordinated rescue effort by Air Force, Coast Guard and Navy units.

Hanson had ditched the plane, by that time nearly out of gas, in a frigid, wind-buffeted sea. After the pair scrambled into a life raft, the plane sank within 20 minutes.

"Boy, was I glad to see you guys," Watson, himself a pilot, told one of his Air Force rescuers yesterday after a short convalescence at the base hospital. "I'm really proud."

Hanson, too, had words of praise for the men of the 41st Rescue and Recovery Squadron at Hamilton who snatched the civilian pilots from their darkened raft. The squadron last year flew a total of 31 missions such as the one Wednesday night, and was credited with saving 12 lives.

"Nobody can tell me this is routine," Hanson said at a base news conference. His rescuers, he said, were "outstanding."

Hanson, from Agana, Guam, and Watson, of Waco, Tex., employess of Air Pacific, a commercial airline out of Guam, recounted their experience with dashes of humor that brought laughter from newsmen and Air Force personnel.

Hanson, flying the newly purchased plane from San Francisco to Guam, where it was to be used by Air Pacific for interisland service, said he didn't see the water before ditching at 80 miles per hour.

"I was dropping at 200 feet per minute. I didn't know where the water was until first impact. You're supposed to skip along the water, but I didn't . . ." He called the landing a "stroke of luck; it wasn't skill."

The pair, who left San Francisco Airport Wednesday morning on the first leg to Honolulu, first realized they were off course when they couldn't contact Ocean Station N, a Coast Guard ship which serves as a contact point for aircraft.

The decision then was made to head back, and the crew radioed word of its plight. If the plane had continued west, a ditching operation might have been fatal because helicopter rescue capabilities are not as broad in Honolulu as at Hamilton, according to Lt. Col. William Hatfield, commander of the 41st squadron.

The 41st went into action at word of the trouble. Although the Air Force said the DeHavilland crew was sending out incorrect position reports, the plane was located by radar aboard an HC-130, piloted by Maj. Harold Regele of the 41st.

At the ditching site, flares were thrown to mark the spot for an HH-53 "Super Jolly Green Giant" helicopter, carrying pararescuemen. The location was 150 miles west of Point Arena.

"There were planes flying around and flares being dropped," Hanson said. "We expected a boat because we thought we were closer in."

As the helicopter, piloted by Capt. John Lindgren, hovered overhead, S/Sgt. Terry Wells, a pararescueman, was lowered down a hoist. He jumped into the 55-degree ocean, churned by five-foot swells, and swam to the raft.

Wells, later joined by M/Sgt. Donald Snyder, another pararescueman, found two chilled, but uninjured, pilots. "It was so cold, you couldn' move," Hanson said.

The pilots were hoisted into the helicopter. The ride to Hamilton took two-and-one-half hours.

The Federal Aviation Authority is investigating the accident.

Dry Sierra Summer Seen

PORTERVILLE (UPI) — If the snow depths measured recently in Sequoia National Forest are any indication —the Sierra Nevada is in for a long dry summer.

Rangers said the depth at Mineral King, 8,000 feet in elevation, was 5.05 inches with a water content of 2.8 inches compared with 38.3 inches last year and a water content of 17.4 inches.

Higher up the story is about the same with only 30 inches of snow measuring 15.4 inches in water content at 9,200 foot Farewell Gap.

Last year there were 67.8 inches of snow with 27.6 inches of water at the gap.

Nixon To Greet War Unit's Return

WASHINGTON (UPI)—White House sources indicate President Nixon probably will fly to Fort Campbell Ky., next week to welcome the 101st Airborne Division home from Vietnam.

The sources said Nixon would give the division a "well done" message for its work in the war zone.

Old Freighter Sailing Home

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A group of local Norwegians are preparing the 19th Century sloop Gjoa for a journey back to its homeland.

Rolf Schou said he hopes to have a freighter haul the vessel to Oslo in time for her own centennial and that of explorer Roald Amundsen's birth this June.

Gjoa was the first ship to smash its way through the icy Northwest passage with Amundsen at the helm between 1903 and 1906.

The sloop eventually ended up as a land-based tourist attraction at the edge of Golden Gate Park.

Some Utility Rates Reduced

The Cotati City Council agreed last night to reduce water and sewer rates for residents outside the city utility district.

City clerk Carol Bonfigli said approximately one-fourth of the Cotati residents who live outside the district had been required to pay double water and sewer rates.

The council said increased sewer connection fees and increased property tax rates no longer made the double rate necessary.

Old Oak Tree Saved By Fairfax Planners

The Fairfax Planning Commission last night saved one of the town's old oak trees on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

It approved plans by Gentry Development Co. to arrange 20 units on a two-acre lot, avoiding cutting down the tree, according to commission secretary Ernestine Healy.

She said two plans were offered, the other calling for removal of the tree. The developers also agreed to give to Fairfax, as open space, an area between the creek on the property and Olema Road. She estimated this at smaller than a quarter-acre.

The commission also recommended to the city council new plans for an adjoining 68-acre Gentry development sparing a small clump of trees formerly slated for removal, Mrs. Healy said.

Commissioners also approved an occult store and parlor for Rose Todorovich at 1607 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, and approved the concept of a regional park district as presented by Robert Young, co-chairman of People for Parks and Open Space.

The commission continued until April 27 action on a subdivision request for the Bolinas Road property of Dr. Howard Burns. A soil engineering study will be made and a creek easement laid out, Mrs. Healy said.

North Vietnam Infantry In Big DMZ Offensive

since Tuesday, killing one American.

The fighting below the DMZ was described as the heaviest in four years, and an American officer said, "It looks like the start of a pretty big offensive up there. I expect them to keep it up for quite awhile." Other officers said they expected the fighting to get worse but they said it was too early to say whether the zattles marked the start of a long-expected major offensive.

U.S. and Allied troops went on alert for a possible general Communist offensive as Hanoi Radio exhorted its troops to "attack the enemy repeatedly." Saigon was alerted for possible rocket attacks and the government rushed its last reserves from the Saigon area to meet a new threat in the Central Highlands.

The air war also blazed up. U.S. planes carried out two strikes in North Vietnam, F4 Phantoms shot down a MIG21 over Laos and the Communists shot down another super-secret AC130 Spectre gunship over Laos, the second in two days.

The U.S. command also reported the loss of a U.S. Jolly Green Giant helicopter over Laos on Monday and said five men were missing. The United States rushed fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships to the fighting along the DMZ and one of the helicopters was shot down. The crew escaped.

The 15-man crew of the AC130 was rescued but 14 Americans were lost and presumed dead in the downing of one by SAM missiles on Wednesday. Two others had been shotdown by groundfire earlier in the secret operation against the Ho Chi Minh Trail code-named "Igloo White."

Military sources said the AC130s, whose accurate gunfire is directed by a computer in Thailand, are the most effective planes against Communist supply lines with their electronic sensors and television screens showing the nighttime landscape. Communist ability to shoot them down could jeopardize the U.S. campaign against Communist supply routes in Laos.

Front dispatches said heavy Communist attacks and tremendous artillery barrages of thousands of rounds drove the South Vietnamese out of base camps Dong Ha East, Khe Gio and Camp Fuller today. Saigon troops withdrew from base camps Holcum and Mai Loc the day before.

Military sources in the area said Communist ground troops and artillery were putting heavy pressure on a sixth base, Pedro, tonight, and it might already have fallen. The Communists also hit the Quang Tri combat base tonight with a barrage of 200 mortar rounds.

Quang Tri, 15 miles below the DMZ, is headquarters of South Vietnam's 3rd Infantry Division. Field reports said the mortars hit the base for more than an hour, destroying at least 10 buildings near the main headquarters and sending bloodied soldiers running for cover.

Casualties were not immediately known.

The string of South Vietnamese bases just below the DMZ form what military sources here have called a "Siegfried Line" against any Communist push southward toward the old imperial capital of Hue and Quang Tri itself.

Tonight, military sources said the Communists had fired thunderous rocket, artillery and mortar barrages against base camps Alpha 4, Charlie 2, Alpha 2 and the city of Dong Ha. A small U.S. Marine detachment is based at Alpha 4 directing naval gunfire from ships of the U.S. 7th Fleet pouring shells into Communist gun positions in the DMZ.

An American military source said U.S. fighter-bombers striking into the southern half of the DMZ where the Communist artillery apparently is located and U.S. helicopters supporting South Vietnamese ground troops came under intense ground fire today.

The officer who flew over the area Thursday said "there were battles all over the place, smoke rising from the ground wherever you looked. It was pretty bad down there, and we were taking a lot of fire up in the air."

South Vietnamese spokesman said their forces counterattacked in one area and killed 115 Communists at a loss of 17 men. They said civilians who had just returned to their homes in the area after a period of quiet are streaming southward again today toward Quang Tri.

Guilty Plea To Burglary

Bertha Marie West, 18, of Oakland, has pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court to one count of burglary stemming from the theft of a quantity of clothes from The Emporium in Northgate.

A second count of the same offense was dismissed at the time of her guilty plea.

Miss West turned herself into the jail in order to get credit for the time she already had served when she is sentenced on April 18.

She and another woman, whose case still is pending, were arrested last July 3 after a guard told police they took clothing. Additional articles were found in their car.

Youth Gets Six-Month Jail Term

A young San Anselmo man, facing felony charges in connection with the traffic death of a 13-year-old Sleepy Hollow girl, was given a six-month jail sentence yesterday in connection with earlier misdemeanor cases.

At the end of a preliminary hearing in municipal court, Judge David Menary Jr. ordered Robert Brian England, 19, to jail because he had violated his probation in the other cases.

England already was serving a 30-day sentence and Judge Menary said he would receive credit for the time he has served.

The judge also ordered England bound over to superior court on felony drunken driving and manslaughter counts stemming from the death of Alene Toneff, daughter of former San Francisco 49er Robert A. Toneff.

He was arrested in his stalled and damaged car a short distance away from where the Toneff girl was struck. She had been walking home on the shoulder of Butterfield Road.

Residents, Lawmen Talk Law

About 250 Sleepy Hollow residents gathered last night to air a wide range of concerns dealing with law enforcement.

A 12-member panel of Marin law enforcement, probation and other officials was present to answer questions, according to Beau W. Chapman, president of the Sleepy Hollow Homes Association, which convened the session.

Chapman, emphasizing that the problems raised were not unique to Sleepy Hollow, said the discussion covered "all segments of lawbreaking from prevention to apprehension to the courts, juvenile referee and the probation aspect of the situation."

"The primary concern," he said, "centered around the courts and repeat offenders and what appears to the community to be a revolving-door situation" and the seeming imbalance between protection of the community and rights of the individual implicated in crime.

Some speakers also called for publication of the names of repeat juvenile offenders, Chapman said,although Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court, a member of the panel, noted he had barred release by police of the names of juveniles involved in crimes to the media as a result of an interpretation of a recent state Supreme Court ruling.

Chapman said Wilson also expressed the belief that publication caused more harm than good because only fragmented reports of crimes are published.

Chapman said the panel was "sensitive and attentive" to the community concerns. Other members of the panel were Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos and Sheriff's Lt. William Johansen, Juvenile Court Referee Jack L. Blaine, Chief Probation Officer John W. Brewer, Public Defender Harold J. Truett, Capt. William Bloomer and Officer Keith Chapman of the California Highway Patrol and County Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., whose district includes Sleepy Hollow.

VACCINE

vaccines released for use by the agency in 1966, 1967 and 1968 did not meet DBS potency standards.

DBS relied solely on manufacturers' tests rather than its own in deciding whether to approve vaccine lots and often released them even if they flunked the tests.

Thousands of federal employes were urged to have flu shots this winter, despite government findings that such vaccinations do little good.

The GAO recommended that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which has ultimate responsibilit over DBS, take firm steps to require the agency to shore up its operations and make sure only strong, effective vaccines reach patients.

DBS has a $9 million annual budget. It is an offshoot of the National Institutes of Health and not connected with the Food and Drug Administration which oversees the safety, purity and efficacy of the nation's drug supply.

Novato Man Hurt In Car Collision

Stephen D. Roberts, 19, of 555 Stone Drive, Novato, suffered multiple scrapes yesterday when his motorcycle struck a parked car on Cambridge Street, north of Midway Boulevard, according to Novato police.

His southbound motorcycle collided with a parked car owned by Vivian D. Johnston of 1218 Cambridge Street at 2:10 p.m., police said. Roberts was treated at Novato General Hospital.

Candidate Plans Campaign Dinner

Robert Flahive, candidate for the Corte Madera Town Council, has scheduled a spaghetti dinner for Monday night to raise campaign funds.

He said dinner will be served from 5:30 to 9 p.m. at Le Tonneau restaurant in the Paradise Shopping Center.

Ex-Officer Hits Sausalito Leaders

Sausalito, although he had taken courses in police science and been a San Rafael police cadet. "But I really wanted more than anything to be a good, fair cop, one who helped people, worked to prevent crime and tried to understand the people I came in contact with and their problems," he said.

Working under Wright, Malkin and Fraass was a disillusioning experience, he recalled.

He was ordered to falsify police reports by the two sergeants, he told the I-J. "Many times arrests didn't contain all the necessary elements of a crime and we were told to add circumstances that had not occurred, often out-and-out lies, to build a stronger case," he said.

Michaelsen also charged that many unfair, unjust and unwarranted arrests were made by officers under pressure "to keep their production up, because production, how many tickets you wrote, how many arrests you made, was the most important thing in that department." For instance, he said, many times persons arrested for being drunk in public "had been drinking, but certainly were not intoxicated enough to be arrested and taken to jail. But we'd arrest them anyway because it was another misdemeanor arrest to our credit."

Countless persons were cited for traffic violations in a speed trap on Bridgeway where the speed limit changed from 35 to 25 an hour in a very short distance, according to the officer. "With our radar unit, we'd pick up people who hadn't slowed down fast enough for the change."

Michaelsen told of one instance when he was acting as dispatcher and a longtime resident came in to complain he had tried to talk to a parking enforcement officer who had refused to talk and instead had driven off, giving the man an obscene gesture."

The man wanted to talk to someone in authority and I called Captain Wright and he came and listened, then told the resident a parking enforcement officer wouldn't have done such a thing and that he must be exaggerating," Michaelsen said. "When the man naturally insisted and started to raise his voice, Wright had him arrested for being drunk in public, even though he was certainly not intoxicated."

He charged the chief, as captain, "showed no common sense or discretion in making arrests and was unable to inspire these qualities in the men under him. Michaelsen said Fraass "was unbelievable with people arrested: he'd bait them, use profanity and show them absolutely no respect, and this was very common."

The San Rafael policeman also mentioned that, acting under orders from the sergeants, he often made out arrest reports for people who had come in voluntarily to pay traffic fines in order to pad the department's arrest volume.

He also told the I-J that taking home lost and recovered stolen items instead of holding them to return or sell at auction — as the law requires — was one of the most common practices among Sausalito officers. "They'd take anything really good, guns, stereo equipment, radios, after keeping them long enough so they could be pretty sure no one would turn up to claim them."

Michaelsen said that, as a new Sausalito patrolman, the pressures on him to write tickets and citations were so great he would begin a shift by going to Bridgeway and waiting for someone to make a U-turn or some other illegal act. "I felt if I could just get a few citations or arrests out of the way right away, I'd have more time to do the job I wanted to do, check out suspicious persons and help people who needed me."

The young officer said he decieed to speak up, no matter what the consequences are to himself "because people who run departments like Sausalito are hurting me and all other cops; we in San Rafael get a lot of harrassment because of what is going on in Sausalito."

"For example, I'll stop someone for speeding and he'll ask in a very nasty voice if he is one of my quota," Michaelson said. "People who have had bad experiences there get the idea that police do these things everywhere. The stigma extends to all law enforcement officers, to me because I wear a uniform and have a badge."

Michaelsen said Wright and his subordinates must take responsibility for what goes on in their departments. "We in San Rafael have an excellent department and fine men, but that's because we have a very good chief and very good superior officers who believe that police are there to prevent crime and help people and provide a service. We have the time to deal with people and their problems in a very human way because we don't have to spend all our time writing tickets."

Michaelsen said he is convinced many of the officers in Sausalito would speak out against practices there and their superiors if they "weren't afraid of punitive action."

Attorney's Marriage Dissolving

The wife of San Rafael attorney and civic leader, Leland H. Jordan yesterday filed suit in Marin Superior Court asking that their 24-year marriage be dissolved.

Georgia Jordan asked custody of two minor children, Daniel, 19, and Gary, 15, in the suit and support for them and herself. The Jordans also have a grown daughter, Cherie.

According to the petition, the Jordans were married in Berkeley in 1947 and separated last August.

Mrs. Jordan asked the court to divide community property, which includes the family residence at 87 Deer Park Avenue, San Rafael.

Jordan, 45, serves as city attorney for Mill Valley and Sausalito.

He has been active in many civic organizations, including the United Crusade and the Young Women's Christian Association.

He served as a campaign director for State Sen. Peter H. Behr in 1970 and is a member of the Marin County Republican central committee.

Save Bay, Marin Unit Asks Behr

Tomales Bay should be included in pending state legislation to preserve it in its natural state, according to Marin Alternative.

The organization urged inclusion of the West Marin bay in the "wild rivers" bill of Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael. Behr has been offering since January to amend the bay into his bill, SB 107, but only if asked to do so either by Marin citizens groups or the board of supervisors.

The plea by Marin Alternative was the first response to Behr's invitation. The group also urged the county to withdraw from the Eel River Water Council, which opposes Behr's bill.

About 25 members attended the organization's monthly meeting Wednesday night in the Corte Madera Library, reported secretary Constance Johnstone of San Rafael.

Members also opposed joint civilian or commercial use of Hamilton Air Force Base, and urged creation of a citizens environmental advisory committee to study the proposal. The committee should have representatives from environmental groups throughout the county, it was agreed.

BOYLE

Charles R. Richey on the bench. Arthur Hilland, Boyle's attorney, had the jury polled on each of the counts.

Leaving the courtroom, Boyle refused to comment on the verdict, merely shaking his head in refusal. He was allowed to remain free under personal recognizance pending sentencing at an undetermined date.

Kmetz was acquitted on four counts and Owens on two.

The conviction covered $49,250 in contributions from the union's political arm, Labor's Non-Partisan League, to various campaign fund raising events by both the Republicans and Democrats.

Other contributions listed in the indictment were to help Reps. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, and John Saylor, R-Pa., former Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., and former Rep. Arnold Olsen, D-Mont.

Boyle's reign as head of the 180,000-member union has been the subject of government surveillance since the 1969 union election in which he defeated insurgent, Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski, after a bitter campaign. Yablonski, his wife and daughter were murdered less than a month later.

Another federal court in Washington currently is considering a Labor Department suit to overturn that election.

County High Students In Finals

Two Marin County high school students have been selected as regional finalists for a $4,000 scholarship offered by Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

Paul W. Crane Jr., of Greenbrae, a senior at Redwood High School in Larkspur, Stephen A. Casalnuovo, of San Anselmo, a senior at Sir Francis Drake High School or a third finalist from Willits will receive the award.

Announcement of the winners will be made by PG&E President Shermer L. Siblet at a dinner at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco May 8.

A total of 16 scholarships will be awarded to students by PG&E this year. Twelve will be awarded on a regional basis, two will be offered to sons or daughters of PG&E employees, and two will be awarded to students who have distinguished themselves despite economic or social disadvantages.

The two runners-up in each of the regional competitions will receive shares of PG&E stock.

Car-Train Crash Kills 5 Persons

STRONG CITY, Kan. (UPI)— A speeding Los Angeles-bound Amtrak train smashed into an automobile at a crossing today, killing five persons.

Chase County authorities said all five bodies were thrown from the vehicle, which was dragged along the tracks a brief distance before striking a post.

It was unknown whether the driver attempted to cross the tracks before crossing gates closed or gate equipment malfunctioned. The crossing was protected by lights and gates.

Crash Victim Undergoes Tests

A 50-year-old San Francisco attorney living in Mill Valley was undergoing tests for possible head injuries today at Marin General Hospital following a one-car crash at 12:40 a.m., northbound on Highway 101 near Sausalito.

The California Highway Patrol, which had no details of how the accident occurred, said Thomas N. Kearney of 200 Molino Avenue was found pinned in his overturned car on the Rodeo Avenue offramp.

Kearney suffered a cut scalp in the accident.

Yoko Gets Kyoko In Custody Suit

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The U.S. Third Circuit Court of Appeals Thursday upheld a lower court decision awarding Mrs. Yoko Ono Lennon custody of her daughter Kyoko, 8.

The decision ended a three-year court battle waged by the wife of former Beatle John Lennon after her 1969 divorce from Anthony D. Cox.

Cox had claimed the Virgin Island federal court ruling that gave custody of the child to Mrs. Lennon last Sept. 24 had no jurisdiction because he lived in Texas.

Shoot-Out Scenario Told At Davis Trial

By MARY LEYDECKER

SAN JOSE — Three Marin housewives, the first witnesses in the Angela Davis case, described in strained voices yesterday the terror and violence they endured the day of the bloody Civic Center shoot-out.

They had left the normal world of home and marketplace on Aug. 7, 1970, to serve as jurors in the courtroom of Judge Harold J. Haley, who died in the escape attempt, and two of them shared his final agony.

The first witness in Santa Clara Superior Court, Maria Elena Graham of Terra Linda, seemed on the verge of collapse as she underwent lengthy cross-examination but it was another woman who broke down when shown a picture of the judge.

Noreen Morris of Mill Valey first gave a calm and rather detailej recital of the events in the courtroom before three convicts and an accomplice left with hostages. Then she put her head down, covered her face and was unable to speak fgr a few minutes.

When she raised her head, there were tears in her eyes as she pointed out the judge and convict James McClain in a picture showing the inmate with a gun at the judge's head.

Mrs. Graham, a pleasant looking woman with her dark hair piled atop her head, was the only one of three who said she had heard McClain and young Jonathan Jackson ask that the Soledad Brothers be freed in exchange for the hostages.

Jackson, younger brother of Soledad Brother George Jackson, brought guns into the courtroom, setting off the violence. The prosecution contends that Angela Davis bought the weapons and conspired with Jonathan in an effort to free George Jackson, with whom she was in love.

"We want our Soledad Brothers freed — we're the new liberation," Mrs. Graham said young Jackson repeatedly said during the 45 minutes of terror.

Mrs. Graham, who suffered an arm wound during the shoot-out, also said McClain told Sheriff Louis B. Mountanos on the telephone that the judge would die if the Soledad Brothers were not freed.

A good part of the day was spent in an effort by one of Miss Davis's attorneys, Howard Moore Jr., to discredit Mrs. Graham's testimony as a product of prosecution coaching.

Finally, fighting emotion, she blurted out, "You told me to tell the truth to the best of my ability," in answer to Asst. Gen. Albert W. Harris Jr.

Mrs. Morris, a self-possessed appearing blonde dressed in a beige pantsuit, told in a low voice how young Jackson entered the courtroom, pulled a gun and said, "This is it."

Mrs. Morris said that McClain, who was on trial before Judge Haley, said to Jackson after being handed a gun, "Give me the tape."

Although Jackson first said he hadn-t brought it, it later was found when the contents of a plastic briefcase carried by Jackson was dumped on the floor.

After McClain taped a sawed-off shotgun to the judge's head, Mrs. Morris told how the hostages were selected.

Mrs. Morris described McClain as "almost kind," saying he stopped young Jackson from making the jurors lie on the floor at one point and at another, made Ruchell Magee refrain from wiring the hostages around the neck.

Then a young couple with a baby entered the courtroom, Mrs. Morris said, and Jackson wanted to take the baby as a hsotage.

"We're not taking the baby and we're not taking an old lady," McClain said, according to Mrs. Morris. His latter remark referred to a very frightened gray-haired woman juror, he said.

Mrs. Morris also described how Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas, paralyzed from the waist down by bullet wounds during the shoot-out, was selected last as a hostage.

After Mrs. Graham, and two other women jurors were bound together with wire around their waists, McClain walked over to Thomas, who was lying on the floor by the counsel table.

"Come along," Mrs. Mrris said McClain said to Thomas.

He told the others that Thomas "could talk for them," Mrs. Morris testified.

Mrs. Morris then told how those left behind in the courtroom were herded into the judge's chambers where in a few minutes they heard first three shots and then a minute later, a series of shots.

Mrs. Morris, gulping back tears after looking at the photo of the judge, was cross-examined only briefly by another of Miss Davis's lawyers, Leo Branton.

She said she did not hear any reference to the Soledad Brothers but that she had been distracted by the baby crying in the courtroom during the phone conversation between McClain and the sheriff.

She agreed that McClain had been kind to the jurors and related he had said, "We don't want to hurt them — we just want to get away."

Doris L. Wittmer of Mill Valley, the last juror to be called as a witness, also said she had not heard McClain or Jackson mention the Soledad Brothers.

(The third juror taken hostage, Joyce Rodoni, a young woman from West Marin, will not testify according to Harris, because she has been excused on the recommendation of her doctor.)

However, Mrs. Wittmer said, "I was too frightened to listen to anything that was said," during the walk from the courtroom to the rental van.

Through her fright, however, she did hear two shots fired by the escapees before they got to the van.

Then after a short, jerky ride in the van, they stopped abruptly, she said, and at the same time shooting started.

"It seemed like forever," she said, as she lay in the back of the van with her face down and her hands over her head.

When the violence stopped and "we were helped out," Mrs. Wittmer was asked if she had looked at the judge.

"The lower half of his face was gone," she said.

Land Sprayer Reduces Costs

The Marin County Mosquito Abatement District has reduced its spending on pesticides by eliminating airplane spraying and using land equipment.

District employees devised and constructed a sprayer in a van which they used to spray ditches, Dist. Mgr. Allan D. Telford said in the district's annual report released yesterday.

The use of the land vehicle has eliminated airplane spraying which covers a larger area, killing other insects, he reported. This has reduced the cost of pesticides from $2,195 in 1969 to $1,362 in 1970 and $433 in 1971, Telford said.

The district which covers eastern Marin County and Southern Sonoma County to north of Petaluma, operates on a $180,235 budget with a tax rate of 2.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Cohen Criticizes Nixon's Bus Stand

DETROIT (UPI)—President Nixon's position on school busing was not based on "the right thing to do" but on what would help him most to win reelection, says Wilbur Cohen, former Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) secretary.

Cohen, now dean of the University of Michigan's school of education, said in a radio interview Thursday the President's statements earlier this month "showed a lack of leadership in connection with this very complex problem...and showed a callous disregard for constitutional law and for dealing with a very, very sensitive issue."

Grant To EOC Wins Approval

A six-month grant totaling $73,500 has been approved for operation of the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council, Rep. William S. Maillard, R-Sixth District, announced yesterday.

The grant, approved by the Office of Economic Opportunity on a trial basis, must still be approved by Gov. Ronald Reagan before it is released to the local poverty agency.

Earlier this year, the Marin EOC submitted a request for $196,000 but that amount was slashed after it was disclosed the agency had used — without authorization — nearly $63,000 mistakenly sent to it.

The controversy which followed led to the resignation last month of executive Director W. Robert Lomax Jr.

Harvard Loses Picasso Art

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI)—Part of a valuable painting done in 1914 by Pablo Picasso has been taken from Harvard University's Fogg Museum.

Authorities said the center section of the collage "Small Composition" was ripped from its frame while on display Thursday. Picasso's signature was on a portion that was not taken.

"Small Composition" was on loan to Harvard from an unidentified owner, a Harvard spokesman said.

The section stolen was six and three-eighths by four and five-eighths inches and was part of a 10-by-12 inch work.

HE WRITES A "REPORT CARD" ON EDUCATION

Bryce W. Anderson, I-J executive editor and columnist

Bryce W. Anderson wears two hats. The first, as chief of the I-J's editorial pages. The second, as commentator upon schools and education. While still a sideline, this interest in learning has earned him a byline in 9 other California newspapers which have discovered the critical merits of Anderson's column, "The People's Schools."

With an eye whetted by years of scrutiny, Anderson milks many a sacred cow in the broad field of education — means, methods, and finances. Not to diminish but to help set in clearer focus what schools are for and how means and money may best achieve better schools.

Bid Advertising Set Next Week On Ferries

Shipyard bids to build the first three new Golden Gate Bridge District ferries will be advertised next week, Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Leuhring reported, yesterday.

Advertising for bids had been delayed two months pending federal approval of the specifications for the $2.6-million vessels. Only minor revisions were required by the Urban Mass Transportation Administration, Luehring said in his report to district directors.

The district is seeking a two-thirds matching grant from the federal agency toward the $19 million ferry system. The first new ferry is scheduled to start serving the planned Larkspur terminal by early 1974, with delivery of the third ferry due in September of that year.

The new 165-foot ferries will carry 750 passengers and be driven by triple gas turbines and water jets instead of propellers. All three will serve the Larkspur terminal at peak commuter periods, with one also serving Sausalito.

Golden Gate Bridge District directors also:

HEATERS — Received a report that installation of electric heaters on the Sausalito ferry was complete.

WASHING — Accepted a low bid of $16,564 from Ross and White Co. of Wheeling, Ill., for a bus washing machine.

FARES — Authorized advertising for bids for 20 bus fare boxes at an estimated cost of $400 each.

DRYDOCK — Accepted a $6,462 bid from Todd Shipyard of Alameda to drydock the Sausalito ferry next month.

ADVICE — Referred to committee a proposed insurance policy to cover the district for poor advice to employees on benefit programs, the three-year premium estimated at $750.

IMPACT — Learned an environmental impact statement costing some $20,000 will be required to get Army approval to revamp the toll plaza.

TUBES — Accepted a low bid of $2,626 from American Molded Products Ltd. of Sausalito for 1,000 traffic lane tubes.

COMPUTER — Approved an insurance policy on electronic data processing equipment at an annual cost of $554.

WAGE — Approved an 18-cent increase for journeymen ironworkers, bringing their monthly rate to $1,458.

COUNSEL — Authorized an additional $20,000 for Richard J. Smart of San Francisco, special district counsel handling its applications for federal grants. He has been paid $50,000 thus far.

STUDY — Authorized a $4,000 study comparing the costs and benefits of the bus and ferry systems.

BUSES — Authorized 11 additional employees in the bus transit operation at an annual cost of approximately $100,000.

COORDINATOR — Authorized hiring of an employee to handle paper work required for federal grants, at a monthly salary of $1,325.

INFORMATION — Approved a supplementary $13,825 appropriation to the district's public relations consultants, Arnold and Palmer and Noble.

TEST — Approved leasing 700 automatic vehicle identification devices at a montly cost of $1,360. The devices are being tested for possible future use with a free car pool lane.

SPACE — Rejected a staff proposal for a $3,900 study of space allocation at toll plaza offices.

NEW — Applied to the federal government for a grant covering two-thirds of the cost of up to 34 new buses for delivery next January, the cost of each estimated at $50,000.

CHARTER — Authorized advertising for bids to provide charter buses to district-subsidized clubs of commuters to the University of California Medical Center.

For these three Meo tribesmen, the Laotian war is an accepted way of life as they wait transport at the Ban Xon airport.

Bustling Center In Laotian Mountains

The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Ban Xon is a tiny, dusty airstrip tucked away in the mountains of Laos —a bustling refugee supply center for Meo tribesmen.

Small aircraft come and go so quickly they often don't have time to shut off their engines. They simply take on more supplies and head for one of many scattered drop zones or landing sites.

For more than a decade the Meo have been fighting the North Vietnamese, who have pushed them farther and farther south from their mountain homeland.

Now Ban Xon, attacked last year by the North Vietnamese, is not considered secure.

For the Meo at Ban Xon, warfare is an accepted part of life — much like the daily flights from Vientiane that fly in American relief workers each morning and fly them out each evening.

These photos were brought back by Gordon N. Converse, chief photographer of The Christian Science Monitor, when he returned recently from a five-week trip to Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam.

AWAIT FLIGHT — Laotian soldiers wait at the Ban Xon airport to be flown to the military front in Northern Laos. They pile their gear in stacks, using it for seats on the hot, dusty ground.

LOADING UP — Laotian soliders carry a bag of rice to a waiting plane which will zoom over an encircled Meo village and drop five bags. The operation may take 15 minutes. The plane returns, takes on more rice and flies to another village. The area of Northern Laos is under Communist attack and infiltration and the villages must be fed by such air drops.

A BORING WAIT — A Meo woman slices a watermelon as she waits for relatives to be brought to the Ban Xon airport from an outlying village. The other woman stares into space.

UP HIGHWAY I

Road of Beauty, Violence

By JACK WAUGH
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

UP HIGHWAY I — Hippies in ragged clothes sit by its side on bedrolls and backpacks or camp on its curves in dilapidated cars with the doors hanging open.

The middle class drives by unstopping, sealed off in their Bodies by Fisher, their stereo tape decks throbbing to the rising pulse of Ravel's Bolero.

Highway I from Morro Bay to Monterey. Its way is crooked, twining, twisted and narrow, a ribbon of highway with socio-economic kinks and raggedly loose human ends. A road every- body drives once with weary arms and rarely has time to drive again. A road once a scenic spectacular of the touring class and now a "hippie highway," full of casualties from the generation gap.

The thumb at the end of the outstretched arm is the hallmark of the highway. It juts stiff-jointed into the northbound motorist's line of vision first a hundred miles south, from the grass alongside the road where Santa Barbara abuts U.S. I, where in the midmorning the hitchhiker's national convention seems about to convene, their accommodations on their backs; their convention hall the open road; their platform: a ride for every delegate.

Their placards are hand scribbled cardboard signs, a forest of them, calling out destinations. Laconic explanations, to the point: "Frisco," "S.F.," "Big Sur," or life stories: "I'm in love and she's in San Francisco."

It is not long out of Morro Bay before the land begins to exert its personality, shouldering out all other considerations. The land doesn't meet the sea, it collides with it. It is a great brown and green and gray fog-bound Brigadoon, tumbling down out of the mist, humping and arching abruptly to the sea as if it can't wait to reach the water. And there it scatters whole little islands of rock onto the continental shelf.

The sea pounds back violently, breaking against the land, spraying, protesting, eroding, gouging out strange forms in the sea cliffs. And on the edge of the humping land the highway clings like a long, running scar.

It is all a curious blend of beauty and violence.

Suddenly, at the curve, the hippie encampment. Ragged figures, waving signs in the windshields of the passing middle class, which slows, then speeds up and roars past. The signs say, "Spare food?" "Spare smokes?" Alms asking at 40 m.p.h. Grapes of wrath on the slopes of Brigadoon.

Ten miles up the highway, Becky sat by the row of mailboxes in Gorda and said, "You don't wanta have nothing to do with 'at gang down the road. It's good you didn't stop. They are a bad bunch. Two rapes down there the other day, and they set a fire that burned off all the mountains around here except this one."

Becky is a child of the highway. She got her elementary education in the one-room schoolhouse up from the highway and was bused the 40 miles south to Cambria for high school.

She is as middle class as the motorists passing by. Wants to go on to college next year.

"Those people down the road," she says, "they are just city hippies who don't know what they are doing. They just sit there begging food and smokes. They don't know how to camp or how to build a proper campfire. We had a forest ranger here before the force was cut back who taught them some things and sorta looked out for them, but now he's going and there they are.

"Only other trouble we generally have are the arguments when members of the school board meets. They almost came to blows at the meeting last week."

Becky continued to sit and watch as the bodies-by-Fisher set revved on by, past Big Sur into the spotless middle-class enclaves at Carmel and Monterey, the more comfortable miles, with the spotless shopping malls and clean swept, tree clustered inns.

On they drive toward San Francisco far beyond the violent grandeur of Highway I, turning to nod as they pass, on the left side of the road just out of Monterey, the Fort Ord Army target range and the soldiers learning to shoot straight.

BEACHWARD BOUND — From the broad strands of southern California to the rockier shores of the north, the beaches are a magnet for young people bent on a day of relaxation, or a week, or a month. Here, Henry Higgins, 22, and Rose Hodges, 18, both from Chico, seek a lift to Marin's coast. This moment was a stop yesterday on their trip by thumb from Chico to Oakland to Stinson Beach and back.

GOING MY WAY? — Casually attired David Lorenzo, a 17-year-old Pomona youth with his world bundled up alongside him, brandishes the thumb that is youth's passport to a new scene. One of the vast horde of wayfaring youngsters, he was looking for a ride yesterday at San Rafael's Irwin Street approach to Highway 101.

Must Return Half Of Bribes

NEW YORK (UPI)—A former Consolidated Edison vice president can get his pension if he pays back half of the bribes he allegedly accepted from contractors, a state Supreme Court justice ruled Thursday.

Gerald Hadden, 61, the former executive, retired when his name was linked to scandals surrounding the administration of former City Water Commissioner James Marcus. Con Ed refused to pay his pension of $743.71 a month.

He brought suit to get the pension. Con Ed filed a countersuit to get back $32,000 Hadden allegedly took from contractors.

Justice George Carney ruled that Hadden must pay Con Ed $16,000 and Con Ed must pay him his pension.

Negligence Caused Flood, Nader Says

MONTGOMERY, W.Va. (UPI)—Ralph Nader, blaming the flood that killed 118 persons Feb. 26 in the Buffalo creek valley on negligence, urged a full scale senate investigation of the tragedy.

Nader, here Thursday for an "ecology week" speech at West Virginia Tech, said the tragedy resulted from "obviously either criminal negligence or wilfull negligence."

Alcoholism Chances

CHICAGO (UPI) —One of every 18 beginning drinkers will become an alcoholic, according to Dr. L.T. Fruin, president of the Illinois State Medical Society. The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) considers alcoholism the nation's number one health problem. There are nine million alcoholics nationwide.

Radio Ace Gabriel Heatter Dies at 81

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Gabriel Heatter, the radio commentator who could say even in the dark days of World War II, "ahhh, there's good news tonight" — and find a little — died yesterday.

The 81-year-old Heatter died of pneumonia.

Heatter retired in the 1950s from his network news show, but did broadcasts from Miami Beach, where he took up residence, for a number of years.

At the peak of his career, Heatter's news show was carried by 450 stations of the Mutual Broadcasting System. He made it his trademark to launch his evening show by saying, "Ahhh, there's good news tonight."

With this phrase, uttered in throbbing, reassuring tones, Heatter found silver linings that soothed his admirers and exasperated his critics during a radio career that spanned the depression, World War II, Korea and the cold war.

His utterances on any topic, from the attack on Pearl Harbor to the virtues of suntan lotion, were delivered with such depth of feeling that his mail always included some fan letters addressed to "the Rev. Gabriel Heatter."

His advent to radio came late in 1932.

Heatter once told an interviewer that the toughest times he had as a commentator were during the war and the trial of Bruno Hauptmann, convicted kidnaper of the Charles A. Lindbergh baby.

Heatter's national fame reached its peak during World War II, when war camps overseas delayed "Taps" until after his broadcasts.

Scotland Yard Boss Discusses No-Gun Policy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The head of Scotland Yard says one reason British policemen are able to fight crime unarmed is that most criminals "don't use drugs."

Sir John Waldron, on a tour of the United States, told a news conference Thursday if his men had firearms "the criminal would start carrying more guns than he does."

"It would merely escalate the war and the innocent bystander would be the likely victim," Waldron said.

He gave some of the credit for the no-arms policy to "our good criminals."

"For one thing, what we call our good criminals, our professional villians, don't use drugs," he said. "So we don't tend to get the psychopathic killer."

Coming this Saturday in Marin Magazine

Special features you'll enjoy:

Christianity this weekend observes one of its two great annual celebrations. To mark the Easter occasion, tomorrow's issue of the Marin Magazine will feature a story in which Dr. Fred L. Fisher, New Testament scholar and member of the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary faculty, describes the region in which the Resurrection occurred — then and now. Also as part of its Easter weekend issue the I-J supplement will contain its customary inspirational holiday message from a Marin clergyman, and a story on a most worthwhile Marin program made possible by Easter Seals.

The magazine's popular "Profile of a Marinite" series continues to spotlight prominent and interesting residents of the county. Tomorrow's subject is a comparative newcomer to Marin, but a man destined to play an important role in the county's future. He is Ernest H. Berg, president of the Marin Community College District's new Indian Valley Colleges in North Marin. I-J reporter Frank Farrara has written the biography of this dedicated college president, and has included some of his provocative ideas on education and the special role of the community college.

FAMILY

"Barefoot Executive" — Highly amusing satire which spoofs the advertising agencies, television broadcasting companies and their program rating systems.

"Bedknobs and Broomsticks" — An apprentice witch takes in three children during the 1940 blitz-krieg in England and together they search for the missing half of a spell which will help end the war. A delightful blend of action and animation, song and dance, a fun film for everyone.

"LeMans" — Will be of interest to those who are car racing fans. The annual 24 hours of the LeMans races in France are recreated with a trite story interwoven.

"Scandalous John" — Moderately amusing western comedy-drama about a modern Don Quixote who unfortunately does a lot of real shooting, which leads to his undoing.

"Ten Commandments" — Reissue of Cecil B. DeMille's 1957 epic with a huge excellent cast.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" — A legendary pair of bank robbers that never shot anyone and steal only from those that can afford it are forced to flee to Bolivia where they continue their trade till recognized. Very violent ending.

"Diamonds Are Forever" — This new James Bond 007 opus is fun, with less gadgetry and more spoofing. Naughty but tongue-in-cheek fun.

"Gunfight" — Interesting western drama about a retired gun man who arrives in a small town where another legendary gun man is living peaceably. The two men like each other immediately but are forced by townspeople into a confrontation. Audience is given a choice of endings.

"Hot Rock" — Set in Brooklyn, the hilarious experiences of four accident prone thieves who steal a fabulous diamond from a museum provides many laughs.

"House That Dripped Blood" — A quartet of horror tales about a house that is inhabited by various tenants, each falls prey to a bloody supernatural fate. Skillful acting creates a thoroughly chilling mood.

"Mary, Queen of Scots" — A delightful way to learn history. The struggle between Mary Stuart and Queen Elizabeth who are cousins, when surrounded by corrupt men, plot to occupy the throne of England. Acting is exceptional.

"Omega Man" — The omega man is supposed to be the last man to survive a world bacteriological war (1975), but a group of ghoulish psychotics outwit and thus outlive him.

"Snow Job" — Spectacular skiing sequences would have made a breath taking documentary. Trite unethical story is about a trio of ski bums who pull off a robbery. Strong language.

"Star Spangled Girl" — A trite comedy with sight gags and slapstick about two postgraduate student revolutionaries who publish an underground newspaper and the problems when one of them falls in love.

"Tales From the Crypt" — A crypt keeper foretells the future to five people who have been lost in the catacombs while on a tour. Good cast makes horror stories highly engrossing shocker. (Box-office Magazine)

BORDERLINE

(Most sources say Adults Only)

"French Connection" — An exciting suspense thriller about two relentless narcotics detectives trying to crack an international heroin smuggling ring. Much violence.

ADULTS ONLY

"Dirty Harry" — Police thriller is an exercise in violence. A case against the pampering of criminals and justification of sadistic, illegal police techniques. Tension is excruciating and violence is shocking.

"Godfather" — A handsome production that meticulously recreates New York in the 1940s. The gradual surrender of family affairs by the aging and unwell Italian gangster running one of the five Eastern units of the Mafia, to his sons and heirs. They have been well schooled in gang warfare as well as absolute loyalty among members of the clan. (Motion Picture Daily).

"The Hospital" — An aging doctor who postpones his suicide in order to investigate the mysterious deaths of two interns and a nurse. Scathing episodes are sometimes humorously presented. Strong language, sex, excellent cast.

"Last Picture Show" — The moral degeneration of a small Texas town is graphically shown through the eyes of an 18-year-old boy. The pattern of life seems to evolve around nudity, sex and cursing, all explicitly shown.

Police Raid On Pinball Machines

REDWOOD CITY (UPI)— Police seized pinball machines from 13 establishments Wednesday after complaints that school children were losing their lunch money and some players were losing their entire paychecks.

Redwood City Police Chief John R. McDonald said he sent undercover men into 11 bars and two billiard parlors where minors could play.

He said he issued warrants for the arrest of 15 persons who made payoffs to the undercover agents. They will be charged with a misdemeanor violation of state laws against slot machines, McDonald said.

Pentagon Papers Arguments Slated

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court has decided to hear arguments the middle of next month on the dispute between Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, and a Boston grand jury over his release of the Pentagon Papers.

The government wants a Gravel aide and representatives of a publishing firm which printed the war history report to appear before the grand jury, but Gravel has contended they are immune by virtue of his constitutional rights as a senator.

Final Witness Testifies Against Fired Chief Orr

By LARRY MOWELL

Testimony in the hearing into the firing of Fairfax Police Chief James R. Orr shifted to due process when the city's final witness, Councilman Lee Nelder, took the stand last night.

City Atty. Wallace S. Myers said he called the councilman before the Fairfax Board of Review to refute charges that Nelder and his colleague Robert R. Souza had conspired to fire Orr.

However, during cross-examination, Orr's attorney, Leonard Shaw, focused on whether Orr had been warned of and given a chance to correct what Nelder considered deficiencies in the department.

Shaw's tack followed from a letter passed out by Chairman Freeman Blake in which he said he will recall Orr and the man who fired him, City Administrator Robert E. Crowe, to ask about fairness prior to the firing.

"It is my special concern to discover qualitative material. Was Mr. Orr informed of the seriousness of the situation? Was he given specific warnings about what the administrator wished changed? Were suggestions made to assist the chief in making these changes? Were time limits set? Were guidelines offered? In short, might Mr. Orr have been treated more fairly?" Blake wrote.

The two antagonists in the case are to be questioned by the board at 3 p.m. Monday at the Fairfax Women's Club. Blake said that only one session should be needed after that to wrap up the hearing which has already spanned 34 sessions dating back to November.

The final outcome of the exhaustive hearing is, of course, still unknown, but Shaw predicted a 3-2 split on the board.

Before an audience of about 60 persons, Shaw went extensively into how Nelder had handled complaints he received about the police department and into Nelder's role in the firing.

Nelder, a 25-year veteran of the San Francisco police department, echoed testimony by C. ?a that no conspiracy to oust Orr existed and denied, as had Souza, that they had told Inspector Bernard Del Santo of the San Anselmo police that they were "out to get" Orr during their election celebration in 1970.

In fact, he said the first he knew of a move to fire Orr was when Crowe called a closed session to present the charges Sept. 13.

Under questioning from Myers, Nelder outlined complaints received about Orr from police officers and private citizens.

He said Officer James Davis had asked him to push for departmental training just before Nelder's election in 1970. "He felt he had no training and he had been a police officer approximately six months at that time," Nelder said.

Similarly, he said Officer Michael Morarity had no training for the first six months although "he had life and death packing around on his hip."

He said Sgt. Andy Grimes and Officer Paul Simpson had complained to him about lack of leadership and subsequent low morale and about the incident in which Orr allegedly aimed a gun at a cadet's head.

"What the cadet should have done is go out to the D.A. (district attorney) and have a warrant sworn out for the chief," Nelder said. "I can't believe a man would take a loaded gun that has a background with firearms and point it at another man's head unless he plans to use it."

The veteran police sergeant criticized Orr for lack of policies on gun use and training and failure to require activities sheets.

"It is a deficiency," he said, "because they (two officers on patrol) were both parked in the same parking lot together many, many times. That was not activity."

Nelder, who ran on the law and order issue in 1970, admitted he had disagreements with Orr on the handling of loiterers in the downtown area, the use of automatic weapons and control over a large festival in September 1969. At open council meetings, he agreed, he had not seen eye to eye with the chief on overtime for officers and a no-parkng zone on Scenic Avenue.

But he denied Shaw's claim that the disagreements had been heated arguments. "Sir, you keep referring to arguments. I've never had an argument with Jim. I've had a discussion now and then," Nelder told Orr's attorney. "Chief Orr and I have always been on well-talking terms," he said.

Shaw repeatedly asked Nelder what action he had taken on alleged derelictions, claiming it was important to the due process issue. Neldar responded that he didn't always take the problems to the chief and never took them formally to the council.

He said he didn't bring them up because he was the junior councilman and didn't want to be a "hatchet man." He said he felt Orr was a nice guy who would "come around."

"Did he?" Myers asked.

"Hardly," Nelder said.

Consequently charges were drawn up and three closed sessions were held in September before the council decided to fire Orr.

Nelder said Orr attended one and admitted using poor judgment by not reporting a liquor law violation at Celoni's Liquor Store and Cocktail Lounge to the state Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control and volunteered to take a lie detector test only on some of the charges. Nelder couldn't recall which.

During those sessions,he siad, Councilman Francis J. O'Connell recommended cutting Orr's pay and putting him on probation, Nelder said, and Councilman Frank J. Egger sought a deal to fire street superintendent Edgar Phillips and building inspector Dale W. Hostrup as well.

"At that time I said, 'Goodnight, gentlemen, I am not interested in deals,' and that was te end of the meeting," he said.

Egger and O'Connell voted not to fire Orr when the council upheld the firing in October.

Among more than 20 allegations against Orr are that he showed favoritism to and engaged in improper social relations with a clerk matron, was publicly drunk on several occasions, failed to set up rules and training, threatened officers with violence, failed to provide security and failed to report the liquor violation.

International Cleanup Sought

NEW YORK (UPI) —The Chase Manhattan Bank said Thursday that attempts by individual nations to clean up the environment would be diminished unless the job was attacked on an international scale.

For the United States alone, it would cost between 1 1-2 and 2 per cent of its gross national product between now and 1975 to develop technology for pollution abatement, the bank said in a report on the economics of pollution control.

However, "economic growth may help resolve the pollution problem while making it less burdensome economically and financially," the bank said.

A ceramics exhibit by four artists will be on display April 1 to April 29 at the Anima Mundi Gallery, Mill Valley.

Egg Products Labeling Rule

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Processors who add water to egg products will have to disclose on their labels the percentage of added water after Sept. 1, the Agriculture Department said today.

The new regulation was issued under the agency's mandatory inspection program for processed eggs.

Officials said the new rule also will require processors seeking label approval for egg products containing more than one ingredient to tell the department what percentage of each ingredient is being used.

Spokesmen also said that effective July 1, the department will put into effect new requirements for shell egg handlers. These rules, also drafted under terms of the inspection law, are designed to keep dirty, cracked and other "restricted" eggs out of consumer channels.

Why Supervisors Lose Voter Support

The other day we received a copy of a letter written by a woman active in Marin politics to her county supervisor, who is one of the two who are candidates for re-election for their second terms this year. The letter said that, although she had supported him in the past, she no longer could do so. It gave four reasons why.

The first reason applied to this supervisor specifically, but the other three would apply — to greater or less degree — to all five members of the board. Here they are, as cited in the woman's letter:

"2. THE CONTINUED proliferation of administrative county government rather than representative county government. In observing board of supervisors meeting over the years, it is appalling the number of times our elected representatives (including you) must refer to staff for direction. I find it impossible to support a representative who in turn must be subservient to the judgment of appointive staff. In my humble opinion, it would be better to elect the now-appointive staff and forget the supposed people representatives, if present board policy is continued.

"3. The lack of guidelines for employe evaluation as displayed in the recent case of the county administrator and medical department. How can one evaluate an administrator who has no job description, and comes without due process of competitive screening? How can one evaluate a medical department who submits a state 'comprehensive review' without comparative cost analysis?

"4. The fact county government cost has risen more than 50 per cent during your term of office . . . Are the people receiving 50 per cent better service?"

WE SUPPOSE the supervisors would reply to the criticism that they lean too heavily on staff with the alibi that they do not have sufficient time to devote to digging out the facts about all matters coming before them. It was, however, our understanding when the supervisors' pay was raised to $1,200 per month that this was to compensate them for spending sufficient time to do just that.

We suppose they might say there is a job description for the county administrator. But it does not contain specifics necessary to show where the administrator's authority should begin and end vis a vis the elected county officials, including the supervisors themselves.

As to the evaluation of administrator and medical department, the record speaks for itself. There was no real evaluation, no comparison with any standard, no exploration of strengths and weaknesses, nor of less expensive ways to get the job done.

THE SPIRALING cost of county government results largely from the criticism contained in the woman's No. 2 reason: the failure of the elected board of supervisors to exercise informed control. When a bureaucracy is allowed to make the decisions, it will make them to its own advantage. It has not been elected to safeguard the public. The board of supervisors has.

All the supervisors — not just the two seeking re-election — would do well to consider this woman's criticism. We have headrd the the same criticisms expressed in various ways by by many other Marin residents.

Own Poll Hoists Moretti While Brown Rides High

By RUSS WALTON

There are opinion polls and there are opinion polls. Most politicians go through life poll-vaulting from pillar to post. Once in a while the poll breaks and the politician ends up flat on his percentage points.

Take Bob Moretti, for example. He likes to play the polls.

The Assembly speaker wants to be the next governor of California. So does State Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco. So does Sec. of State Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown, Jr. So do a lot of guys.

Moretti, it is reliably reported, recently had a statewide poll taken to see how his fortunes were faring. He wanted to know how his name identification stacked up with the rest of the maddening crowd.

As the man said, he who lives by the polls shall die by the polls. Mr. Moretti has been hoisted on his own poll: Moretti, 9 per cent; Moscone, 4 per cent; Brown, 85 per cent.

So much for Moretti. So much for Moscone.

NOW, ABOUT THIS Jerry Brown, boy wunderkind who would like to be the first to follow a father's footsteps into the corner pocket at the State Capitol. Well, look what he is doing to a venerable old office.

The secretary of state is California's chief elections officer. His principal duty is to see that elections are held and reported properly, promptly and honestly. He is like unto an umpire — or, at least he should be; fair, impartial, and ready to serve the public regardless of party registration.

For decades, under the late Frank Jordan and his father, the secretary of state's office was run on that basis. Jordan's political affiliations were strictly his own; they never infringed on the strictly nonpartisan manner in which he conducted the office.

Since Jerry Brown took over in 1971, the office has been turned into a partisan and personal campaign headquarters. A launching pad for Mr. Brown Jr.'s flights of political fancy.

SOME DEMOCRATS have been complaining about Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke. Reinecke, a Republican, also has eyes on the governor's chair. They charge he is using the lieutenant governor's office to further his quest for the top spot; they are threatening to cut his staff and his budget.

No one is using his office as a launching pad the way Secy. of State Jerry Brown is. He is spending so much time buzzing around the state on non-secretary affairs that his office is going to pot.

Not long after he was elected, Brown announced his taste to do battle for honest campaign reporting. Assemblyman Charles Conrad, R-Los Angeles, took him at his word. Conrad suggested Brown look into the campaign report of Bruce Margolin, a Democrat who had run against Conrad in 1970. The evidence, said Conrad, suggested Margolin had spent more than he had reported.

Brown acted on Conrad's complaint with the speed of a sleepy snail. When Margolin finally did file a "supplemental" financial report, it was promptly lost in Mr. Brown's files.

The secretary should spend less time filing law suits and more time filing his state papers.

Early this year when, for the first time in decades, there was an opportunity to insure that reapportionment was for the people rather than the politicians, Brown petitioned the State Supreme Court to adopt the Democrats' gerrymandered plan. He called it "impeccable." The court turned him down, cold. It said the plan Brown favored was a "truncated product" of a partisan scheme.

Brown has since taken the mantle of his office into such strange areas as smog research, Medi-Care and tax reform.

Forsooth! Young Jerry does indeed have a lean and hungry look.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Letters for "What Our Readers Say" are welcomed. To be published, they must bear the writer's signature and address (only the city will be printed, but street or post office box address must be included.) Try to limit letters to 200 words. This Doesn't Sound Like San Anselmo

Since I have always lived in Marin County I am acquainted with the various towns and I know San Anselmo well, and have many friends who live there.

The people of San Anselmo have consistantly been substantial people who would be a credit anywhere.

Now I learn that certain men running for the council there, including one incumbent, are actually advocating the legalizing of marijuana; and this does not sound like San Anselmo.

If the people elect any such men to office then something has happened to San Anselmo.

'Beautification' Just Advertising Gimmick

"Why firm selected Quail Hill" appearing in the I-J (March 23) is a fantastic PR job. One reason stated is: "The beauty of Terra Linda Valley." As for landscaping they say: "Cabernet Sauvignon vines were chosen because their leaves turn to gorgeous autumn colors after the harvest." Personally, I am looking forward to fall when the leaves of these low growing plants will beautify the bunker-type structure that guards a lovely valley. Such "beautification programs" are a clever advertising gimmick and nothing else.

PTA Assists School In Voter Education

Re your editorial of March 27, I am very happy to tell you that San Rafael High School is taking some action on the accountability of education you mention. The PTA (parents and teachers) are putting together a meeting on the "Implications of the 18-Year-Old Vote." We have a dozen highly qualified speakers from the community, each of whom will cover one of the many aspects concerned in this topic. There will be time for audience participation in discussion.

We feel it is one of the most timely topics we have ever covered, and we sincerely hope to get support, via attendance, from the whole community. It is scheduled for Thursday, April 13, at 7:30 in the high school cafeteria. Everyone, not only students and parents, is welcome.

Time To Outlaw Trapping Of Animals

It is time for so-called civilized mankind to outlaw the trapping of animals.

May those people who buy fur products hear the anguished cries of these lovable creatures of God and may they realize that it is they who perpetuate this abomin-able practice. Let your legislators know that you want laws passed prohibiting this horror.

Efficient Staff Found At Hospital

Our son, James, 5 years old, was recently a patient in pediatrics at Marin General Hospital for a period of five weeks. During this time my husband and myself spent almost our entire day at the hospital with him. I feel it necessary to write to you and tell you of our appreciation to the nurses in pediatrics. We feel they acted in a very professional manner and were very kind, patient and considerate at all times. With this efficient staff and our wonderful doctor our son is now doing well.

Cause And Effect Lesson For Canine

I was discussing the problem of the sheep-killing dog in West Marin with an acquaintance from Great Britain today. He described the solution used in Scotland that solved a similar problem without killing the dog. There the dog was captured alive and tied to a ram with a tether about eight feet long. After a day's buttings brought on by his false starts after a lamb or ewe, the dog was glad to keep well clear of anything with wool on it.

I find it strange that when a suspicion of discrepancy in the EOC funds occurred, it made front page headlines; yet when the second announcement came saying there was no discrepancy to be found, the small article (March 27) appeared on page 17, the first page of the third section. Strange indeed!

Schools Put To Political Use In Capital's 'Survival March

WASHINGTON — If you don't want your schools turned into a device for exploiting and propagandizing your children, you need to take a clear look at what has been going on in Washington, D.C.

It's bad. It ought to be a warning. It will be fatal if it becomes a precedent.

The whole thing started from a possibly innocent beginning and then turned into a terrible misuse of 6-to-12-year-old schoolchildren. In the end enlisting — or trapping —the school board, the school superintendent and teachers into becoming recruiters for partisan, ultra-one-sided political rallies.

If this kind of thing is to be stopped, we will all need to know how it was maneuvered and manipulated so as to be alert to prevent it elsewhere.

THE POSSIBLY INNOCENT beginning was the plan by a coalition of antiwar, civil rights and women's liberation organizations to hold a rally in front of the White House to bring the plight of the poor to political attention. Perfectly valid idea.

Next the sponsors, primarily the National Welfare Rights Organization, figured it would be dramatic if they made it into a "children's march for survival." A perfectly valid idea.

But what if enough children didn't want to march? What if just inviting them wouldn't persuade them to march? What could be done to galvanize them into feeling they had better march — or else!

That's when a good idea went bad.

THE PLANNERS DECIDED they needed to indoctrinate the youngsters so they would really want to "march for survival." So they got the school board and the superintendent to arrange for the teachers to distribute a kind of comic book to show the kids what fun it would be to join in a big political rally.

They judged that just calling it fun might not be enough. They wanted to implant the "correct views" about policy in the minds of the children. So they gave a prominent place in the comic book to a cartoon, made to look as though it was done by a child, with a crude drawing of the President alongside two ragged children with empty plates and a carefully misspelled caption reading "Nixon Doesn't Care."

Doesn't care about what? Doesn't care about children? Doesn't care about welfare? Doesn't care about peace?

Since these children were going to be bused as near to where the President lives as the law would allow, what better way to get them to join in denouncing him?

THERE WAS MORE. The sponsors were taking no chances that the youngsters might rather skip rope.

They persuaded the school board to bus the students to the rally, and slips were handed out in class for mothers to sign that it was all right for the pupils to do what their teachers suggested they do.

In the classrooms the teachers, responding to a circular from the superintendent, exhorted the pupils to go out and demonstrate for teacher and for school — and for survival.

Washington's congressional delegate, Walter E. Fauntroy, went even further. He visited schools in person and told the children: "Boys and girls, I want everyone who's coming to the march Saturday to raise his hand." When everyone did as bid, he said: "I'm taking a very good look. If I don't see you on Saturday with your mommy and daddy, I'm coming back here to see what happened."

A pro-welfare rally, of course. An antiwar demonstration, by all means. But what unfolded here in Washington was a dangerous blundering politicalization of the public school.

All I can add is —beware, wherever you are.

Match Heath Struck Means Fire, But Perhaps Light Also

WASHINGTON — Earlier this month, I headed up the hill outside Belfast where Stormont Castle sat in the swirling rain. A security officer stopped the car at the foot of the hill and radioed up for clearance. At the locked door to the castle, another officer called ahead to the man I was visiting.

Once in his office, my first impression was that he was only camping there. In a sense, he was. He was a representative of Her Majesty's Government, and officially he had no role at Stormont, for the castle is the home of the semi-autonomous government of Northern Ireland. At least, it was then.

For long minutes, we sat discussing what might be forthcoming from London in the way of political remedies for the killing and persecution in Ireland. As we talked, I kept glancing at the clock built into a tower at one corner of the stone castle wall. There was no way of telling whether it was four hours fast or eight hours slow.

I concluded it was slow because the hour even then was very late for Northern Ireland. There were dozens of combinations of alternatives that Prime Minister Edward Heath might propose, and for each of them there were a dozen potential objections from the Catholic or the Protestant side — usually from both. More violence was implicit with every objection.

WHAT HEATH HAS NOW laid down is a drastic choice. It dissolves the Stormont government, ostensibly for a year, perhaps forever. It will free many of the Catholics interned without trial as suspects in the guerrilla warfare whose toll of victims is approaching 300 for the past three years. It will not, certainly not for the time being, let the Protestant majority in Northern Ireland be merged against its will into the Catholic Irish Republic. The provision for a series of periodic plebiscites guarantees that.

Reaction in Ireland has been predictable. Many of the Protestants are appalled because they considered Stormont their government. The Irish Republican Army is hesitant because it would like a North-South merger without any intervening stages, and even more than that, one suspects, it would like some excuse for further bloodshed. Those who have approved the London edict as a good faith effort to end the bloodshed are the nonviolent Catholics and the more restrained Protestants.

It is probably more sensible to assess what Heath has done in the terms we used that rainy day at Stormont thanin the more emotional terms flung about since the prime minister acted. Anyone able to stand off at arm's length to look at it has to conclude now that a complete takeover by the British government was inevitable. But, contrary to much that has been said in the past week, that takeover may lead eventually to a North-South merger rather than an indefinite prolongation of Northern Ireland's separate status — those periodic plebiscites notwithstanding.

FURTHER VIOLENCE is certain. The release of a sizeable group of internees will inspire it. Many of those whose guilt may have been marginal when they were arrested no doubt have become sworn and tutored bomb-throwers by now.

But even the IRA, whose killings often have seemed pointless, will have a hard time justifying further bombing against the Protestants when those Protestants no longer control the local government. It is the British who will be officially to blame for every wrong from now on. And the nonviolent Catholics will see that in the long run the British presence must work to their advantage.

The main reason is that it removes the bitterest issues, both within Northern Ireland and between North and South, from the arena of local politics. It is not fair to say that the Catholics in the North have been officially persecuted by the majority Stormont government, at least not lately — that is the widespread belief in America, but in fact myriad reforms have been put into effect since 1968. Yet discrimination remains, and now London will be able to move affirmatively against it wihout the local politicians' fear that every move toward reform will mean defeat at the ballot box.

BEYOND THAT, The British will be able to exert more credible pressure on the Irish Republic to make the fundamental changes in its constitution and laws which are absolutely necessary to any future merger of the two Irelands. When this pressure came from Stormont, of course, it met defiant resistance in the South. Offered calmly from London, suggestions for ending the Republic's bans on divorce and contraception, and for detheologizing the state itself, may stir response just as calm.

Not soon, of course. The church in the Irish Republic is in many ways more old-fashioned than the Vatican itself. But when the government, the people and the church hierarchy all see that they can live peaceably by their own beliefs without making such matters a concern of the state, the light will begin to glimmer at the end of the long tunnel that stretches back to the Middle Ages. We can all hope that Heath has at least struck a match.

Sausalito Council Defends Goose That Lays Golden Eggs

In all the furor over the recent grand jury report which found the equivalent of an arrest and citation quota system in the Sausalito Police Department and recommended the dismissal of its three top officers, one central fact has emerged: the Sausalito City Council is perfectly content with its police department as is and very resentful of any criticism of it. While the jury report indicated it had other information not pertaining to the quota system that it was turning over to the district attorney's office for investigation, the council — and particularly Mayor Alexander R. Imlay —has shown little inclination to know the worst.

The mayor claims he called for an investigation by the jury last July (although it is pretty well known that several grand jurors ware already looking into department operations for several weeks before the mayor decided to ask for a probe).

Yet from the moment the jury's report came to light, Imlay has cast doubt on the credibility of the investigators he himself asked to "clear the air."

UNDERSTANDABLY, the Sausalito City Council does not want to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs, the bird that this year provided the money for nearly 13 per cent of the city's budget.

Of a current budget of $1.7 million, Sausalito has estimated that a whopping $197,000 will come from vehicle code violations, parking and other fines.

A quick glance at Marin's other 11 cities, their total budgets and estimated revenues from fines, will show quite clearly why Sausalito officialdom is content with the status quo in its police. Sausalito, for example, last year collected one-third of all traffic fines collected in Marin.

Sausalito politicians will be quick to point out that it is not an ordinary city of 6,000, that its population swells to 30,000 on some week ends. But San Rafael, which has 38,000 population all year 'round, only estimates its revenues from fines and penalties this year at $55,000.

Mill Valley, with a $2.3 million budget (and twice Sausalito's population) projected it would collect $27,000 in fines. Figures from other cities show just how far out Sausalito's revenues from this source are: Corte Madera, 9,421 people, $1.2 million budget, $15,000 in fines; Larkspur, 7,900 population, $1 million budget, $23,000 from fines; Novato, 28,593 people, $2.6 million budget, $29,000 in fines.

THERE IS LITTLE doubt Sausalito needs the money, but what price are its residents paying for the padded revenues? As the fourth smallest city in Marin, it boasts the fourth largest city budget in the county, behind only San Rafael, Novato and Mill Valley. And San Rafael, Novato and Mill Valley, with their larger populations and more extensive governmental functions, are the only cities with more fulltime employees than Sausalito's 75 (big Novato has 79).

Corte Madera has 47 employees, Fairfax (7,703 persons) has 28, Larkspur has 48, and San Anselmo (population 12,401) has 60.

Is it possible Sausalito city fathers not only prefer to look the other way on the arrest quota system, but set the policy for such a system themselves after wrestling with budgets for a few years? That would make sense. Perhaps the grand jury was investigating the wrong group.

President Nixon May Visit Iran

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Administration officials believe there is a "strong possibility" President Nixon will stop off in Iran following his visit to the Soviet Union in May.

There were other reports Wednesday that the President and Mrs. Nixon would make other stops in Europe or the Middle East after the summit meeting in Moscow, which starts May 22.

The White House would not confirm the reports, saying Nixon's itinerary following the Russian visit had not been set.

Reception Set

A public reception for Gary Giacomini, candidate for board of supervisors from the fourth district, will be held from 5 to 8 p.m. Tuesday at his headquarters at 901 B Street, San Rafael.

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

Higher and Higher Taxes, Less And Less Evaluation

Here are a few lines from one of the letters that I received last week: "I am a property owner and pay high taxes and my family has worked hard on this land for many years. Now comes a time when the taxes are so high, we would like to sell but we haven't got a thing to say, and can't sell it the way we would like to or even build on it.

"We need more men like John McInnis and Bud Baar — my hat is off to them."

To use the expression of the Amish people, which I often do, "It wonders me" that it doesn't wonder these extremists as to the plight of folks such as this gentleman who wrote to me. He didn't ask me to try and help him, he just needed to talk with someone who would understand. I once wrote, "Mark my words, these extremists will get it in the neck before they are through." The patience of people wears thin when they are put upon and pushed aside.

I WANTED TO WRITE more about the phony "evaluation" last week but ran out of available space. This evening, before starting to write, I went back over some previous columns to see if my memory was still in working order. It was. These are excerpts that should be repeated and considered:

Almost a year ago, on April 4: "I heard last week, over KTIM, that Alan Bruce had resigned effective July 1. Then I read that Supervisor Arrigoni had put in the agenda for Tuesday's board meeting the immediate hiring of a new administrator. It was continued for one week.

"When Supervisors Bud Baar, John McInnis and Michael Wornum had voted to open up the recruitment to fill the administrative position, there was hopeful evidence that at least three supervisors had been getting the message from the folks who pay the bill.

"McInnis was quoted thusly! 'The county has reached a point of real contention about whether there even should be an administrator. I've received calls to abolish the office.'"

THIS IS FROM AUG. 28 last year: At the dinner meeting at the Alta Mira in Sausalito (that no one seemed to remember being at), "There was a scrap about giving the job of administrator to John Barrows. Supervisor Peter Arrigoni has been pushing for Barrows from the very beginning. Supervisor Arnold Baptiste supported Arrigoni (this is where the nepotism comes in) . . . Baar and McInnis think differently. Michael Wornum has been quoted in stories as wanting a broader field to select from."

From the column of Sept. 3: "It is impossible to applaud the appointment of John Barrows as administrator under the prevailing situation. (It was generally known that Barrows tried for the same position at San Diego last year — went down for the interview but didn't make it. Perhaps this would be a reason his supervisor friends were reluctant to have him compete for this job.) "Supervisors Arrigoni, Baptiste and Wornum voted for him.

"Said Arrigoni at the investiture, 'This man knows what Marin County government is and should be and is fair and objective.' Question: How does he know? Arrigoni doesn't spend much time out at the Civic Center, according to reports.

"Another question: Does Arrigoni forget how Barrows juggled the minutes of LAFCO meetings re: sheriff's patrol in the unincorporated areas? And how he (Arrigoni) had to bail him out by correcting the minutes for the supervisors records? Supervisor McInnis was right in his stand of appointing after competition only."

At the evaluation of the administrator's work the other day his two pals on the board laid it on thick. Arrigoni: "I think Marin has the finest administrator of any county." From Baptiste: "John Barrows is one of the most excellent administrators I have ever known." Wornum: "Evaluation is rather unnecessary. The review is every Tuesday."

Arrigoni and Baptiste sounded like two kids saying, "My dad can lick anybody's dad so there." Seriously, how many counties have they seen in operation? Wornum's "Evaluation every Tuesday" is a dead give-away. Tuesdays are his visiting days at Brasilia apparently.

INVESTING

Club Has A Strong Portfolio

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Our growth-oriented investment club of 12 members holds Reynolds Metals, Sears, Roebuck, Bristol-Myers, EBM and Inter. Telegraph, all NYSE. One member is resigning: what should we sell to pay back her share? — V.G.

A. With your portfolio worth close to $20,000, one member's share is approximately $1,650. Although IBM represents a disproportionate amount (68 per cent) of your portfolio I can see no justification for reducing this holding. Reynolds Metals, your smallest commitment, which has apparently turned the corner, should be held.

Two aluminum making potlines with annual capacity of 100,000 tons will be reopened in the next 30 days. This will bring production back to 73 per cent of capacity. Share action reflects the improving outlook for this issue.

Inter. Telephone has maintained an above-average growth rate and no fundamental changes are anticipated which would disrupt this earnings trend. However, recent unfavorable publicity from Washington and Key Biscayne may temporarily dampen market action for these shares. I would liquidate this holding with a view toward repurchase at a later date.

Bristol-Myers, although a strong long-term holding has run into some dumping by mutual funds anticipating a poor first quarter showing. In order to make up the balance required to reimburse your resigning club member I suggest sale of six Bristol Myers. Hold Sears.

Q. Recently my great aunt gave me three old stocks to hang as wall decorations. Is there any way I can check on whether they have any value? — M.P.

Q. Could you give us information on stock we found while sorting out my grandmother's belongings? — R.C.

A. I have combed through the considerable research materials available at my offices with no success. Therefore I suggest you write to R. M. Smythe & Co., 79 Wall Street, New York, N. Y. 10005. This brokerage firm specializes in tracing and appraising obsolete securities. A modest fee is charged for this service.

Bank Hopes To Increase Net Income

Redwood Bank in San Rafael hopes to increase net income to nearly $400,000 by the end of this year, or $1.39 per share, President Byron W. Leydecker told shareholders at the annual meeting last week.

This would compare with 1971's net income of $349,610, or $1.28 per share.

Leydecker said Redwood Bank's total resources rose from $36.4 million at the end of 1970 to $48.3 million at the end of 1971, and this year should nudge $60 million. The growth rate exceeded the rate of the banking industry as a whole by one and one-half times.

He pointed out that the bank's net income in 1971 — which essentially doubled from 1970's $175,587 to $349,610 — represented a 16 per cent return on its net worth.

Shareholders approved the formation of a one-bank holding company, to be known as Redwood Bancorp.

Vacation Troubles? Try Camping Trip

By JOSEPHINE RIPLEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

If inflation and dollar devaluation have upset your plans for taking the family to Europe this summer, don't give up. You may yet be able to take the trip and still keep within your budget — if you make it a camping trip.

You can tour Europe for as little as $26 a day, plus food, of course, in a Tourmobile for four.

Plus hotel service, no. But you won't be roughing it either. Europe abounds in camps.

You may camp by a lakeside in Switzerland and look up at the Alps. On the French or the Italian riviera. In the chateau country of France. By the fabled Rhine. At Stratford-on-Avon in Shakespeare land. On the Costa Brava or on a Greek island.

Some camps have restaurants, shopping centers, beauty parlors, news stands, laundries. Others may be located by the seashore where you can go snorkeling, swimming, or sailing. Many camps have television. Some have a repair mechanic on the premises.

Or you can get away from it all at some more isolated spot. The charge per day at campsites is low —possibly $1.25 or $1.50 depending on how many are in your party. Rates vary.

How can you find these camps? There are various camping guides available. One of the newest and most up-to-date is available through the American Automobile Association. It lists more than 1,500 campsites in 27 countries, including the Soviet Union.

This compact publication is the work of the Auto Club of Italy in collaboration with the Federation of International Automobile Associations. It includes a map of each country with the location of camps, indicated by number and keyed to a directory which lists the facilities available at each camp.

The AAA, which for many years has made arrangements for car rentals abroad, now is in a position to arrange for the rental of camping vehicles.

This service in general is not restricted to members but is available to anyone interested in a camping vacation abroad. (Individual clubs sometimes restrict services to members.)

The campers vary in size and equipment. Some have sleeping accommodations for a family of four, plus kitchen and dining facilities, a small refrigerator, a two-burner cooker, with necessary cooking equipment and linen.

If more space is needed, a tent may be rented for an extra fee. It comes with a floor and may be used as an extra bedroom or a family living room.

You may, of course, wish to make arrangements through a travel agent.

But first of all, even before you consult an agent, decide where you want to go. The camping atlas, with its maps giving major highways, place names, and campsites will be especially helpful in the initial planning stage.

This atlas on "Camping Caravanning," which sells for $5, may be obtained from the American Automobile Association, 1712 G Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

Members of the AAA may obtain an international camping carnet which will admit them to certain camps restricted to holders of this document, and at a reduced fee. It also provides insurance for the camper and party while on the camp premises. It costs $5.

Others may obtain an "AIT" camper card from the rental agent which will entitle them to similar privileges.

After you make up your mind where you want to go on your trip, act quickly. Camping vehicles are in great demand and are in relatively short supply, due to the fact that dealers do not carry a large fleet of vehicles which are used only seasonally.

The fee mentioned — $26 a day — for the Eurocamper Tourmobile Volkswagen includes mileage and passenger insurance. You may pick it up in Weisbaden, Germany.

If you want something more roomy and luxurious, you can rent a six-berth motor home, with bathroom, shower, flush toilet, hot and cold running water, refrigerator, oven with three-burner stove, carpeting, and other amenities.

This will cost you about $375 a week while traveling in England where these particular caravans are based. If you want the camper for travel on the Continent, the rate will be $413 a week — including insurance and unlimited mileage. Delivery and collection charges are additional.

Other, less costly models are also available. You may rent a small camper for as little as $138 a week for travel in England, or about $155 a week for use on the Continent, under the same conditions.

These smaller vehicles have accommodations for four and are equipped with a two-burner stove, refrigerator, plus necessary equipment and linens.

All rates which have been quoted are for the peak tourist months of July and August. Spring and fall rates are lower. There is also a discount for long-term hire.

Also, while there are an estimated 10,000 or more camping sites in Europe, there are thousands of people on the road heading for them. So make campsite reservations well ahead of time, if possible.

If you want to go camping in the Soviet Union, you must obtain permission from Intourist. This can be done through a travel agent. You must also follow special routes while in the country.

The camping map shows 21 camps in Russia, two of which are located in Sochi, the famous Black Sea resort.

In an addendum, the atlas lists additional campsites under consideration for inclusion in the next edition. Among these are 14 sites in Israel —some in the Upper Galilee, at Ashkelon, Eilat, on the Dead Sea, and other historic spots.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, C.P.A.

Federal Estate Taxes Due Nine Months After Decedent Death

Federal Estate Taxes are due nine months after the death of the decedent.

A return Form 706 must be filed for the estate of every citizen or resident of the United States whose gross estate exceeded $60,000 at the date of death. For decedents dying on or before Dec. 31, 1970, the return is due 15 months after the date of death.

or decedents dying after Dec. 31, 1970, the return is due in nine months after the date of the decedent's death.

The tax is due with the return unless an extension of time for payment has been granted unless the executor has properly elected to pay in installments.

There is a new Federal Estate Tax Return consisting of some 35 pages. That's right, 35 pages of schedules and instructions comprise the Federal Estate Tax Return.

The Federal Estate Tax Returns are extremely complicated and should be filed in Conjunction with the decedent's final return and the fiduciary returns required of the executor.

There is a little known income tax deduction that is frequently overlooked. All expenses should be claimed by the executor in the final fiduciary tax return.

If there is not sufficient income of the estate to cover expenses claimed on the final return, then they are "excess deductions" and are available to the beneficiary for an income tax deduction.

Of course, anything you inherit is not subject to income tax, although any income produced by the inherited property is subject to tax.

Code Section 642(h) provides that on the termination of an estate or trust, if it has — for the last taxable year deductions (except personal exemption and charitable contributions) in excess of gross income then such excesses shall be allowed as a deduction to the beneficiaries succeeding to the property of the estate or trust.

This is a very important point, the executor or administrator must cooperate because the expenses must be paid in the last taxable period of the estate.

U.S. Treasury Bonds issued after March 3, 1971, cannot be used at par in payment of federal estate taxes. However, many issues prior to March 3, 1971, can be used in Payment of federal estate taxes, at their par value regardless of what you may have paid for them.

There is a large federal estate tax savings possible here.

These bonds are currently selling for substantially less than par and if they are included in your estate at par value, they can be used to pay the federal estate tax.

This is sophisticated tax planning and you should consult your attorney or accountant before making a purchase of these bonds.

All U.S. Bonds do not qualify for this federal estate tax payment at par feature. Only certain issues qualify. Your bank or broker can tell you which ones these are.

If you think you may have a large federal estate tax to pay, here is a good way to get a substantial discount on it.

You should consult your accountant and your attorney now for some estate planning. A little foresight can produce some very large tax savings.

Sausalito Police Association OPINION

In view of the reaction caused by the release of the result of the Marin County Grand Jury's investigation of the Sausalito Police Department, the members of the Sausalito Police Association feel compelled to respond to the controversy surrounding allegations made with respect to the operation of the Department and the conduct of its members. At this time we particularly want to voice our criticism of those people who seem to have made a career of publishing reckless and unsupported charges of purported questionable and illegal behaviour of the Department. We wish further to express whole-heartedly our firm and unstinting support of Chief James D. Wright and the policies governing the operation of the Sausalito Police Department.

At a recent meeting held by the Sausalito Police Association, the subject of the Marin County Grand Jury's report and news media coverage thereof was discussed. It was decided that because of the silence of the Association thus far, its opinion was not being accurately presented to the public. We feel certain that some persons believe the Department to be a "house divided" in its view of the Chief. As a result, we elected to show our support for the Chief by a vote of confidence. We are emphatically of the opinion that Chief James D. Wright is a dedicated and competent administrator, honestly administrating the Department with the highest of professional and ethical standards. It is in this frame of reference that the personnel of the Department carry out their duties and it is with this salient point in mind that we voted our unanimous support of the Chief and his policies.

We realize that a police department is, above all an agency for service to the community. As such, its main interest is the welfare of the public and it must be responsive to the needs and desires of the people. While we welcome constructive criticism, for it allows us to upgrade the quality of the services we perform, conversely we condemn those who use the police service as a target of their venom and for what we suspect are not altogether altruistic reasons.

We would like at this point to address ourselves to the all too familiar critics of the Department: to the "Independent Journal" whose reporting of the entire controversy is an example of irresponsible and inflammatory "news coverage"; to Mr. William Bennett, whose charges are so outrageous as to stretch the credibility of any intelligent person; to the lesser host of persons, who, not to be outdone, appear to have jumped on the bandwagon: Mr. James B. Leech, who just happens to be involved in the bulk of questionable law suits brought against the Department; Ms. Alice Yarish of the Pacific Sun who authored an article appearing under date of March 23-29, 1972, which must rank as a classic of innuendo, so ugly are the implications.

It is obvious to us that the Independent Journal has taken a biased position on the subject of the Sausalito Police Department by providing abundant and adverse coverage of the whole issue. For example, an article appeared in the Independent Journal dated March 21, 1972 written by Ms. Pat Angle which purported to be a summary of the findings of the Marin County Grand Jury's investigation of the Sausalito Police Department. After paying brief attention to what the Grand Jury allegedly said, Ms. Angle spent the bulk of the article categorically listing illegal practices allegedly carried out by the Sausalito Police Department. The article implied that these charges were specific considerations of the Grand Jury and that the Grand Jury avoided its duty by deliberately withholding comment on them. Milen Dempster foreman of the Grand Jury stated no testimony was heard on these alleged charges. An even more inflammatory example of "news coverage" by the Independent Journal was the headline appearing March 24, 1972 to the effect that the State was to "probe Police "quota" system". Were we to be investigated again? No, for the article went on to say the State was to investigate the "leak" which caused the premature release of the Grand Jury's findings to the press. The reasons for the peculiar coverage of the whole thing by the Independent Journal and Ms. Pat Angle are unknown to us. It would appear to be for the sole purpose of maligning the Department by the use of bias and sensation-seeking methods of "yellow journalism".

In our considered opinion, Mr. William Bennett seeks to vindicate himself in the public eye by adopting the cloak of a crusader and "exposing" the Sausalito Police Department and its "evil practices".

Mr. Bennett, however, had no success in convincing twelve of the people he aspires to protect, of his own lack of guilt. Judge Robert Smallman's inexplicable overrule of the verdict allowed Mr. Bennett to mount his onslaught, while proclaiming his innocence. It is patently obvious that Mr. Bennett's motivations are not prompted by righteous indignation, but rather a desire to martyr himself and gain all the publicity he can at our expense. We believe an elected official to be subject to the same standards of conduct as any other citizen. Possibly the real reason for Mr. Bennett's indignation was prompted by the fact that he was not granted any special privilege by police because of his position.

In conclusion, we would like to comment on the statement made to the press by Mr. Gerald Hawes to the effect that the Grand Jury was failing to protect the members of this Department who put their careers on the line by testifying before that body. Mr. Hawes must speak for himself, since it is not clear to us to just whom he specifically refers. It is certainly not to any of the members of this Department who just voted their confidence in the Chief, and who, we might add, did so without fear of reprisal.

We do not, as a group, intend to lower our professional quality or compromise our integrity as a result of pressure or slanderous insinuations. We do intend to pursue all avenues of legal recourse to seek relief from those who would attempt to have us do so.

The whole "issue" is nonsense. Frankly, we are growing weary of it. We would like to be allowed to address ourselves to the work for which we were engaged.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

The Spinnaker Offers A Top Dish Of Finnan Haddie Among Entrees

It happens that I have a fondness for finnan haddie.

So where do you go for good finnan haddie in Marin? To the Spinnaker in Sausalito. It's one of this restaurant's a la carte specialties. You can get it there for lunch or dinner.

Now it's quite possible that you and a lot of other people don't care for finnan haddie quite as much as I do. But I also like the Spinnaker, and I think you will, too.

I guess it is what you would call one of Marin's "proper" restaurants. By that I mean you don't go there dressed too casually, although there is absolutely nothing stuffy about it. It's the kind of place that shows off the county well to tourists - or for that matter to anyone else who likes good food, a nice atmosphere and a superb view in every direction up to about 310 degrees around the compass. Belvedere, Angel Island, the East Bay, the Bay Bridge, San Francisco Bay and San Francisco's skyline, towers of the Golden Gate Bridge, Richardson Bay, Mount Tamalpais — and Sausalito itself.

You're not just next to the water. You're on it.

The Spinnaker's complete dinners, served from 5 to 10 p.m. (Sundays from 2 to 10), are priced from $4.75 to $8.55. But that last is for boneless royal squab which will linger longer in your memory than the price you paid for it.

Go there almost any night and you'll find its tables well filled. Also the cocktail lounge, which is a favorite rendezvous for many. Make reservations for dinner. There's a better chance you'll get one of those tables more quickly.

Go there for lunch and you'll enjoy all the aforementioned sights by the light of day. Or go for brunch on Saturday, Sunday or on a holiday.

Save ahead for a splurge here, if necessary. It's cheaper than going to Hawaii or Acapulco. And when you come right down to it, the view is probably better. Probably the food, too.

MOST AFICIANADOS of Oriental food usually prefer to use chopsticks when eating it.

Much as I try, I have never been very skillful in handling them, due to an accident to my hand in my early youth. So I have to content myself with knife and fork. No chance to appear as "a man of the world" in a Japanese or Chinese restaurant. But I haven't noticed that this impairs in any way my enjoyment of the bite-size morsels set before me.

Until recently, those Marinites who enjoyed eating Japanese food (with or without chopsticks) had to go to San Francisco or somewhere else in indulge themselves. No more. The Fujiyama Restaurant at 2130 Fourth Street on the San Rafael Miracle Mile has already started making a few changes in their habits. It hasn't reduced the bridge traffic — simply altered it, for some of those people crossing the bay are now cruising in this direction to try out the Fujiyama.

This is already a busy place on weekends — particularly on Saturday nights when Atsuko Nakamura comes over from San Francisco to play music which sometimes resembles that of Mozart on the koto, which sometimes sounds like a harpsichord. She is a fine musician and you don't have to be Japanese to appreciate her talent.

Dinners, of course, are the best test of Japanese food. If you are not acquainted with it, make up a party of four or more, with each one ordering a different entree. Do a little swapping between chopsticks and you'll know what you like best on your next trip. Dinners are served from 5:30 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays through Sundays. Closed Mondays.

But another way to improve your education in Japanese viands is to try the Fujiyama at lunch time, which is from noon to 2 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays. There is a larger selection here than you would anticipate — about six special dishes priced from $1.35 to $1.60; four "Meals in a Bowl" from $1.70 to $1.90; and I think 11 a la carte entrees from $2.50 to $3.25. The latter group also includes a combination lunch at $2.75.

Dieters can do well at the Fujiyama, eating sumptuously and not worrying about having to cut down on the next meal's calories.

ONE OF THE YEAR'S busiest days for restaurants is Easter Sunday.

If you plan on dining out this Sunday, recommendations are advised, even though you will find many places open. Most restaurants regularly open on Sundays will be open day after tomorrow.

Le Tonneau in Corte Madera will feature its usual menu — and will also offer spring lamb. Dinner service starts at 4 p.m.

Some places are featuring an Easter brunch. The San Geronimo National Golf Club is one, with service from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. — all you can eat for $2.75.

Franchini's Chateau is having its usual Easter fizz breakfast from 9:15 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. Dinners from 2:15 p.m.

Sabella's in Mill Valley has lots of tables which undoubtedly will be well filled on Easter. This restaurant is serving brunch from 11 a.m. to about 2:30 p.m. and dinners after that to 10 p.m.

NEXT IN THE MONTHLY SERIES of the Kensington Trio gourmet buffet concerts will be on Saturday, a week from tomorrow.

As usual it will be at 7:30 p.m. at Alexander Hall, 48 Kensington Road, San Anselmo. Musicians Wilbur Russell, Stephen Golden and John Bodo will feature the works of Mozart, Chopin and Ross Lee Finney.

Reservations should be made with Tamal Food Service in San Anselmo, which caters the dinner.

IF YOU REMEMBER Jesse Fortner, who used to work as car washer and helper at Locke Bros. Garage in San Rafael and haven't seen him there recently, come to find out, he and his wife (Jessie) have been operating their own restaurant, Jesse's Barbecue Inn, for the past two years at 3963 Gravenstein Highway South in Sebastopol where they live. They have been doing well.

They serve barbecued spareribs, barbecued chicken (on advance order), roast beef sandwiches, hamburgers, hot links, apple pie and a few other goodies. You can eat them there on the premises or take them with you.

Hours are from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays and from 11 a.m. to midnight Fridays and Saturdays. Closed Mondays and Tuesdays.

Marin Institute's Picture Contest

The Marin Institute, a nonprofit psychotherapy center in San Anselmo, will hold a "People Picture Contest" that will award a total of $200 in prizes to winning amateur and professional photographers.

Entries, accompanied by entry forms available in photo shops, libraries, schools and at the Volunteer Bureau of Marin, must be submitted by May 19. Judges will be Ernest Braun, Emme Gilman, Michael Bry and Thomas C. Johnson.

Photo subjects may be individuals, families or couples showing moods, emotions and feelings.

An exhibit of entries will be held at the institute May 28-29 as part of an open house, according to Daniel A. Meyerson, executive director.

Savings Bonds Sales Decrease

Sales of U.S. savings bonds in Marin dipped in February, down as compared to the previous month and compared to February last year, according to the Treasury Department, which furnished these comparative figures: February 1971, $154,086; last January, $163,296, and last February, $148,943.

In Sonoma County, sales were up sharply last February at $167,592 compared to $138,941 the previous month and $115,032 in February 1971.

BACHELOR'S CATCH

The erstwhile most eligible bachelor in Congress — 33-year-old Barry M. Goldwater Jr. (left) — poses with his bride, Susan Lee Gherman, 25, and his father following the mod-ish ceremonies yesterday in a Laguna Beach church. The groom wore a "sock it to me" button beneath his lapel, and a four-man electric band provided pop tunes as wedding music. (UPI Telephoto)

Parties Slated For Candidate

Two parties to introduce Sausalito City Council candidate Robert D. Bauerle to voters are planned for next week.

On April 8, Dr. James L. Fogle, 78 Rodeo Avenue, will hold a cocktail party at his home from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and on April 9, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Jennings will host a wine-tasting party from 4:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. at 1702 Bridgeway.

Bauerle, a Sausalito businessman and founder and president of the Sausalito Businessmen's Association, is one of 11 contenders for three council seats in the April 11 election.

Windows Broken At Two Businesses

Vandals broke windows at two Petaluma businesses on Wednesday, police reported.

Redwood Glass Co., 619 Petaluma Boulevard North, reported a window valued at $350 was broken, while the House of Printing, 824 Petaluma Boulevard South, lost a window valued at $175.

Housing Policy Out Of General Plan

Complaints turned to applause last night when the Corte Madera Planning Commission pulled low and moderate income housing requirements out of the proposed housing statement to the town's general plan.

Zoning administrator William G. McBride said the overflow audience which had arrived leery of any housing element at all gave the commission a standing ovation after most of their demands were met.

Commissioner David I. Freed said, "It was just a pretty spicy time. It turned into a real politicai rally. Candidate Tom (I. Thomas) Zaragoza took the floor for about 20 minutes going through each statement of the housing element and giving his personal opinion as to its merits."

Freed said Ralph Higgins, who has fought the housing element since November, accused him of conflict of interest for sitting on the housing committee which recommended the element, then on the planning commission to approve it.

But apparently everyone went away pleased. "I think we hammered out a very good type of housing proposal," Zaragoza said. He pronounced his supporters "pretty well satisfied."

The commissioners also were satisfied with the changes hammered out in three hours of discussion with the audience and approved them unanimously, McBride said.

McBride said that instead of requiring 20 per cent moderate and low cost housing in new developments the commission agreed that it should "explore" such housing for new developments.

It also decided the town should encourage, not "adopt an ordinance insuring that" some rental units be low and moderately priced, McBride said.

The commission killed proposals to allow bonuses for including low cost units and to help developers contact housing sponsors and obtain information on subsidies.

"The sentiment was the town should not be the moving party; it should be the assisting party," Freed said.

The housing committee, headed by Carol Staley, completed its report describing housing and setting goals as required for federal funds last May, but hearings did not begin until November.

The commission also recommended the town council adopt a fee schedule for design review ranging from $25 to $100 and over for $1 million commercial developments and set April 10 to set a hearing on the tentative map for the first 124 units of the Meadowsweet Station Development, McBride said.

Crowded Kitchen?

NEW YORK (UPI) —Crowded in the kitchen at mealtime: Maybe you ought to get out a tape measure and do a little figuring to see if the crowding is real —or just in your mind. A seating company in Chicago says the optimum area needed is the size of the table plus two feet on each side.

Five Face Arraignment Monday In Drug Case

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Five persons arrested in a San Rafael parking lot March 21 are due for arraignment Monday before U.S. Magistrage David R. Urdan on various narcotics charges.

Indicted by a federal grand jury Wednesday were Charles H. W. Cannon and Sandra Cannon, both of College Park, Md., and Duane Kenny, address unknown, on a charge of possession with intent to sell five pounds of amphetamines and Elliot Valderrama and Joan Valderrama, both of Oakland, on a charge of aiding and abetting possession of amphetamines.

Both counts have the same maximum penalties, five years in prison and/or a $15,000 fine.

The arrest took place, according to Asst. U.S. Attorney James L. Hazard, after five pounds of speed were handed to undercover narcotics agents in the Northgate Unit One shopping area.

All five remained in custody today in lieu of $50,000 bail.

Ships Capsize; 11 Feared Dead

TOKYO (UPI)—Two small Japanese freighters capsized in stormy seas during the night with the loss of 25 seamen.

Heavy rains lashed nearby southern Korean, leaving at least 11 persons dead in that nation.

The Buko Maru, a 2,200-ton freighter with 24 crewmen aboard, capsized sometime Thursday night or early today in heavy seas in the Pacific Ocean off central Japan.

A fishing boat located the capsized ship shortly after dawn. Japan's maritime safety agency launched two aircraft and three patrol boats to search for possible survivors.

Emergency In Humboldt Floods

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A state of emergency has been declared by Lt. Gov. Reinecke in Humboldt County, which suffered flood damage from heavy rains in January.

Reinecke, acting governor, also asked President Nixon to declare both Humboldt and Del Norte counties major disaster areas to make them eligible for federal relief.

In his request to the President Tuesday, Reinecke said the two counties had suffered $5.5 million in damage from heavy winds, rain, flooding and mud and silt slides. He said restoration work costs were set at $6.8 million.

The trail is in the Laurel-Snow Pocket Wilderness, a 710-acre tract set aside by Bowaters Southern Paper Corp. for protection in its natural state.

WORD-A-DAY

Computer For Mass Heart Tests Near

STANFORD (UPI)—A group of Stanford University School of Medicine scientists today said they are developing a computer system able to diagnose heart disease in mass screening of the country's population.

The team is headed by Dr. Jobst von der Groeben, a professor of anesthesia and medicine.

"Our basic goal is to develop a research-validated, fully-automated method to conduct mass screening of the population as to cardiovascular risk," he said.

Von der Groeben said computerized diagnosis and screening could help prolong or save the lives of many potential victims. Heart disease, a leading cause of death in the United States, kills more than 600,000 persons in the country annually.

The system involves a preprocessing digital computer and a larger computer which undertakes the analysis.

The cardiologist began accumulating data for the project in 1969 when his team recorded the electrocardiograms (EKG) of 1,180 volunteers in Modesto, Calif.

Each volunteer was also given a physical examination and blood test. Two months ago, the team returned to Modesto and tested 1,400 volunteers, including 800 of the original group.

AID PROGRAM

Jobs Could Begin During May

By CARL INGRAM

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—State officials hope the first 4,500 California welfare recipients will be on the job in May and June under Gov. Ronald Reagan's already delayed work-for-it-or-lose-it public aid program.

Welfare rights attorneys, meantime, are filing a last-ditch protest with the Nixon administration and are preparing to challenge the experimental new "California Community Work Experience Program" in court. The vanguard of able-bodied recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) will undergo training for regular permanent jobs and actually work for state and county governments in exchange for their welfare grants.

Others later may be assigned to work for nonprofit organizations such as Red Cross. Working for private industry is prohibited.

"During the first two months, the goal is to put 4,500 people into program projects," said state Social Welfare Director Robert B. Carleson. "This will depend on the Human Resources Development Department and the counties being able to gear up for it."

When Reagan announced Nixon administration approval of the California experiment earlier in the month, he said its implementation would start April 1.

But the California Welfare Rights Organization (CWRO) and the National Welfare Rights Organization obtained a federal court order which had the effect of blocking implementation until May 1. The two groups want to file objections to the plan with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The program will involve 58,000 recipients in 35 California counties who will sign up for 56 types of community service tasks ranging from clerical aides, to janitor, to sign maintenance helper and schoolyard monitor. Most will be unemployed fathers.

During the first full year, about 30,000 will receive work assignments and be required to work up to 80 hours a month or lose their welfare grants.

Richard Malcolm, a deputy to Carleson, said officials hope that Alameda, Fresno, Kern, Madera, Orange, San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara counties will be the first to implement the three-year experiment.

Malcolm and Peter Rank, a deputy director of Human Resources Development, said that so far local officials have been "enthusiastic" about the idea.

"We have received no negative responses from our contacts with the counties," Rank said.

He added no local officials have voiced concern about the work productivity of welfare recipients and noted that 80 hours constitutes only half the normal work month. Recipients theoretically would spend the other 80 hours in search of regular full-time employment.

"The objective is to get them into a regular job and off welfare," Rank said.

Under the program, attempts first will be made to channel able-bodied recipients with a marketable skill into regular jobs. If they need training, they will be referred to training programs.

If there is no training program available, they will be required to work 80 hours in a community work experience activity or be bumped off welfare.

The "vast majority" of work activities will be government agencies but the welfare recipients will not be taken aboard to displace regular workers, Rank said. Some will even help administer the program.

"Our department certainly will use program participants," Rank said. "Recipients will help place others in the program."

The California Welfare Rights Organization has condemned the project as "involuntary servitude" and plans to file a lawsuit to block it in April. A CWRO spokesman said there is little doubt that the Nixon administration will heed its objections to the plan.

Riles Launches Drive For Quake-Proof Funds

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —State schools chief Wilson Riles today opened a statewide campaign for a $350 million bond issue to make California schools earthquake-proof by warning its defeat could leave one million schoolchildren "with nowhere to go."

Riles told a news conference the funds are "urgently" needed for 221 local school districts with classrooms ruled structurally unsafe by state earthquake standards.

The bond issue, which has the support of Gov. Ronald Reagan and top legislative leaders, is on the June ballot.

"Failure to pass Prop. 2," Riles said, "may well leave one million California schoolchildren with nowhere to go, or in classrooms so overcrowded that good education will be impossible," Riles said.

The bond issue will provide $250 million through state loans to 221 school districts in 54 counties for the replacement or rehabilitation of nearly 1,600 buildings adjudged unsafe by earthquake safety standards of the Field Act.

Another $100 million would be provided for the continued financing of school building construction in rapid growth districts where bond debt capacity has reached its limit.

Riles appeared at the news conference kicking off the bond issue campaign with Samuel B. Stewart of San Francisco, state chairman of Californians for Quake-Safe Schools and senior vice-chairman of the board of Bank of America.

"My honest assessment is that the bond issue will be approved," Stewart said. "But it will not pass if there is complacency about it."

Riles said that the school buildings presently below the state earthquake safety standards must be rebuilt, replaced or abandoned by 1975. "Our concern is for the children now in those buildings," he said.

Stewart said the bond issue, if approved, would make available "low-cost" state loans to districts needing them, but that the money will have to be paid back.

"All loans will be on a matching fund basis so that local district participation is assured," Stewart said, adding that districts not requiring earthquake safety loans will not be involved in bond repayment.

Riles said, "We all know that another major earthquake is not only a possibility in California, but its occurrence is only a matter of time. We must give our children school buildings that will be able to withstand the inevitable shock."

African Passenger Train Derailed

JOHANNESBURG (UPI)—A passenger train filled with Africans derailed near Potgeitersrus, 136 miles north of Johannesburg today, a spokesman for railways headquarters said.

At least 32 Africans were killed and 135 injured, the spokesman said. Railway police said they found "signs of sabotage" at the wreckage site, but would not elaborate.

U.S. Position Shaky On European Economy

By TAKASHI OKA
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

PARIS — The United States and Western Europe, allies across the Atlantic for the past quarter century, have entered a critical and delicate period in their relationship with each other.

No responsible observer cares to forecast disaster. But the danger of an unwanted and largely unconscious drift into an adversary relationship seems alarmingly real to a number of senior officials who have been tending transatlantic ties for most of their active careers.

"It's easy to put out motherhood type statements," says Robert Schaetzel, the immensely able United States Ambassador to the European Communities in Brussels. "What worries me are the 'but' clauses that follow them — on both sides of the Atlantic."

The newspapers, as a matter of fact, are full of these 'but' clauses. On the European side: "Our fundamental security interests coincide with those of the United States, but . . ." Then follow attacks on alleged American lack of fiscal discipline, on nonconvertible dollars flooding Europe, on American corporations buying up or squeezing out their European competitors.

On the American side: "Of course we favor a united Europe, but . . ." The Europeans are selfish, they think only of their own interests, they are not appreciative enough of the security burden or the key currency role the United States has assumed for so many post war years.

"If the United States withdraws any substantial portion of its troops now in Europe," a high official of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization said flatly, "NATO will be finished." Far from frightening the European members of NATO into stepping up their own defense efforts, this official felt, such a move would only lead to mutual recrimination and to a stampede by the Europeans to cut their own defense costs — at the very moment when the prospect of serious disarmament talks with the Soviet Union requires that the West maintain a maximum bargaining position by keeping up a believable defense shield.

The serious frictions between the United States and Western Europe are all in the economic field. At the political level, senior officials are convinced, there is good understanding between the leaders of the most important countries concerned — President Nixon, Prime Minister Edward Heath, Chancellor Willy Brandt, President Pompidou.

But in the economic field, despite the Washington agreements last December devaluing the dollar and fixing new parities for most of the world's major currencies, there is deep uneasiness in Europe that the United States has not shown sufficient determination to tighten its own bootstraps and that a new dollar crisis may be around the corner.

Wednesday the dollar weakened in European markets in the wake of news that the United States trade deficit in February was the second highest in history.

"We've run out of gas," said Treasury Undersecretary Paul Volcker here Tuesday. "Who will be the United States of the 1970's — who will be willing to run the deficits in the 1970's that we did in the '50's, and '60's?"

In the meantime, the United States faces presidential elections in November. France and West Germany have parliamentary elections coming up next year.

Britain is preoccupied with Northern Ireland and with the details of joining the enlarged European Economic Community. On both sides of the Atlantic, domestic preoccupations dominate.

For instance, Washington's effort to get better access to European markets for its own agricultural products has both domestic and international implications. This year there is little question that domestic considerations will have priority — the administration needs the farm vote.

The same kind of calculation goes on in Europe. Irritations in the economic field can quickly spread into the security field, and what many officials here fear is that Congress may rather easily find itself in the mood to pass some new version of Sen. Mike Mansfiald's resolution calling for the partial withdrawal of American troops from Europe.

THE EASTER bonnet? Two of the styles women around the country are buying this spring are the cartwheel (top) and the Ali McGraw pull-down cloche. The cartwheel Panama straw is revived this year, here with a flat crown treatment by designer Don Anderson. The cloche here is fashioned by Betmar of natural gunny sack fabric with turned up brim of white stitched denim. (UPI Telephotos)

THE BONNET

It Reminds You Of Ali McGraw

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—What's white, soft as marshmallow and reminds you of actress Ali McGraw? It's your Easter bonnet, if you're buying what most of the women of all ages around the country are buying this spring.

The best selling color in spring and summer millinery is white, followed closely by the pale beiges, reports Helen Gallagher, Fashion Coordinator, the Millinery Institute of America.

In shape, number one is the young-looking pull-down cloche that either envelops the hair (if it's short) or lets the long straight strands hang out beneath its no-brim or small brim. It usually comes in soft felt, jersey or the cottons, then straws, and is the shape that became the McGraw trademark.

NEXT IN popularity is the extreme opposite—the big, floppy brimmed numbers, some of them practically hiding a girl's face. Then follow "anything nautical" shapes including berets and visors.

Added big starters in colors are reds, navies and a green sharp and "acid" in tone. Milliners are reviving an oldtime favorite, the Panama, a straw which actually is made in Ecuador, leaving it naturally soft and either natural in color or dyed in pastels.

The whole mood for spring and summer is youthful, said Burt Champion of the Institute. "There is no such thing anymore as an old lady hat," he said, "no matter what age is wearing it."

The fact that a whole new generation is growing up and taking to hats heartens an industry which Champion said was currently doing about $300 million retail a year, down about $60 million in the last 10 years.

"The teased hairdo hurt us terribly," said Champion. "So did wigs. But now the teased hairdos are gone and the wigs are in trouble."

Milliners are encouraged by the general fashion trend—away with the kooky, thrown-together look and back to "dressing up". They're encouraged too that women want to change their looks often so instead of buying one expensive dress, suit or hat will spread the same amount of money over several items.

The whole feminine look for spring is like that of hats—soft, pretty, often nostalgic of the 1930s and 1940s looks.

Anyway, it's away from the gypsy, the peasant, and back to cleancut shapes, to the tidy and elegant look. Spring and summer clothes are shaped to the figure, basically slender with widened shoulders, the waistline nipped in, with or without a belt. Whatever their cut, pleats, godets, flares or gathers all give skirts a flare at the hem.

Evening fashions bare the back all the way to the waist, cover the front with the classic halter. Hemlines no longer are a debate. For daytime, most just cover the knees although a lot of women with excellent pegs will hang onto the modified mini come warm weather.

She Thought It Was Going To Be A Children's Bazaar . . .

Mrs. Frank Kelly of San Rafael thought she was going to a children's bazaar at the Stinson Beach Community Center Sunday. Arriving at the center, the first person she saw was Judge David Menary.

"I thought, 'How nice of Judge Menary to attend a children's bazaar,' and then I spotted my sister-in-law, Helen Diez, playing the piano she said.

At this point Catherine Kelly realized that she was not at a children's bazaar but at a party planned by her daughter, Mrs. Edmond McGillicuddy, to celebrate her and Mr. Kelly's 50th wedding anniversary.

Looking around the room she spotted her grandchildren, Garth Gilmartin, 11, Kelly Gilmartin, 9, who live with their mother, Beverly McGillicuddy, in Stinson Beach, and James Kelly of Dillon Beach, son of the Kellys' late son, Francis J. Kelly. His widow and another son, Francis, live in Alaska and were unable to attend the party.

The former Catherine Damianovich was born in Sacramento. Frank Kelly is a native of San Francisco, where both attended Mission High School. They did not meet in high school but were introduced at a dance a few years later in San Francisco. Their marriage took place on March 22, 1922, in a cathedral in Sacramento.

The couple lived in San Francisco for six months and then moved to San Rafael. Two years later they moved to their present home on Prospect Avenue.

Mr. Kelly was in the plumbing business before beginning a long career in law enforcement in 1933 when he joined the California Highway Patrol. In 1935 he became undersheriff of Marin County, serving until 1941 when he joined the San Rafael Police Department as a sergeant. He was elected chief after a year and a half in the department and served for 16 years. He worked briefly at Marin County Jail until his appointment as police chief of Sonoma in 1959.

After two years living in El Verano, the Kellys returned to Marin, where the former chief became district automotive and yard supervisor for Marin Municipal Water District. He retired from this position after setting up a new safety program for the district in 1966.

Mrs. Kelly's hobbies are sewing, gardening and knitting. She has been a member of Marinita Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, for 42 years, and she also belongs to the Needlework Guild of America.

Mr. Kelly enjoys traveling — especially if the destination is Reno, he said. Fishing and playing the drums are his hobbies, and he led Kelly's Orchestra for many years. He still has a three or four-piece combo that plays occasionally at the San Rafael Yacht Club. Frank Kelly is the past president of Sons in Retirement, Mount Tamalpais Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West, Marin County Peace Officers Association and Bay Counties Peace Officers Association, of which he is a life member.

Anniversary celebrations for the Kellys began last week when they renewed their vows in a ceremony performed by their nephew, Rev. John Diez of Star of the Sea Catholic Church in San Francisco, at a party hosted by nieces, Mrs. John Higgins and Mrs. John Welch, at the Higgins's home in San Francisco. — J.L.

Wrap-Method Rap Tips Given By Manufacturers

With roasting wrap — a newcomer to oven cookery — some special precautions are advised by manufacturers in using the roast-in-the-wrap method.

Twist ends of the wrap tightly and turn them to prevent juices from leaking into the roasting pan. More liquid will accumulate in the bag than in open oven roasting — up to two quarts.

Always sprinkle on tablespoon of flour on the wrap before placing the meat on it. That will reduce chances of splattering and popping of hot grease in the oven.

Always place the wrapped meat in a pan large and deep enough to contain all the meat and any juices that may escape. The large pan prevents any grease that may escape from catching fire through contact with the heating element.

Never use roasting wrap in the broiler nor place the pan on the bottom plate of a gas oven. Never use heat above 400 degrees. And never use the wrap for lining pans. Use foil istead.

Always pierce the top of the wrapped meat with a fork in several places to prevent ballooning and to allow steam to escape.

Advantages of roasting inside the wrap is that the method retains the meat's natural juices and meat can be cooked faster and at a higher temperature because of the wrap.

When Unwanted Child Is Born

An unwanted child is born when an abortion is denied, according to a psychiatrist, Dr. Carol Nadelson of Harvard Medical School.

Doctor Nadelson, who is on the staff at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston, has told her medical colleagues that only the woman should decide whether to terminate a pregnancy. Her opinion is based on a study in Sweden, where 120 children, born after their mothers were refused therapeutic abortions, were paired with a control group of similar but wanted children. After 21 years the unlonged-for children showed evidence of psychiatric illness, crime, alcoholism and public dependence to a much greater degree than the wanted children.

Another study of 213 unwanted children showed many physical and mental impairments.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

The Retired Service Husband Should Get A Small Chance

DEAR HELEN:

My husband has been in the service for 20 years. He didn't want me along in all those (sometimes) fascinating places. Said the children should be raised "with roots." So I stayed home, cared for them when they were sick, managed a house by myself — and was very lonely.

He enjoyed himself. I'm sure there were women — probably the reason we weren't included. About all I can say for my 20 years is that I reared two fine girls and that my husband partially supported us (though I worked, also).

Now he's talking of retiring. His health isn't too good and he wants to come home to a wife who will wait on him — with no small children underfoot. (He's actually glad our daughters are grown and gone, as "kids get on his nerves.") The last time he was here on leave I couldn't stand him.

Must I accept a full-time husband who wouldn't accept me with him all those years? — STILL YOUNG

DEAR S.Y.:

No! If you "can't stand" your husband — and he evidently isn't desolate without you — then you'd both be miserable, living together full time. Tell him how you feel, and why . . . but give him one more chance before you make the final break. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm newly married (since February). Dell and I are both 23.

Yesterday morning I woke up early and couldn't go back to sleep again. I got to thinking how much I loved my husband, so I blew in his ear and kissed him. It was only a half-hour before he had to wake up anyway, but he told me to stop bothering him. Later he said it's the man's place to make the advances.

I'm afraid he thinks I'm too bold or something. Am I? — PUZZLED

DEAR PUZ:

I'm afraid your husband doesn't know a good wife when he has one, or something!

No, you're not too bold — and Dell should come out of the 18th century. Also he should learn to wake up appreciative. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

A certain young couple had "set the date," and had received many shower gifts.

Then they called the wedding off. They decided on a trial period first, and if this works out, maybe they'll get married next year.

A lot of us feel that if they didn't go through with the ceremony, they should return the gifts, even though they're using them jointly in their apartment — or at least have them stored there.

Wouldn't this be proper etiquette? — GIFT "RAPPING"

DEAR G.R.:

I don't think etiquette books have worked around to this sticky problem yet.

But . . . inasmuch as a wedding is still planned (sometime), the couple must feel they have a right to the gifts. Anyway, they've effectively turned off the showers for the next try: You won't need to give again — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I have a neighbor who is at my house from morning till night. It bugs me because I never get a chance to get my work done. She just sits and talks even when I say I'm busy. How to you get rid of a boring leach? Without making an enemy of her? — BUGGED

DEAR B:

Times don't change — neighborwise. The first letter I received as a columnist, some 14 years ago, concerned this identical problem. And my answer then, as now, was: "Hand her a broom." The leach will light elsewhere if you push her into housework. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Write to Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Nursing Profession—Sad State

By SANDRA HAGGERTY
(Distributed by Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

The black woman had been placed in the small, private hospital by her white physician who had performed major abdominal surgery on her. During her stay in the hospital, where the small staff was all white, she received the very minimum of treatment from the nursing staff.

When her doctor was on the scene, the nurses were all smiles. But the minute he left the hospital, they resumed their cold, indifferent treatment Such details as the daily back rub prescribed for nonambulatory patients, were omitted for her, while the white woman in the next bed, who had undergone a similar operation, received a back rub daily. Nothing was said, but somehow, the nurses just never "touched" the black woman.

Several white readers have written describing incidents where they were hostilely treated by black nurses — nurses who made it perfectly clear they did not like white people.

The nursing profession (the entire medical profession for that matter) is probably one of the saddest places for racist attitudes to surface because patients are incapacitated and at the mercy of these Florence Nightingales in white.

WHAT I find interesting and even amusing, although I wouldn't have dared to verbalize while I was in the hospital and at the "disposal" of these "sympathetic healers of mankind", is the strictly outlined and revered military hierarchy that exists among the nurses. This army in white is probably one of the most racially integrated armies. Nursing, like teaching, has long been one of the "safe" professions for blacks to go into. Consequently, there are many black nurses.

When the doctors are on the scene, these women exude dedication and concern. But when they're on their own, rank surges to the fore and the military maneuvers begin.

Granted, when you're sick, your ability to judge the hospital environment may be limited, but the nurses, and how they service you, can make or break your hospital stay.

From the get-go, there are some nurses and aides who just shouldn't be. Their dislike and distaste of the job are more than obvious.

On the other hand, there are some really fantastic nurses — those who actually live up to the television soap opera image of women in white.

IF ONE'S hospital stay is extensive enough, he begins to hear the constant talk between and about the nurses — the intrigue of who's doing, or not doing, what. The enlisted men (nurses aides) have little positive to say about the sergeants (LVNs), and they (the sergeants) in turn have little positive to say about the brass (RNs).

From a lowly patient's point of view it seems that those nurses with the most credentials do the least amount of actual work. The brass give out medications in tiny white cups (weight, nil), while the enlisted force lift patients, give baths and enemas and clean up regurgitated lunch, jobs which require some expertise in psychology and anatomy.

But what duties one can perform are based upon one's credentials. After having the educational requirements for receiving credentials on each level of nursing — RN, LVN and nurses aide — carefully explained, I still have one question. Who has "credentials" to put down the sides of those doggone beds — when a patient is in a hurry and been told by the doctor not to leap over the bars? Since every duty is so clearly specified, I wish they would add this detail to the nursing manual.

Sometimes Women Must Cry Out For Marriage 'Rights'

I-J Special Report

NEW YORK — Most women feel they must act "dependent" to make their marriages work, according to Dr. Alexandra Symonds, but deep down it makes them pretty angry.

Dr. Symonds is an assistant professor at New York University's College of Medicine and a staff psychiatrist at the Karen Horney Clinic.

Although Dr. Symonds notes that dependency in itself is not negative, it becomes neurotic, she says, "when the individual denies his own needs and relinquishes his own best interests out of fear and anxiety." This happens frequently in marriage, she maintains, and it's usually the woman who does the relinquishing.

It all begins early in childhood, the psychiatrist points out, when boys are encouraged to be self-assertive while girls are not. "Those girls who do assert themselves," Dr. Symonds points out, "are made to feel aggressive and masculine and they generally react with guilt." Yet the distinction must be made between self-assertion and aggression.

Dr. Symonds describes self-assertion as "a moving toward something in one's own behalf," and aggression as "a hostile act against other people." When they're confused with each other, a woman who tries to act in her own behalf can be made to feel she's acting against someone else's interests, she said.

THE PSYCHIATRIST believes that one of the "worst influences" on a woman is the insistence that she find a boyfriend early in life and get married, or else she won't be considered "feminine," and instead, "not human." Thus, while adolescent boys are developing their own interests and identities, she observes, adolescent girls are devoting all their energies to tracking down a husband. "Most girls who do marry," Dr. Symonds pointed out, "have given so little thought to their own development, they must live vicariously through their husbands and children."

WOMEN WHO deny their own self-interests in this way, build up a tremendous sense of "impotent and unconscious" rage, the doctor declares. Since they can't express this rage openly without threatening their marriage, "they always appear loving and kind on the surface, but express their anger indirectly in various ways." They can become sniping, spiteful or malicious people. They can develop psychosomatic ailments and phobias. Some may become resentful mothers, directing their anger at their children.

When the children eventually grow up and leave home, Dr. Symonds declares, the mature women, having seen themselves exclusively as wives and mothers —are confronted with an identity crisis their male contemporaries faced 20 years earlier. Many feel so useless at this time, she says, they become frightened and quite depressed. The psychiatrist has treated quite a few who've sought out psychotherapy.

Those who are "fairly well put-together," Dr. Symonds reports, realize that since they no longer have the anxieties and responsibilities of child care and don't have to be home at a certain hour, "they can begin to make their lives more interesting." They go back to work, back to school or get involved in activities. Some, she says, are "fantastic" and start new careers for themselves. Many tell her "they've never been so happy in their lives."

13-Step Bicycle Safety Check – And A New Emblem To Mark Its Value

Look for the new 1972 bicycle safety check emblem, especially designed as an official seal to denote that a bicycle rider has successfully passed the 13-step bicycle inspection. It's an emblem of thoughtfulness and carefulness — showing that a bicycle rider is thoughtful and careful enough about himself and his fellow bicycle rider about road safety, and showing that the bicycle rider wants to reduce injury accidents.

BICYCLE SAFETY CHECK 1972

In California during 1970, 6,845 bicyclists were involved in fatal or injury accidents. Eighty-nine of these accidents resulted in death — almost all of the remaining accidents resulted in injuries to the bicyclist.

In Marin County during 1970 there were 50 bicyclists injured in traffic accidents, of these 22 were in incorporated cities and 28 were in unincorporated areas (county roads.).

'Significant Damage' From Spring Frost

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Freezing temperatures and killer-frost Sunday night and Monday caused "significant damage" to major fruit-producing areas in California, the state Agriculture Department reported yesterday.

The department said the full extent of the damage is not now known but "it appears a sizable acreage of grapes and deciduous fruits and nuts received damage."

The department said the region from Fresno to Visalia was apparently the worst hit.

It said grapes, raisins, walnuts, almonds, Freestone peaches, plums and nectarines were damaged in varying degrees up to total loss in some orchards.

In the Porterville-Shafter region, frost damage to grapes was generally light but heavy losses were reported in some vineyards. Tree fruit damage in the area was "relatively light," the department said.

Light damage to fruit crops also was reported in Fresno, San Joaquin, Stanislaus and Merced counties.

The department said frost damage to wine grapes in the Napa-Sonoma county area was light because growth there was in the early stages.

Pears and wine grapes suffered moderate damage in Lake and Mendocino counties, with pears hardest hit n the Potter and Ukiah valleys and near Kelseyville.

Plum orchards in the Loomis area of Placer County and pear orchards in the Camino area of El Dorado County suffered "considerable damage," the report said.

However, citrus crops escaped with little or no damage and damage to vegetable crops was light. Young tomato plants in the San Joaquin Valley and Central Coast area were damaged but, in most cases, they are expected to recover.

Red Measles Shots Urged

County health officials urged parents today to have their young children immunized against common red measles, which has caused several deaths this year in Southern California.

Dr. Marilyn Hicks, asst. county health officer, said families may be immunized for $2 per family at the county's health clinic, 920 Grand Avenue, San Rafael.

She said so far this year the outbreak of six red measles cases in Marin is slight compared to the first three months last year when 17 cases were reported.

However, she warned, the measles epidemic in Los Angeles and Riverside counties could work its way north.

Not to be confused with Rubella, or German measles, common red measles is a relatively severe viral disease of children — especially preschool children — which is preventable through immunization.

Red Party Aide Dies in China

HONG KONG (UPI) — Peking Radio announced yesterday the death of Hsieh Fu-chin, vice premier and a member of the powerful political bureau (Politburo) of the Chinese Communist party's central committee.

He was the second major Chinese leader to die this year. Foreign Minister Chen Yi died Jan. 6 at the age of 71.

Hsieh, 63, died March 26, according to Premier Chou En-lai in a eulogy delivered at memorial services.

Chou said Hsieh had been suffering from stomach cancer for two years and had undergone an operation but "could not be healed."

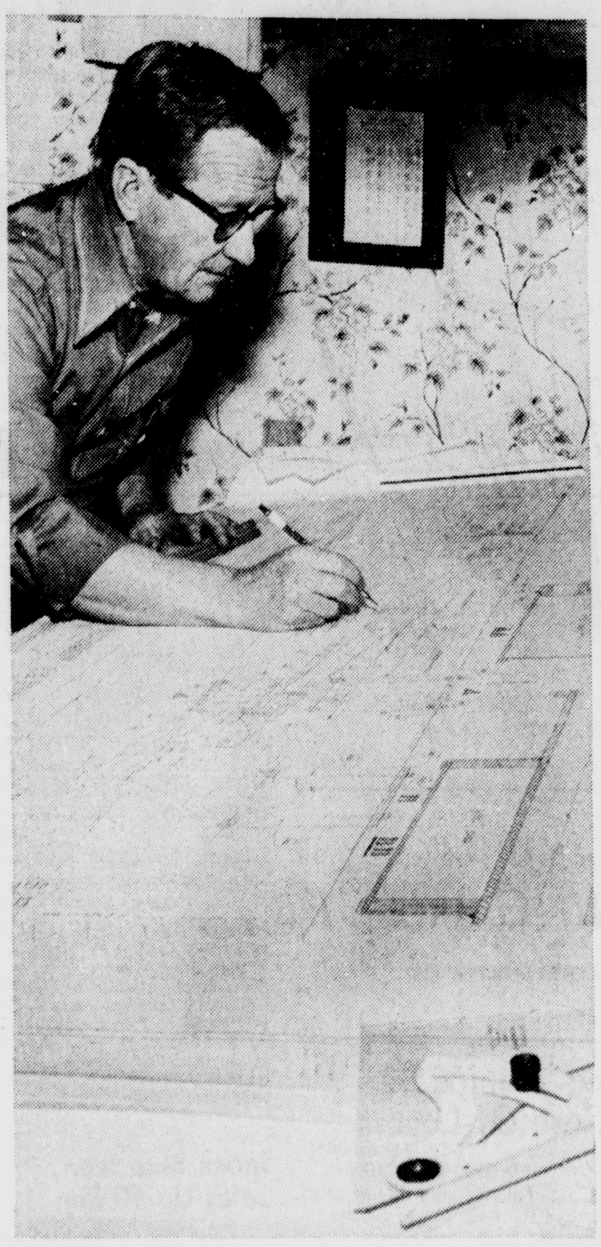
He's Bringing Back The Good Old (Flying) Days

By MARC NURRE

The Wright Brothers at Kitty Hawk couldn't be sure of success, but a group of Marin weekend craftsmen, working on much the same project, are confident.

They're patiently sawing, sanding and hammering their way toward the day — in most cases years hence — when they can climb into their creation, roar down a runway and take to the air.



AT DRAWING BOARD — Carter works on drawings from which his airplane will be made.

James R. Carter, of Mill Valley, started work on his dream airplane, a three-quarter size P-51 Mustang, five years ago, and he figures he's about two-thirds finished.

An aeronautical engineer, the 46-year-old Carter is one of more than 15 airplane builders in the county who belong to the Experimental Aircraft Association, a national group headquartered in Wisconsin.

In promoting experimental airplanes, the club is offering "seat-of-the-pants" flying both to pilots who never knew it, and to men who did and miss it.

Carter flew a P-51 Mustang during World War II and in the Korean War, and said many other members of the club have been flying for a long time. One, he said, is a check pilot in a 747 jet, but flys a little biplane which he built on weekends.

Carter is building his plane, (at his home and at a rented Mill Valley studio) he said, because, "if I wasn't going to build it, I couldn't afford to buy it. If I could buy it, I couldn't afford to maintain it."

But it takes work.

Carter, a bachelor, finds plane building an all-consuming interest, and estimates that he has spent 9,000 hours on mechanical drawings for this plane in the past few years.

Although his airplane looks like a smaller version of a P-51, he has incorporated many of his own designs in the internal structure — all of which had to be mapped out painstakingly on paper before the actual work began.

In his landing gear assembly alone, he said, he used 88 drawings.

He is molding his airplane out of a fiberglass-like plastic, and has to make the molds himself. He plans to use a highly modified Chevrolet V-8 engine.

How much has it cost him?

"I've got envelopes I stick receipts in, but I don't even know," he said. "I guess now I don't want to know."

Carter said, "Some people figure they can't afford to buy an airplane so they build it. They think it's cheaper, and it might be. But usually it's just spreading the cost around."

He said $1,000 might cover the cost of materials for an extremely simple airplane, but anyone planning to build one should figure on spending more.

Many people give up. "You find a lot of ads for half-built airplanes," he said.

The airplanes are checked by the Federal Aviation Agency twice during their construction and once before their first take-off. Then during the first 50 hours of operation they are restricted to flying in a "safe" area so that in case trouble arises, only the pilot may be hurt. After that, they can go anywhere.

"The safety record has been extremely good," he said. "And the workmanship would surprise anybody." Quality is high, he said, because of the interest and the dedication. "Of course, we're not building airliners, just simple airplanes."

Another member of the club, Ray W. Foreaker Jr., of San Rafael county director of public works, is working on a small biplane in his garage. "I wanted a fully aerobatic airplane," he said. "You couldn't buy an airplane commercially that could match this."

He, too, cited the high quality of construction, but he said it's strictly a matter of pride in workmanship rather than a desire for safety. "You can be pretty sloppy and still meet that criteria," he said.

He has been building his for more than three years and hopes to have it finished and fly it back to an association convention in Oshkosh next summer, flying by day and sleeping by night.

Carter said the association welcomes interest and that anyone may attend its meetings, held on the last Wednesday of the month at 7:30 p.m. at Building 32 on the Santa Rosa Junior College campus.

Council Plans New Map Study

Consideration of a map showing key ridgelands above Tiburon will be the major item on the agenda of a special city council meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at city hall, according to Tiburon city mgr. Bert A. Balmer.

He said the map, prepared by the city staff, is in connection with city plans for open space preservations.

Other proposals to be considered, he said, will be the possibility of rezoning lands upon which development has been halted by a moratorium on building, and hiring of a financial consultant to advise the city on the best way to raise money to acquire land, and to act as a bond consultant if the city votes to sell general obligation bonds.

The planning commission, normally scheduled to meet that night, will meet instead on Wednesday at its regular time and place.

Novato Hopefuls All Agree Holding The Line On Taxes

By FRANK FARRARA

Novato City Council candidates yesterday offered variations on the theme of holding the line on taxes.

Nine of the 11 candidates in the April 11 municipal election talked at a Novato Chamber of Commerce luncheon about ways to provide city services without raising taxes.

(Anthony M. Gullotta, assistant county elections officer, and Donald Richards, school district personnel director, were absent.)

The parks and recreation department drew fire from two candidates and was defended by candidate Geoffrey J. Bywater Jr., a recreation commissioner.

Daniel P. Donovan, attorney and pharmacist, said the recreation commission's proposal to earmark $100,000 toward purchase of the O'Hair property, Sutro Avenue and Novato Boulevard, "would be an unwise expenditure of public funds that should go for more urgent community needs."

The way to operate within the current tax rate is to set priorities, Donovan said. "I don't think the recreation department has to provide all our recreation, and if we have to cut, that's one place," he said.

Carlos M. Newton, a construction firm partner, criticized the recreation department for spending money on "yoga classes, baby sitting classes and dog training."

As for the recreation commission's proposal for a 30-cent override tax rate for capital improvements, Newton said "this is an absolute waste."

Newton said the city could "get better services" within the current tax rate and charged the public works department was "blowing the money."

Bywater said he didn't believe the parks and recreation department has wasted money. "They offer an awful lot of services, he said.

He said there could be "better coordination" between the parks and recreation department and the Novato Unified School District, and that there was a need for a large park which could accommodate a youth center and pool.

Fred F. Ruegg said taxes must be stabilized since "too many taxpayers are already at the breaking point," and city services should be limited to those that can be provided within the present tax rate.

Street reapirs are needed and they should be made "as rapidly as finances permit," he said.

Dorothy P. Young, an attorney, said streets must be repaired and sidewalk improvements made in school areas, but "there should be another bond election" on financing of major street improvements.

She said she would favor "public recreation" rather than spending funds for the purchase of a "rural park," and listed the need for a community pool, tennis courts and neighborhood parks.

Edward T. Ryken, executive director of the Marin County Senior Coordinating Council, said the tax problem involves all other taxing agencies in the area.

To stabilize taxes, the city has to "take an active role in coordination of the various taxing agencies," water district, fire district, sanitary district, etc., Ryken said.

David Price Jones, an attorney, said certain services such as police are necessary and the police department now has the "bare necessity."

One additional police officer would cost the owner of an average home an additional $1.40 a year. "I think that's reasonable," he said.

Jones, an incumbent, defended the city's street repair program, financed by a 30-cent override tax rate, and said 30 miles of streets have been overlaid in the past three years.

John N. Morrison, an investment firm owner, said the city could gain revenue without raising taxes by better investment of funds.

He advocated adding to the tax rolls by annexing unincorporated areas adjacent to the city which get the benefits of city improvements such as streets and parks, but don't contribute to paying the cost.

John C. Schoonover, an auditing executive, said: "I don't think the improvement of services should or does automatically increase the tax rate."

Schoonover said the need for services should be examined fully before they are provided. "The existing revenues are inadequate to fund new programs," he said.

Candidates also expressed their views on a housing moratorium, with Donovan, Ruegg, Young and Newton strongly opposed.

Ryken said he would consider approving a moratorium if necessary to preserve the "quality of life" in the community. "I won't say I'd vote for or against," he said. "Let me suggest a moratorium isn't beyond the realm."

Morrison said declaring a moratorium in Novato wouldn't have any value unless Marin County also declared one in the unincorporated area of North Marin.

Jones said he would consider a moratorium if bad projects started to appear.

Bywater said he favored a moratorium last fall, but "now I don't think we need one."

Schoonover said he was opposed to the theory that any "growth is good in itself," and believed the determination of the city's future should be made by residents of the community.

As to the city's sign ordinance, candidates generally believed that it was reasonable, but some sections might have adverse effects on business and the council should work with merchants on knotty problems.

Botanist Plans Two Lectures

Botanist Gladys Smith will deliver illustrated talks on California's native plants on April 18 at the Mill Valley Library and on May 2 at the Novato branch of the Marin County Library.

The lectures will concentrate on spring and summer floral displays, plant habitats, plant adaptations, endangered species and native plants that thrive in gardens. Mrs. Smith is a former ranger-naturalist with the National Park Service and has written books in her field.

The lectures, to begin at 10 a.m. in both Mill Valley and Novato, are sponsored by the University of California Extension, Berkeley. A fee will be charged.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Before Attacking Trumps Be Sure To Take Care Of Losers

During the past 20 years, scientists have discovered that we are influenced by many complicated instincts. For example, nobody has been able to determine why 93% of all American males lose the cap of a tube of toothpaste in less than .03 hours; and this may be an instinct. Much the same may be said of the instinct that compels most bridge players to draw trumps as quickly as possible.

Opening lead — ♠ 2

PROVES FALSE

West opens the deuce of spades, East puts up the ten and you win with the king. Perhaps your instinct is to draw trumps immediately — but, if so, your instinct has played you false.

If you lead a trump, an opponent will win and lead a spade to force out the ace. Now the opponents are in position to get a spade trick, two hearts and the ace of diamonds. These four tricks will defeat the contract.

What can you do to avoid this sad fate?

The trumps can wait. You must do something to avoid the loss of a spade trick. The simplest method is to set up dummy's diamonds.

KNOCK OUT ACE

At the second trick you must knock out the ace of diamonds. East returns a spade, and you win with the ace.

Now you lead to a low club to dummy's jack. This puts you in position to cash the king of diamonds, on which you discard the low spades.

ATTACK TRUMPS

Only at this stage, after five tricks have been played, can you afford to lead trumps. You expect to draw trumps and claim the rest of the tricks with trumps and high clubs.

The point of this sort of hand is that you can't afford to draw trumps automatically as soon as you gain the lead. Look ahead to see if any more urgent job is to be done first.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold:
♠ - J 10 6
♥ - K 3
♦ - A 10 9 7 2
♣ - 9 7 2
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one no-trump. With eight points in high cards you can well afford a response, but you cannot afford to bid the diamonds at the level of two. If partner opened with one club, you would bid one diamond.

Japan Blue Jean Sales Up 40 Pct.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Blue jean sales in Japan jumped 40 per cent last year, the Denim Council reports. Retailers there expect to sell 10 million pairs this year, ringing up sales of $85 million.

So far, about 40 Japanese clothing makers are importing American denim for the market. Many Japanese prefer American brands and pay about $10 a pair for them, approximately 30 per cent more than Japanese jeans sell for. .

Just over 62,000 miles on this cream colored Riviera that has saddle leather bucket seats with console plus just about every extra made on the Riviera like power steering, power brakes, power windows, factory air conditioning, wire wheels, tinted glass, w/w tires.

We just don't ever get these rare cars — so if you've always dreamed of that classic Riviera — see this one. BEK 648.

NEW YORK EXPERIMENT

No Guns On Foot Duty

By CLIVE LAWRANCE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — There's a small room in back of 77th Precinct police station full of uniformed black men. They are talking and joking together.

"Okay, fellas, you want to listen for your assignments," says Sgt. Charles Batson. "Patrolman Lee, Post 17 and 19; Patrolman Morgan, Post 1 . . ."

Two-by-two the men drift out to patrol the streets, alleys, vacant lots, crumbling buildings, and subway entrances of Bedford Stuyvesant, a high-crime-rate area.

On the street they look like ordinary patrolmen with nightsticks, handcuffs, and walkie-talkies.

They are, in fact, concerned black citizens who have joined New York City's auxiliary police force to do something positive about crime in their neighborhoods.

Auxiliary police forces are nationwide, and they are increasingly important as crime in the streets becomes one of the country's most pressing problems.

New York City has the largest such group, with more than 3,000 men and 130 women. It originated under the New York State Defense Emergency Act of 1951 to help the regular police in the event of a civil defense emergency. Laws have since been passed enabling the auxiliaries to operate more regularly, under direct police department training and supervision.

Mayor John V. Lindsay, concerned about rising crime and the financial obstacles to increasing the police force, issued a series of orders extending the use of auxiliary police. They are under a full-time police officer, Capt. Robert Luhrs, and have won hundreds of citations for bravery.

For example, auxiliary Patrolman Robert Goldberg saw three men, one armed with a revolver, sticking up a gas station. When the suspects saw Patrolman Goldberg they fled. He put the victim in a cab and pursued the man with the gun. At the same time he reported the incident via his two-way radio.

When the gunman ran into an apartment house, Patrolman Goldberg remained outside, blocking his escape, until the regular police came and made an arrest.

It was later learned that the holdup men were about to shoot their victim when Patrolman Goldberg arrived.

However, the objective of the auxiliary police is not heroics.

It is also widely recognized that the mere presence of a uniformed policeman can deter a criminal, and Captain Suggs has 78 men he can put on the street, usually during the high crime period between 6 p.m. and midnight.

His is the largest and perhaps most successful unit in New York, but there are many others — black, white, Puerto Rican, and integrated — scattered around the city doing excellent work.

Captain Suggs has been an auxiliary policeman for seven years and commander of the precinct 77 group for three years. When he took over, there were only 17 auxiliary patrolmen on the precinct.

Whenever people complained about unsafe streets and demand police protection, Captain Suggs replied, "You go home and tell all the men in your house that you are tired of being mugged and they must do something about it. Tell them to join the auxiliary police and help protect their own people."

STATE COMMISSIONS

From Prunes To Lentils

By GUY HALVERSON
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

CHICAGO — For six months, one just-elected governor of a medium sized U.S. state tried to find out how many agencies, boards, commissions, and offices his state government possessed.

He came up with 261 — about 100 more than he expected — including a commission on mint (the kind that goes with lamb), one on prunes, and a Pea and Lentil Commission.

Now, to alleviate this kind of state government maze which is faced by citizens across the United States, more and more states are overhauling and streamlining the way they govern.

Conducted with only a modicum of fanfare, the efforts add up to one of the greatest reorganization efforts in the nation's history, according to the Council on State Governments.

IN PART because of increased complexity, as well as election of more sophiticated public officials and detailed guidelines on federal grants — some 12 states in the period 1965 to 1971 undertook major departmental restructuring.

The states — Michigan, Wisconsin, Colorado, Florida, Massachusetts, California, Delaware, Maryland, Arkansas, Maine, Montana, North Carolina — represent the largest number for any comparable period in U.S. history.

Moreover, according to Dr. George Bell, research director of the council (headquartered in Lexington, Ky.), a number of additional states now are either contemplating reorganization or are in the first steps.

In South Dakota and Idaho an overall reorganization is contemplated in the next several years. Reorganization also is being broached in Louisiana, Georgia, Ohio and Kansas.

AND "THE TREND will surely continue through the nation," says Dr. Bell.

The results of this flurry of government streamlining, political scientists are quick to point out, mean that state government should change fundamentally.

It should be cheaper, as excessive duplication, overlapping of agencies, and payroll padding are eliminated.

Unused tax funds promise to be more wisely invested as states, through computer analysis and budgeting procedures, seek out better investment possibilities.

Governors and legislatures — and hence, in the long run, private citizens — are gradually wresting greater control over the avalanche of administrative boards, commission, and agencies that has come since the depression. In some cases these have become virtually autonomous fiefdoms, responsive to private pressure groups.

MOST IMPORTANT, states will be more able to perform basic services, such as education, highway construction, and welfare.

The main challenge to reorganization in the years ahead, says one state planner, is "ensuring that special-interest groups don't win control of reorganization at the expense of the larger public interest, and that current reorganization efforts will lead to a second step: refinement and streamlining."

Michigan's monumental reorganization in the early 1960's is perhaps best known, but the problems facing current state reorganization efforts are in many ways illustrated by Idaho, which last saw major restructuring in 1919.

A constitutional amendment expected to be signed by Gov. Cecil E. Andrus would mandate no more than 20 state agencies. Voters will decide the issue in November.

At present, duplication abounds in executive branch agencies. Just to get a school bus certified in Idaho requires six different state agencies.

IT WAS GOVERNOR Andrus who found the 261 agencies, including the Pea and Lentil Commission. Says Joe Welch of the Idaho State Planning and Affairs Agency, "We even put the Idaho (legal) code references to a 'board' or 'commission' and computer readout. The final readout measured 3 feet high in 12 volumes listing the three words 3,600 times. That's the immensity of the problem in Idaho."

Among other things Idaho government officials were stunned to find that one board — the state Board of Eugenics — had the power to order sterilization of people.

In the area of agriculture alone there are 53 agencies, boards, or commissions including such diverse independent commodity commissions as the Mint Commission and a Bean Commission.

Consolidation and use of coordinating or interdepartmental committees are main steps in most state restructurings.

Many political scientists now are closely studying what is happening in Montana as an example of how a state with a small population base has undertaken major reorganization in the past several years.

In 1970 a constitutional amendment was adopted cutting Montana's unweildly clutter of some 200 agencies back to no more than 20 departments, excluding departments headed by seven elected officials.

THAT NUMBER was further cut to 19 departments; some 14 departments have been activated.

"We think there is unquestionably more responsiveness to the public now than before," says George Bousliman, deputy director of the Montana executive reorganization office at Helena.

Manila Toughens Drug Penalties

MANILA (UPI) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos signed a new law Thursday setting the death penalty for suppliers and manufacturers of illegal drugs.

The law is lenient toward first offenders but tough on those who make a profit out of drug abuse.

The bill prescribes the death penalty for manufacturers of dangerous drugs and makes cultivators of plants which are the source of prohibited drugs subject to 14 years to life in prison.

Suppliers or pushers may be sentenced to death in the case where a drug user dies.

Hospital District Gets The Money

The Independent-Journal erred Wednesday in reporting that the Marin Hospital District board had agreed to pay the estate of Evelyn Poligano $707 as a result of a claim against the district.

The claim, in fact, was made by the district against the estate, and the sum will be paid to the district.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Experimental Allergy Drug's Results Arouse Controversy

Cromolyn sodium (or cromoglycate) is an experimental drug that was introduced originally to prevent attacks of allergic asthma. But its results have aroused controversy. Many asthmatics believe that it improves their breathing, despite the fact that tests show no objective improvement in the ventilatory capacity of the lungs. This discrepancy between the improvement reported by the patient and the lack of proof via scientific testing appears to be characteristic of the drug.

The drug is thought to act as a blocking agent of substances that produce the allergic reaction. Cromoglycate does not relax the muscles of the bronchi that narrow the tube and thus create difficult breathing. Nor is it a bronchodilator. Why then are the reports so controversial?

ASTHMA IS a complex disease that goes beyond the effects of allergy. Emotions, respiratory tract infections, inhaled irritants, fatigue, exertion, and various medications also are implicated. The easily irritated bronchi over-react to almost any stimuli.

The antiallergy product may have an effect upon the emotional aspects of asthma. Rapid breathing due to exertion, for example, may bring on wheezing in an asthmatic. Cromolyn sodium helps to prevent this in some persons. But many asthmatics begin to breathe rapidly when emotionally upset and the rapid respiration triggers the attack. However, there are reports of individuals who developed a severe asthma attack while sitting quietly.

DURING AN attack, asthmatics also are disturbed because of the difficulty in breathing. In other words, the emotions may play a role in inducing asthma and in aggravating or prolonging the bout.

Cromolyn sodium may interfere with the recurrence of an asthmatic attack that is emotional in nature and brought on by rapid, deep breathing (hyperventilation). This is logical because it also prevents wheezing in asthmatics during exercise.

LIVER REGENERATION

R. V. writes: When the liver has a breakdown, does it build up again?

REPLY

Yes, in certain types. Viral hepatitis, for example, may incapacitate the organ for several weeks, followed by gradual improvement and complete healing. The person who is poisoned by arsenic or too much alcohol may not be this fortunate. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on liver disorders.

SACCHARIN

C. F. B. writes: Is there any possibility that stopping the use of saccharin (after five years) could cause withdrawal symptoms? The trouble seems to center about feeling keyed up and tense. I have no physical disability, such as high blood pressure, to account for the symptoms.

REPLY

No. There are no withdrawal symptoms when saccharin is discontinued.

BLUISH NAILS

REPLY

No.

'D.B. Cooper' Search Halted

KELSO, Wash. (UPI)—The Army halted its "adventure training" and search for plane hijacker "D. B. Cooper" for the Easter weekend, but the FBI wants soldiers to continue scouring the southwestern Washington area.

"The Department of Defense will have to decide on that request," an Army spokesman said.

Cooper was the name used by a man who hijacked a jetliner, demanded $200,000 ransom and then parachuted out of the plane somewhere between Seattle and Reno, Nev. on Thanksgiving Eve.

There has been no trace of him, but investigators believe the hijacker bailed out over southwestern Washington and may have been killed. For the past two weeks Army helicopters and patrols have been searching an area near Ariel, Wash.

'Relax Order,' PG&E Requests

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Pacific Gas & Electric Co. has asked the Supreme Court to relax its seven-year-old order requiring El Paso Natural Gas Co. to divest the Pacific Northwest Pipeline Co.

The high court had directed complete divestiture through a cash sale to restore competition in the natural gas industry in the California market.

Gas shortages have changed circumstances to such an extent that "competition for markets no longer exists," Pacific Gas said and added, "Markets compete for gas supplies."

Carrier Arrives

YOKOSUKA, Japan (UPI)—The aircraft carrier USS Constellation entered the U.S. Navy Base at Yokosuka, 30 miles west of Tokyo, today for a rest and recreation visit.

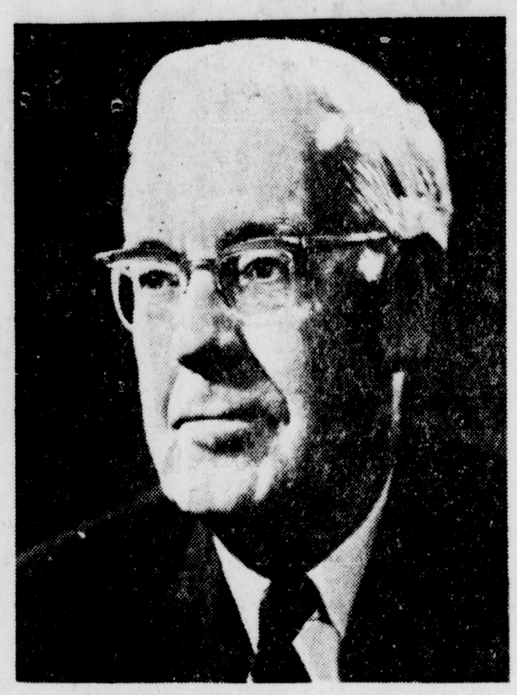
Joseph C. Harsch

Joseph C. Harsch, whose weekly column on international affairs appears on the Independent-Journal editorial page, has had wide experience as a foreign correspondent and as a radio and TV analyst. He now is chief editorial writer of The Christian Science Monitor and his column is supplied by the Monitor News Service. Mr. Harsch received degrees from Williams College and Cambridge University and, immediately upon graduation in 1929, joined the Monitor as a cub reporter. During World War II he covered the European Theater and the Southwest Pacific. His work, both as a correspondent and radio and TV commentator, has won him wide respect among his colleagues and his rare insight into world affairs makes his column must reading for anyone who wants to be well informed.

Charlotte Saikowski

Charlotte Saikowski, chief of the Moscow bureau of The Christian Science Monitor, is a lifelong Russian scholar who has travelled more widely in the Soviet Union than any other American correspondent. Miss Saikowski's dispatches from the Monitor News Service will appear in the Independent-Journal. She brings readers a feel for what the average Russian thinks and does as well as a profound understanding of Kremlinology. She joined the Monitor in 1962 and served in the overseas news department and as a correspondent in Tokyo before her assignment to Moscow in 1968. She speaks both Russian and Polish. Miss Saikowski taught English at the University of Warsaw for three years, returning to the United States in 1950 to study at the Russian Institute and the School of International Affairs at Columbia University. In 1970, Miss Saikowski was awarded an Overseas Press Club citation for her series, "Russia in the '70's".



Erwin D. Canham

Erwin D. Canham, whose weekly column on world affairs will appear on the Independent-Journal editorial page, is one of this nation's leading writers, radio commentators and public speakers. He now is editor in chief of The Christian Science Monitor and his column is supplied by the Monitor News Service. Mr. Canham has observed, first-hand, many of the conferences and events which have shaped recent history, is a member of many international organizations and an advisor to many leaders in public life. Because of his wide contacts and experience, Mr. Canham has been appointed by United States presidents to many commissions and boards, most recently President Nixon's Commission on Campus Unrest. He joined the Monitor in 1925 as a reporter and has served as correspondent at the League of Nations, chief of the Washington bureau and as general news editor, managing editor, editor and editor in chief.

Adding a new dimension to your understanding of world events . . .

A few of the world-respected journalists now writing for the I-J

We show these five distinguished writers merely to give you an idea of the caliber of The Christian Science Monitor News Service . . . the prestigious new syndicate to which the I-J now subscribes.

Through them and other Monitor specialists you will discover the difference between "news" and an understanding of the events which make it. For Monitor reporting probes beneath the surface for the causes. It tells you what happened, but most importantly, why.

The Independent-Journal will publish not only selected news stories but editorials, news analyses, features and special series. Also maps, charts, artwork and photography for which the Monitor is justly renowned.

We invite you to read and form your own judgment of these unusual dispatches.

Takashi Oka

Takashi Oka, Paris bureau chief of The Christian Science Monitor, brings a diverse background in foreign affairs to his post in France. His dispatches are supplied to the Independent-Journal by the Monitor News Service. Mr. Oka served as New York Times bureau chief in Tokyo, as well as Monitor correspondent in Saigon, Hong Kong and Moscow before his assignment to the Paris post.

Elizabeth Pond

Elizabeth Pond, Tokyo bureau chief of the Christian Science Monitor, is an experienced foreign correspondent. Her dispatches from the Monitor News Service will appear in the Independent-Journal. Miss Pond learned Chinese in Taiwan, free-lanced in Europe, and covered the rural war in Vietnam and the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia before her assignment to her Tokyo post. She was captured by Communist guerrillas during the Cambodian invasion and her special series of articles on life behind their lines — the result of her 40 days of captivity — were widely reprinted.

The bill, which was sent to a conference committee to iron out differences with a similar measure passed by the House, would also require all oil tankers to make totally clean ballast discharges and to establish methods for loading and unloading oil and other cargos that might harm the environment.

Both Demo, GOP Bosses Give Humphrey Nod In Wisconsin

By GUY HALVERSON
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

CHICAGO — New evidence supporting Hubert Humphrey's apparent front runner position in the important Democratic primary in Wisconsin on Tuesday comes from state Democratic and Republican county chairmen.

Interviews now suggest that at this point at least, Humphrey may be well out in front in four of the state's nine newly-revised congressional districts.

The districts are the First (southeast, industrial and rural), the Third (western, rural) the Fifth (Milwaukee) and the Sixth (which includes Sheboygan).

Apart from the districts, (all nine are roughly equal in population) interviews show Humphrey has a broad range of support among almost all major segments of the Wisconsin electorate.

A Humphrey win — even by a relatively modest plurality in a contest where 12 candidates are on the ballot — may be enough to permanently check Sen. Edmund Muskie as a serious presidential contender. "Humphrey's now the man to beat," says one veteran Madison based political reporter.

The dominant issues in this predominately urban industrial but still important farm state — soaring consumer prices, and tax reform —are helping the "bread and butter," unionist oriented Mr. Humphrey. Voter grumbles about taxes are widespread.

Wisconsin is believed to have the nation's fourth highest property tax. In total per capita tax load, it is one of the highest taxed states in the nation.

With a total non-white citizenry of only about 4 per cent busing has not become the heated issue in Wisconsin as in other northern industrial states.

Although the Wisconsin outlook is still fluid, the interviews with county chairmen also indicate that:

Sen. George McGovern, waging an aggressive campaign, is believed out front in the Second District (the Madison area) where student youth registration is relatively high.

Muskie, who rang up an impressive 63 per cent margin in last week's Illinois primary — but little grass roots voter enthusiasm in a preference contest where former Sen. Eugene McCarthy was the only alternative — is believed to be clearly out front only in the heavily Polish Fourth district in South Milwaukee.

Yet Muskie backers there are concerned about blue collar defections to Gov. George Wallace — as well as criticism of Muskie from hawkish Democratic Rep. Clem Zablocki.

The Seventh and Eighth districts, in north central and northern Wisconsin above Lake Winnebagon, are increasicgly uncertain, it is felt. The Eighth, which has large Republican and Catholic constituencies, went for John F. Kennedy in 1960 and could go for Muskie this year, it is felt.

Most political analysts concede the political situation in Wisconsin is still uncertain at this point, despite Mr. Humphrey's sudden emergence as the front runner since his surprise 18 per cent second place showing in the Florida primary.

The haunting question among many Wisconsin Democrats is whether Humphrey is indeed a "winner" — and could go on to carry the state in November. Nixon carried Wisconsin by small pluralities in both 1960 and 1968.

Still, many Wisconsin Democrats insist — whatever the validity of their contention — that the political momentum has been running in their favor since the important 1970 by-election. That year Democrats elected their entire state ticket with one exception. In addition to the governorship, they now control the lower house, both U.S. Senate seats and five of the current 10 congressional seats — more posts than at any time since 1933.

Some top party enthusiasts even believe that the state Senate could slip Democratic in November —if aided by a strong national ticket.

While Democrats here are mulling what the emergence of the indomitable Humphrey may mean for party chances come November, there is rising recognition that the Republican crossover vote — as well as the new student youth vote — will prove crucial in next week's voting. Some party chairmen, in fact, believe that the crossover vote could run as high as 25-35 per cent.

Even in Dane County — which has a hefty Democratic liberal constituency — GOP Chairman Mark Musolf is talking of a 25 per cent or more Republican defection. The question is to whom? Wallace, or Humphrey, Muskie or Washington Sen. Henry Jackson?

Wallace, who won some 34 per cent of the vote in the 1964 primary that was to a great extent a GOP crossover vote, is running hard and fast, and some think perhaps toward another impressive showing in Wisconsin.

But for the moment at least, the spotlight is once again on the high-spirited Hubert H. Humphrey.

Stokes Will Become TV Newscaster

NEW YORK (UPI)—Former Cleveland Mayor Carl B. Stokes will take over as co-anchorman of WNBC-TV's 6 p.m. nightly newscast starting May 15, in an effort to boost the station's audience rating and "change with the times," the station announced today.

Stokes who served two terms as the first black mayor of a major U.S. city, will be New York television's first regularly scheduled black anchorman.

The other co-anchorman will be Paul Udell, a veteran TV newsman for KNXT, the CBS station in Los Angeles.

Jim Hartz, who currently anchors both the 6 and 11 p.m. newscasts, will continue to anchor the 11 p.m. news.

Oil Spill Does Little Damage

MARTINEZ (UPI) —About 400 gallons of light crude oil spilled from a tanker into the Carquinez Strait Thursday but was contained quickly, the Coast Guard said.

The oil was being pumped from a Phillips Petroleum tanker.

The Coast Guard said floating booms were used by cleanup crews to contain the spill.

Attles 'Happy' In Wake Of Warrior Pasting By Bucks

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—For a guy whose team had just suffered a solid defeat in the National Basketball Association playoffs, Golden state warriors coach Al Attles was a surprisingly happy man.

"We did what we set out to do," Attles said after his team had been soundly beaten 118-93 by the Milwaukee Bucks Thursday night.

"We split the series here so we're all right," he added. "I feel pretty good about it. If you split the openers at their place then you're in pretty good shape."

The Warriors aren't in bad shape for the remainder of the playoffs—the next two games coming on their home court in Oakland. The Bucks and Warriors have each won one game in the best of seven semi-final playoffs for the NBA's western conference crown. The Warriors won the opening game 117-104 Tuesday night.

Coach Larry Costello was noticeably overjoyed at the way his team rebounded from the opening defeat.

"We played the way we're capable of playing," Costello said. "We just went from one extreme to the other."

What the Bucks did best was play defense, cutting off the countless layups the Warriors got Tuesday night.

"They didn't get the opportunity to drive like they did Tuesday night," Costello said. "We took the layups away from them."

Costello also admitted that the performance of Warrior guard Jim Barnett helped the Bucks. Barnett scored 30 points in the opening game but got just 10 Thursday night.

Barnett got back to his normal game tonight" Costello said. "I don't think he's a 30 point player."

Just like Barnett in the opening game, the Bucks had Curtis Perry who played over his head

Thursday night. Perry, who averaged seven points a game with the bucks during the regular season, hit for 22 Thursday night.

"I think Curtis was a little nervous the first game—it was his first playoff," Costello said. "But he really came around tonight."

"Perry was the key guy for them," admitted Attles. "He's the guy we have to contend with."

For his part, Perry was not overly surprised at either his performance or the Bucks win.

"We're the Milwaukee Bucks and we beat these guys during the regular season so there's no reason we can't do it now," he said. When told he had 22 points he shrugged and said: "Twenty-two, huh? I guess that's my high."

But the Bucks win was a team effort. Kareem AbdulJabbar had 25 points, Bob Dandridge 21, Oscar Robertson 18, Lucius Allen 14 and Wally Jones 12. The Warriors had Nate Thurmond who had 32 points and 18 rebounds, but Cazzie Russel was the next high scorer with just 16.

"They took our running game away from us," Attles said. "And they ran a lot more than we wanted them to."

Costello echoed that opinion.

"We stopped them from running and we got our fast break going the way it should," he said.

Costello refused to admit that the game had been a must game for the Bucks.

"It wasn't a must game, but it was very important," he said. "But anything's possible in this game. I believe we could be down three games to none and still win four straight from them."

But Costello has got to be glad that he's not going to have to test that theory.

SPORT NOTES

Booster Return Marred By Inertia

By RALPH CHATOIAN

The Northern California Giants Boosters are back in the mainland trying to rid themselves of "Polynesian paralysis," and believe me, it isn't easy.

After a great week in Hawaii, a land in which the pace slows down and the visitors try to do like the natives and "hang loose," the 274 boosters returned to San Francisco International Airport Wednesday night aboard two charter jet airplanes.

"This was great, just great," beamed booster president Allan B. Murray of Kentfield. "We're going to do this again next year but instead of a week I think we'll make it for 10 days."

The trip to Hawaii to see the Giants play the Tokyo Lotte Orions in a three-game set was the second of a series of trips on the boosters' schedule, the first a 13-day excursion to Phoenix earlier this month to watch spring training games.

IT WILL be impossible to beat the Honolulu junket. I'm still trying to get the stars out of my eyes and it is very difficult getting my feet on the ground. Murray and Mike Dolan of GTS Travel in San Rafael did a great job in running the show.

It's going to be a good year for the Giants boosters, the biggest fan club in baseball. Next on the schedule will be a swing through Los Angeles and Atlanta, May 22-28, followed by trips to San Diego, June 23-25; Montreal-New York, July 7-12; Los Angeles, Aug. 1-3; Pittsburgh-San Diego, Sept. 1-6, and Los Angeles again, Sept. 22-25.

MURRAY, an insurance salesman when he's not leading his merry band, had a brief stint at acting prior to the boosters' arrival to Honolulu. It was a return engagement for the "Hawaii Five-O" television show.

Back on Nov. 21, when Murray was making an advance trip to Honolulu setting up the booster excursion, he was given a chance at acting in a "Hawaii Five-O" episode and all he had to do was catch a Frisbee thrown by Miss Hawaii. He missed. The frisbee conked him on the nose and cracked a bone. End of TV episode.

"IT WAS only a six-second part and it ended up costing me $256 in hospital bills," Al declared. "Since the scene couldn't be filmed they told me that when I came back they would give me another try."

When Al returned to Honolulu last week a couple of days before the main phalanx of "road runners," he was given his second chance by the TV directors.

"I PLAY the part of a beach boy bum trying to pick up a girl but I don't score," said bachelor Al. "I think it is scheduled to be shown the second week of June."

He said he didn't do any Frisbee playing this time, but instead had dinner with the apologetic Miss Hawaii. It was much safer.

THERE WERE very few complaints on the trip and that was surprising, because the instructions the boosters received on their arrival was that all complaints be lodged with Maureen Cassady, a stewardess who doubles as Miss Giants Booster for obvious reasons.

But Miss Cassady couldn't do anything about the weather and although it was warm, the sun was hiding three of the days there. She did add beauty to the beach, sun or no sun.

It was a great week while it lasted, but it was terrible when I returned home to find that my house had been "hit." Some night visitor had walked off with a stereo receiver, clock radio, diamond ring and other items.

DOG GONE IT — Professional golfer Miller Barber reached down to clean off the 16th hole green prior to attempting a putt, while a stray dog wandered by during the Greensboro Open Tournament in Greensboro yesterday. J. C. Snead and Julius Boros shared the lead after shooting 66s yesterday, thus disproving the theory that, in golf, "it's a dog's world."

Giants Win; Cumberland Stands Out

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI)—Today is an off day for the San Francisco Giants and it gives manager Charlie Fox a chance to think a little more about how his team will line up next week for the start of the National League season.

The Giants, behind the pitching and hitting of John Cumberland, whipped the California Angels, 6-2, Thursday. The team flies to Yuma, Ariz., later today for a pair of weekend games with the San Diego Padres, then goes home to San Francisco for one final exhibition next Tuesday against Santa Clara University.

Cumberland already has earned the No. 3 starting job behind Juan Marichal and Sam McDowell. Thursday he was in mid-season form as he stopped the Angels on seven hits in seven innings. He struck out only one batter but he didn't walk anyone in another strong performance.

One of the better hitting pitchers in the N.L., Cumberland helped himself with two singles and two runs batted in. His second hit drove in a run capping a four-run seventh inning rally that put the game away. Jimmy Rosario had a two-run single in the same inning for another key blow.

The victory gave San Francisco a 12-8 spring record.

Track Meet Canceled

Novato High School's track meet with Sacred Heart of San Francisco, scheduled for yesterday, was canceled when the San Franciscans failed to show up. They had another meet scheduled in San Jose, according to Novato coach Bob Patterson.

BOROS SHARES LEAD

Golf Tourney Halted By Rain

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI)—Tournament officials today postponed the second round of the $200,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament after a heavy overnight rain soaked the Sedgefield Country Club course.

A spokesman for the tournament said the second round would be played Saturday if the weather permits, but no decision has been made on whether to play the final 36 holes Sunday or to play the third round Sunday and the final round on Monday.

Skies cleared at daybreak but the course, hit by freak spring snowfall last weekend and a soaking rain Wednesday, already was too wet.

Julius Boros, at 52 a tour regular since 1950, was tied for the lead after the opening round of play.

He shot a five-under-par 66 Thursday to pull even with J. C. Snead, Sam's nephew, and Tucson Open champion Miller Barber, but he refused to think about the $40,000 first prize.

"I've been playing here for 22 years and I always manage to have a bad day," said Boros, who has played in only three tournaments but already won more than $8,000 this season.

The three held a one-stroke margin going into today's second round, edging a group of six that included Australian Bruce Crampton, steady Deane Beman and rookie Allen Miller.

Lee Trevino, Jackie Gleason Classic winner Tom Weiskopf and San Diego Open champion Paul Harney were in another bunch two strokes back at 68.

Arnold Palmer, wearing contact lenses for the first time in tournament play, headed a group at 69, two strokes under par.

Grouped with 12 others at one-under-70 were South African Gary Player, Los Angeles Open winner George Archer, and Sam Snead himself, eight times a winner of this tournament.

Barber scrambled for an eagle to offset a pair of bogeys, but J. C. Snead and Boros did no worse than par over the 7,032-yard Sedgefield Country Club course.

"I never knocked it off the fairway," said Boros, still a steady golfer despite persistent arthritis and bursitis.

Altogether, 66 of the 147 golfers in the tournament matched or beat par, but the weather forecast seemed to rule out continued low scoring.

The outlook was for moe of the rain that soaked the course Wednesday prompting tournament officials to invoke winter rules and allow players to improve their fairway lies.

"If you had to play it down, I don't think you'd break a hundred," said J. C. Snead.

Trevino, though, seemed almost excited about the muddy fairways and bumpy greens, obviously hoping they would help sharpen his game to Masters form.

"It's good training for next week," he said. "If a man putts well on these greens."

Palmer, despite or perhaps because of his newly fitted contacts, played inconsistently. He offset a double bogey with an eagle and a bogey with a birdie and added two more birds in his round.

"Sometimes I looked like I knew what I was doing," he said. "Other times I looked like I didn't."

San Rafael In Baseball Tourney Win

With superb dramatic timing, Dirk Gansloser and Rick Klarkowski waited until the last possible instant before crashing important extra-base hits yesterday to give San Rafael High School two victories over Mission High of San Francisco, 5-3 and 10-6, and the championship of the Golden Gate Invitational baseball tournament in the city.

Elsewhere, Marin Catholic opened play in the Soquel Boosters tournament in Santa Cruz by defeating host Soquel, 4-1, on Jim Petray's three-hitter.

San Rafael's Gansloser hit a three-run home run with two out in the sixth inning to erase a 3-2 Mission lead in the opening game. Dave Urquhart and Bruce Howard preceded Gansloser with back-to-back singles after two were out. The red-hot Gansloser also homered Wednesday.

Klarkowski hit a bases-loaded triple in the seventh inning of the nightcap to break a 6-6 tie and highlight a six-run uprising.

San Rafael scored the first run of the rally on a passed ball and the second on Tom Wilson's single. Winning pitcher Steve Rohrs followed Klarkowski's triple with a single to score the final run.

Marin Catholic scored three runs in the second inning, two of them on a double steal. After Paul Riccardi doubled and Pete Arbios tripled for one run, Bill Payne walked and Hughes called for a double steal. Arbios scored and Payne, instead of pulling up at second, headed for third. The throw was wild, and he came in.

San Rafael Girl Advances In Tennis Play

Anne Zarraonandia of San Rafael advanced to the semi-finals in both singles and doubles yesterday in the tennis tournament for non-ranked juniors at Round Hill Country Club near Concord.

Anne defeated Stephanie Sindall of Piedmont in the 16-under singles, 6-2, 6-4, and teamed with sister Carrie to top Miss Sindall and Peggy Kincaid in the doubles, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2. Carrie, meanwhile, was eliminated from 14-under singles competition by losing to Ellen Metcalf of Sacramento, 6-1, 6-7, 6-4.

Semi-finals and finals in singles and doubles were scheduled for today, raising the possibility that Anne could play four matches in one day.

Sonoma State Wins In Baseball Tourney

Sonoma State College rallied for four runs in the ninth inning to defeat San Francisco State yesterday, 6-3, in the consolation game of the S.F. State Invitational baseball tournament.

The victory was only the second against 20 defeats for the Cossacks.

MANGUAL OUT

A's Start Year Without Blue

MESA, Ariz. (UPI)—The Oakland A's, who have five more exhibition games left this spring, will open the American League season next week with three top players unavialable to them.

The three are outfielder Angel Mangual and pitchers Vida Blue and Chuck Dobson. Mangual batted .286 last year as a part-time centerfielder while Blue won 24 games and Dobson won 15.

Mangual is suffering from a muscle tear in his left thigh which has not responded to treatment, so on Thursday the A's optioned him out to their Iowa farm club in the Claa AA American Association.

Blue is unsigned and was placed on the restricted list while Dobson, coming back after off-season elbow surgery, was put on the disabled list.

Manager Dick Williams has been saying right along he will open defense of his team's A.L. West championship with healthy bodies. That means while Mangual is trying to get himself into shape to play regularly, either Bobby Brooks or George Hendrick will open in centerfield.

Campanella 'Alert' After Blood Clot

VALHALLA, N.Y. (UPI)—Roy Campanella is "conscious and alert," a doctor announced Friday at Grasslands Hospital in Valhalla, N.Y., where the 50-year-old former Brooklyn Dodger catcher is resting in critical condition following seizure caused by a pulmonary embolism—a blood clot in the lung area.

After being admitted to the hospital in a state of unconsciousness at 4:15 p.m. Thursday, the Hall of Fame baseball star was administered immediate resuscitative measures and briefly regained consciousness, Dr. B. Dinim, Medical Director announced this morning.

Campanella, whose brilliant career was shattered by an auto accident on Jan. 28, 1958, was placed in the intensive care unit Thursday night and was listed in critical condition for the second time in his life.

After it was feared by doctors that the auto accident might leave "Campy" a quadraplegic, he later recovered the use of his arms and fingers and managed to stay close to the baseball scene via several television programs. He also owns a liquor store in New York City.

A product of the old Negro League, Campanella was scouted by Dodger coach Clyde Sukeforth in 1945 and signed into the Dodger organization by

Boccabella Blasts Homer

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Former Marin Catholic High School star John Boccabella is making the most of his 1972 spring training opportunities with the Montreal Expos.

The Terra Linda resident, a nine-year major league veteran, is struggling for first string catcher status. And his rival, the seasoned John Bateman, is probably taking notice of the challenge.

Against the Atlanta Braves yesterday, Boccabella, 30, blasted a homer to lead the Expo "B" delegation to a 5-1 triumph.

Jim Kaat pitched the nine-inning distance, allowing nine hits and an unearned run, as the Minnesota Twins beat the Philadelphia Phillies, 3-1. Harmon Killebrew hit his fourth homer of the spring for the Twins, who have a 16-8 exhibition record . . . Fritz Peterson also went nine innings for the New York Yankees when he blanked the Montreal Expos, 4-0, on two hits and faced only 29 batters.

Jim Fregosi's two-run single climaxed a three-run fifth-inning rally which lifted the New York Mets to a 4-1 win over the Cincinnati Reds. Buzz Capra, Jon Matlack and Tug McGraw combined on a four-hitter and struck out 10 batters for the Mets.

Amos Otis doubled in the tying run and scored the tie-breaking run on John Mayberry's single in the ninth inning as the Kansas City Royals rallied against relief ace Dave Giusti for a 5-4 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates. . .Mickey Lolich was touched for two runs in five innings but won his fourth game of the spring when the Detroit Tigers defeated the Chicago White Sox with the help of homers by Paul Jata and Norm Cash.

Rick Wise allowed three runs in seven innings and Lou Brock collected three hits in the St.Louis Cardinals' 6-4 triumph over the Boston Red Sox. Reggie Smith hit his fifth homer of the spring for the Red Sox.

The Milwaukee Brewers took advantage of five errors to outscramble the San Diego Padres, 11-10.

Other roster cuts included outfielder Roger Repoz, pitchers Bruce Ellingsen and Archie Reynolds and catcher Jim Hutto by the Angels and pitcher Steve Busby, catcher Dennis Papeke and infielders Jose Martinez and Rich Severson by the Royals.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

New Regulations For All Boats

On April 17 it becomes law that every boat, no matter how it's propelled, must carry on board a personal flotation device — that means a lifejacket or cushion — for every passenger.

It's the first tangible effect of the Federal Boat Safety Act of 1971, which became law in August of last year.

The new safety law is a Coast Guard regulation and is the first of many to be announced under the Boat Safety Act. It extends the present lifejacket requirements now covering only powered craft, to take in sailboats, rowboats, canoes, and towed (by other boats) recreational craft.

In justifying the new regulation, Rear Admiral Austin C. Wagner, chief of the Coast Guard office of boating safety, said that accidents are not the exclusive realm of the power boatman.

The regulation was originally proposed and published in the Federal Register Nov. 10 last year. It has the complete endorsement of the 21-member Boating Safety Advisory Council, a group of people associated with boating and drawn from all walks of life. The council advises the Coast Guard on its proposals.

There will be modifications and revisions to the regulation from time to time as to the various classifications of life saving devices, and the types of craft to which they will be applicable. The changes will be noted in this column.

The Boat Safety Act also requires that standards be set covering load capacity, stability and flotation qualities of new boats. It is likely to be late this year or even next year before regulations covering these areas of boat safety will be announced.

The new safety law appears to be the product of a new public awareness of boating safety, as some of the questions we get indicate:

Q. I regard a canoe as a good life saving device — it will always float. Must a canoeist carry a lifejacket?

A. Definitely. However, an alternative vest-type life preserver that is easier to wear continuously has been, or is being, approved for canoeing.

Q. How about rowing or sculling races? There's hardly room in a racing shell for life preservers.

A. A racing shell does not have to carry lifejackets for the scullers if there is an escort boat along and it is carrying enough "personal flotation devices" (PFDs) for both crews. But if the shell is out alone, the law says carry them aboard.

Q. How about a water skier? Are water skis a "towed craft?"

A. There has to be a PFD aboard the tow boat for the water skier as well as one for the driver, the observer, and whoever else may be aboard. At the moment, the skier is considered as a passenger in the boat. However, this may be changed.

Q. Do other countries have these irritating "safety" laws . . . aren't we being regulated to death?

A. All English-speaking, and most Western countries have boating safety laws — some much more stringent than ours. Many of us will agree with you that we are being regulated to death, but obviously we are in the minority.

Q. I'm told the Red Cross Aquatic and Small Craft courses are a tremendous bargain, and good. Who do I contact?

A. At $80 for a 10-day course at a fine resort, with food and lodging, they are a bargain. Contact for the West Coast is J. Pendleton, P.O. Box 3673, San Francisco, Calif. 94119.

BIGGEST EASTER BUNNY OF ALL

Atlanta Falcon All-Pro defensive end Claude Humphrey rested yesterday in Atlanta after toting his Easter basket around town for under-privileged children at the Kittredge Snapfinger Farm. Reportedly, nobody joked with the 6-foot-6, 260-pound giant about his floppy ears.

Horlen Saga: Sad Ending

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—Chuck Tanner was headed for his office in the clubhouse when Joe Horlen fell in beside him.

"Will it be okay for me to ship my car north?" the veteran right-hander asked the Chicago White Sox manager.

"C'mon in," invited Chuck Tanner. "We'll talk about it."

This was Monday at Sarasota, Fla., where the White Sox are in training. The squad was to be cut that day and even though his name already had been inked in as the starting pitcher that day against Pittsburgh's "B" team, Joe Horlen had this peculiar disquieting feeling.

Only five years ago he had been right up there. One of the American League's top pitchers. His 2.06 ERA had led all pitchers in 1967 and that year he not only won 19 and lost only 7, but pitched a no-hitter, paced the league with six shutouts and was named to the all-star team.

All that seemed a long time ago. More so perhaps because of a 6-16 record in 1970 followed by an 8-9 showing this past season.

Joe Horlen will be 35 this summer and nobody has to draw any pictures for him. He put in 11 years with the White Sox and was actually the senior man with them. He knows they're going with the kids now.

When he walked into Chuck Tanner's office Monday, he saw Roland Hemond there. Roland Hemond is the director of player personnel with the White Sox and he's the one who does the work. He was on the phone when Horlen came in.

"You see, Joe, Roland is on the phone trying his best to make a deal for you right now," Tanner explained, and Horlen nodded. "He has called most of the clubs and is calling the others now, but if he can't make a deal ..." and here the White Sox manager hesitated a second ..." then we'll have to put you on waivers."

Joe Horlen knew what that meant. Waivers for the purpose of granting him his unconditional release.

Roland Hemond kept trying on the phone. But all the people he called had their own problems. They were cutting players, too.

"... we'll get back to you by noon, but if you don't hear from us by then, go ahead and do what you have to ..."

"... we might have a spot for him, but I've gotta talk with my manager first ..."

Chuck Tanner had to return to the field. Joe Horlen went out there also. He was listed to pitch, he'd pitch. He worked two innings and wasn't scored on. Later on he passed Tanner in the dugout before changing into his street clothes.

"I'll be at Howard Johnson's until 6 o'clock," he said to the manager. "You can reach me there if you hear anything."

Following the ball game, Hemond told Tanner:

"I've exhausted every possible effort, and I didn't have any luck at all."

So the White Sox finally asked waivers on Joe Horlen for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

The White Sox played 12 innings that day and lost. Tanner was in his office after the ball game when the club's equipment man came in and said to him:

"Horlen's out there."

Tanner dropped what he was doing to go out and see Horlen, but the pitcher already was gone.

"I guess he just left," said the equipment man.

The White Sox manager returned to his office and sat there all by himself for a long time. He sat there thinking about a number of things.

He thought about Joe Horlen, and how hard, brutally hard, it had been telling him; he thought about the times he himself had been cut as a ballplayer; he thought about Richie Allen; he thought about his 18-year-old son back home in New Castle, Pa., who was facing an operation, a very delicate operation, and later he thought about Joe Horlen some more.

Chuck Tanner sat there in his undershirt, alone, without moving a muscle. He sat there thinking ... thinking ... thinking.

Twitty, Maltbie In Lead; Leach Fades At Golf Meet

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

SANTA CRUZ — Howard Twitty of Arizona State College and Roger Maltbie of San Jose State College shared the second round lead in the 26th annual Western Intercollegiate Golf championship.

The pair ended up the 36 holes at the Pasatiempo Golf course with 137s. Twitty, after a 65 in Wednesday's opening round, settled for a one-over-par 72. Maltbie carded a 69 after shooting a 68 in the first 18 holes.

Brigham Young University's Ray Leach, who trailed Twitty by a stroke after the first round, fell seven strokes off the pace for a 142 total. After shooting an opening round 66, the Novatan skied to a 76 yesterday.

He doubled and scored the first run of the Dodgers' 2-0 seventh-game triumph over the New York Yankees in the 1955 World Series —the only World Series won by the Dodgers while they were a Brooklyn franchise.

BULLS SIZZLE, FIZZLE

Lakers Surge By Chicago

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Chicago Bulls played good enough to win Thursday night but obviously were not well enough.

The Bulls made 50 of their 84 field goal attempts for a 60 percent mark but still lost to the Los Angeles Lakers 131-124 for their second defeat in as many games in the National Basketball Association Western Conference semifinal playoffs.

The Milwaukee Bucks beat the Golden State Warriors 118-93 to even that Western Confrence series at 1-1.

Eastern Conference action is on tap tonight with Boston, winner of the opening game, meeting the Hawks at Atlanta and Baltimore entertaining New York in the opener of their best-of-seven series.

"I don't think, I've ever seen a team shoot better than they (the Bulls) did and lose," said the Lakers' Jerry West who paced the victors with 37 points. "We were fortunate to win," he added.

What West failed to mention was the Bulls' recent rash of injuries that seems to have the Chicago team heading for a quick exit from playoff activity.

Bob Love, who averaged 25.8 points during the regular season, led the Bulls with 26 but had to leave the game with 5:31 to go with a sprained ankle. Chet Walker, the team's second leading scorer during the season, entered the game with a sore thigh but managed to play three quarters and tally 18 points. However, Walker was forced to sit out the entire final period.

Chicago center Tom Boerwinkle injured a knee in the opening playoff game and was sent back to Chicago where the series resumes with a nationally televised contest Sunday afternoon.

Despite his team's 2-0 advantage, Laker coach Bill Sharman was quick to sound a note of caution.

"I don't think we can beat Chicago back there if they shoot this well," he warned. "We must play better defensively. In Chicago, we'll have to switch off better and get to the shooter quicker."

Chicago, despite its physical woes, held a 117-113 lead with 3:41 remaining but Los Angeles reeled off the next 10 points to take the lead for good.

Gail Goodrich chipped in with 32 points and Wilt Chamberlain scored 24 in addition to hauling down 21 rebounds. It was Chamberlain's dunk on which Bulls rookie Cliff Ray was called for goal-tending that snapped a 117-117 tie. Ray tallied 21 points and Jerry Yloan had 19 for the Bulls.

Meeting In Dallas For Baseball Strike

DALLAS (UPI) —Baseball's 24 major league player representatives and their executive director faced the decision today whether to stop the clock or the season.

Marvin Miller and the player representatives and their alternates were scheduled to meet at a motel near Dallas' Love Field airport. They are armed with a 663-10 vote in favor of the strike with their current agreement with the clubowners expiring at 12 midnight.

"Obviously, we have an overwhelming sentiment for a strike," said Miller. "Now it's up to the players (the representatives) and they have the right to do what they think best."

In New York, meanwhile, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said the owners have made a "formal, written offer" to Miller to continue the negotiations with the players until a settlement is reached. Kuhn said the offer was made Wednesday by John Gaherin, the counsel for the owners, and a spokesman for the commissioner added he is "optimistic" a settlement can be reached without a strike.

Miller, however, said that Kuhn's optimism was unfounded.

"Nothing could be more factually removed from the truth than that view," he said. "I don't know where he gets his information. To me it sounds like an attempt to mislead the players. It's a joke except that it isn't funny."

Miller also branded as "a bunch of nonsense" a report that Kuhn's optimism is based on the fact that the players have been meeting regularly with the club owners.

The players feel the strike, if called, could take several forms. They feel they could vote for a total strike —refusal to play at all; to refuse to participate in nationally televised games which are played on Saturdays and Mondays, or to refuse to play in the All-Star game.

Edmund B. Fitzgerald, chairman of the executive committee of the Milwaukee Brewers, indicated, however, that the clubowners would not stand still for that type of decision.

SAO PAULO (UPI) —Carlos Reutemann of Argentina won the Brazilian Grand Prix Formula One auto race Thursday. Sweden's Ronnie Peterson was second and Wilson Fittipaldi Jr. of Brazil finished third.

FISH AND GAME

A Great Deal For Unlucky Fishermen

By AL GIDDINGS

What a series of beautiful days! Fishing for both salmon and stripers has been good this past week, except for the wind. One day I fooled around the Richmond Bridge and the Marin Islands trolling a pet spoon with a pork rind. Sam Knoles was along and he game me a fishing lesson, taking three bass to my two. And his were bigger than mine. I like to use a fly rod and this bugs him because I loose more fish than he does, but I'm still happy. The strike on a fly rod is something to feel.

Anyway, there's a new deal down that way that should solve all your problems if you are an unlucky fisherman. At Loch Lomond, where the Lock Lomond Live Bait Barge is located, you can get some of the best bait of the bay area. But something new has been added. Bill Boyle, the owner, taking advantage of the good weather, has been home painting his house. He has two enterprising young fellows tending the place in his absence.

THE OTHER day while I was there I watched the kids, Tom and Martin Miller, while things were slow, catch and release some 10 or 12 perch, good sized ones and several species too. I questioned them about this releasing business. They said they had plenty of fish at home so they just fished for fun. Now here I was going fishing, thinking I probably wouldn't get a hit, so I quickly suggested they catch me three or four perch for dinner in case I missed on the stripers.

When I came in two hours later, lo and behold, there was a package of perch, all filleted and ready to go — "on the house". Now you can't beat that. The point is — if you are going fishing, and have promised the little woman a fish fry, get your bait at the Loch Lomond dock, and put your order in for a few perch just in case. (I guess I'd better tell those kids that the limit per person is 15.)

IF YOU HAVE any recommendations for 1972-73 hunting seasons and regulations, you should submit them in writing to the Fish and Game Commission before April 7 or plan to be present at that time at the commission's meeting in Sacramento to make them in person.

The commission has set a series of three meetings to consider this year's regulations. As required by law, recommendations from the Department of Fish and Game, sportsmen and the general public will be accepted at the initial meeting, April 7.

Hearings on the recommendations will be held at a meeting in San Diego April 28, and the proposed regulations or "determinations" will be announced at that time.

Final hearings and adoption of the regulations will take place at the commission's May 26 meeting in Los Angeles. The new rules will go into effect July 1.

IT WILL BE late June before the 1972-73 hunting rules can be printed in booklet form. At that time they will be mailed to hunting license agents throughout the state for free public distribution.

So that vacations can be scheduled and other plans made well in advance by hunters, the following season opening dates are adhered to by the commission, unless extenuating circumstances arise:

Rabbits, first Saturday in July; early deer season, first Saturday in August; late deer season, Saturday nearest Sept. 23; quail and chukar season, last Saturday in October; and doves Sept. 1.

Waterfowl seasons are not adopted until late August.

AS I MENTIONED in a previous column, the Fish and Game Commission will probably go back to the two-tag system where you will be allowed one buck in the early season using your "A" tag, and one buck in the late season using your "B" tag.

There have been discussions about opening the duck season statewide on the same date. The early opener up north has been putting too much pressure on the areas there. A statewide opener on the same date would solve the problem, so it seems. This could influence your vacation plans also.

Coaches Hall Selects Two: Edelson, Morrow

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Harry Edelson of Beverly Hills and Dewey Morrow of San Diego were named Thursday to the California Coaches Hall of Fame.

Their selection was announced during a coaches' convention attended by 700 persons.

Other awards included the William S. Rockwell Memorial, which went to Sacramento school superintendent E.J. Kema, and the athletic director of the year, given to Dick Keller of Beverly Hills High School.

Ali In 'Must Win' Fight Tomorrow With Foster

TOKYO (UPI)—Muhammad Ali has been boasting that he is the world's greatest boxer and clowning during his training but he knows that he must beat Mac Foster of California Saturday (Friday night United States time) if he is to get a rematch with Joe Frazier, his only conqueror in 35 bouts.

Ever since he lost a 15-round decision to Frazier one year ago at Madison Square Garden for the undisputed world heavyweight title, Ali has been obsessed with the determination to "retire" Frazier if and when they meet again.

The Foster fight will be the 30-year-old Ali's fourth bout in his comeback campaign. He stopped his former sparring mate Jimmy Ellis in the 12th round i July at Houston, won a 12-round decision over Buster Mathis in November in Houston and knocked out West Germany's Jurgen Blin in the seventh round last December in Zurich, Switzerland.

Ali has boasted and taunted Foster, 29, that he would put him away in the fifth round of their scheduled 15-round bout. But the consensus of Japanese boxing writers, who have seen Foster train seriously, is that Ali is meeting a "dangerous" opponent. They pointed to Foster's record of 29 wins, all by knockouts, against one defeat (to Jerry Quarry by a sixth round knockout in June, 1970).

Foster knocked out Cleveland Williams twice in 1969, in the fifth round in September and the third round in October. Ali, in defense of his world heavyweight title, stopped Williams in the third round in November, 1966.

Ali scaled 226 pounds today, the heaviest he has ever weighed for a fight. Foster hit the scales at 211 3-4 pounds.

Veteran trainer Angelo Dundee said Ali was in top condition although he weighed 226 pounds. He said, "Ali knows himself better than anybody else and has trained accordingly."

Ali showed some fat around his stomach when he started his workouts here March 17 and Foster has been training hard on body punches.

Gal Cagers Challenge For UCLA

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI)— Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp has issued a basketball challenge to the National Collegiate Athletic Association champion UCLA Bruins—on behalf of Immaculata College.

In a letter to California Gov. Ronald Reagan, Shapp noted that Immaculata had won the women's national intercollegiate basketball title.

He suggested that if the two teams meet in post-season play, there should be one rule change:

"The UCLA team is to play on its knees and they are not to use their hands to ward off any passes."

Grand Opening Self Destroyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Huntington National Bank officially opened its first completely automatic self-service "handy-bank" Thursday night in ceremonies in which the ribbon "self-destroyed."

The mayor of suburban Upper Arlington, where the new bank is located, inserted a bank credit card into a specially devised box, activating a switch which caused the ribbon to self-destruct.

Customers of the tellerless bank can visit it 24 hours a day and use its equipment to transfer funds between accounts or receive a cash advance from a master charge card account.

Felony Charge For Legislator

Bill Designed For Junior College Aid

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill that would protect the building program of the Marin Community College District against the failure of a statewide junior college bond election in November is pending in the Senate Education Committee.

Senate bill 523 introduced by Sen. Water W. Stiern, D-Bakersfield, would shift $45.2 million from a fund normally used for construction at state colleges and universities to junior college construction.

Marin's share of that sum would be $1,146,984 for 1972-73 construction at the College of Marin and preliminary work at the Indian Valley Colleges in Novato.

Dr. Ernest H. Berg, president of the campus that will be developed in Novato, said the bill would assure the state's 40 per cent share of the work planned for next fiscal year.

If the Stiern bill is not passed, Berg said, the district will have to wait on the fate of a $160 million bond issue in the November election.

The district's board has voted a tax rate of 32 cents per $100 assessed valuation to pay its share of 1972-73 construction.

The money will be used mostly to equip the library, remodel the art building and build outdoor physical education facilities at College of Marin and to finance working drawings and site preparation of the planned Novato campus.

Failure of a $16.8 million local bond issue last November forced the board to adopt a pay-as-you-go plan that required the district to spread projects that had been planned for the next 10 years over 20 years.

Use Permit Plea On Plans Agenda

A hearing on revocation of a use permit for the Lion's Share, a rock nightclub on Red Hill Avenue, will be held Monday by the San Anselmo Planning Commission.

Club operators have been before the commission twice in the last year on parking problems. The commission in December gave operators 60 days to provide about 50 more parking spaces or face revocation of their use permit.

The commission will meet at 8 p.m. at city hall.

Fine Arts Theater Sets Series Finale

The final two films of the College of Marin's "Family of Man" series will be shown free in the Fine Arts Theater at the college, not in Olney Hall as originally scheduled.

"The Hunters" at 8 p.m. April 13 and "Inherit the Wind" at 8 p.m. April 27 were moved to accommodate larger crowds, according to the college.
